Chairman Estes Kefauver (center), of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee, talks to J. Edgar Hoover (left), head of the FBI, and Attorney General J. Treasury Will Organize Special Fraud Section

Gamblers, Racketeers to Be Checked on Income Tax Returns

Washington, March 27 (AP)—The Treasury advised Senate crime investigators today it is setting up a special fraud section to check on the income tax returns of gamblers and racketeers.

Secretary Snyder sent to the committee a pledge of a continuing drive to bring "chiselers to justice." His statement was presented by Edward Foley, under secretary of the Treasury.

Snyder said there has not been and will not be any letup in the Internal Revenue Bureau's warfare "against major league criminals." He noted it was the income tax men who bagged the late Scarface Al Capone, Chicago gang overlord of the Prohibition era.

George J. Schoeneman, commissioner of internal revenue, followed up Snyder's statement with testimony that his agents are now investigating nearly 2,500 tax cases "in the criminal area."

Others Testify

Foley, Schoeneman and other Treasury officials testified at what was billed as the crime problers last televised hearing before the scheduled windup of their investigation at the end of this week.

Several odds and ends are to be dealt with before the windup. Chairman Kefauver (D.-Tenn.) said the group will decide on Friday what further action to take against three defiant witnesses who are already under $10,000 bond each for contempt.

The three are Morris Kleinman and Louis Rothkopf, both of Cleveland, described by the committee as top rank gamblers, and Jacob (Greasy Thumb) Guzik, Chicago Capone gangsters. All refused to answer the committee's questions about underworld activities.

Threats Are Reported

Just before today's session began, three committee members disclosed to a reporter they have received threats against their lives.

Senator Tobey (R.-N. H.) said

Woman Challenges Greenglass' Story

Mrs. Rosenberg Says She Did Not Know He Was at Project

New York, March 27 (AP)—Mrs. Ethel Rosenberg challenged today her brother's testimony that she was a member of a Soviet spy ring that sent atom secrets to Russia.

The 35-year-old housewife is a co-defendant in Federal Court with her husband, Julius, 34, an electrical engineer, and radar expert Morton Sobell, 33, on a charge of conspiring to commit espionage for Russia in wartime.

She denied the story of her brother, former Army Sgt. David Greenglass, that she had typewritten atomic secrets he sent from the Los Alamos, N. M., atom bomb project for transmission to Russia.

She said she did not even know Greenglass was employed on the Los Alamos project until after he was discharged from the army in 1946. Greenglass has pleaded guilty to the spying charge and is awaiting sentence.

Denies Accusations

Point by point, Mrs. Rosenberg denied all his accusations.

She denied Greenglass' story of a meeting in the Rosenberg apart-

Restaurant Aide Taken to Hospital

Arzwaam Rescued From Rock in Wallkill; Acts Puzzling

Anastania Arzwaam, about 55, dishwasher at The Sun Restaurant in this city, was taken to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh early today suffering from shock and exposure after a strange series of events that has Walden police puzzled.

Arzwaam, complaining of a headache but otherwise in apparently good physical condition, was found by Walden police wandering in the Valley avenue section of that village, under the impression that he was in Kingston, the police reported.

Patrolman Harold Yaple of Walden learned that the man had purchased a Trailways bus ticket from New York to Kingston and had mistakenly gotten off the bus when it stopped in Walden, about midnight. Yaple put Arbwaam on the 2:10 a. m. bus out of that village for Kingston.

Police Notified

At 5:40 a. m. an unknown truck driver notified Walden police that he saw a man sitting on a rock in the middle of the Wallkill river between Walden and Wallkill, clad only in shirt, tie and shorts. The temperature was 20 degrees at the time.

Patrolman Yaple investigated and found the man was the same Arzwaam, he reported. Yaple notified the fire department and Fireman Harold Taedger tied a rope around himself and waded out in the waist-deep water to rescue Arzwaam, who was then taken to the hospital in Newburgh, where his condition was reported as "fair."

Arzwaam's address is reported as 608 Broadway, Kingston, which is the Holland Hotel.

Walden police have been unable to determine where Arz-

Truck Driver Hurt In Jump From His Vehicle, Route 28

Riverhead Man Is Taken to Margaretville; His Condition Said to Be Fair

A 31-year-old Riverhead truck driver was injured about 9 p. m. Monday when he jumped from the cab of a tractor trailer as it plunged down a 75-foot drop off Route 28, at Big Indian, Corporal Ray Dunn of the state police reported.

The man, John James Rambo, employed by Clare Schnepp of Walton, was given first aid immediately after the accident by Town Constable Robert Grenie, who was in the vicinity and heard the crash. Grenie took him to a Fleischmanns physician, who after treatment ordered Rambo to Margaretville Hospital.

Hospital attendants reported to state police Monday night that Rambo's condition was "fair."

Door Came Open

Investigation by Corporal Dunn disclosed that the right door of the cab came open as Rambo was negotiating a sharp right curve in the highway at Big Indian. Rambo said he reached over to close the door and while he was doing this the vehicle started off the road to the right. The driver spun the wheel in an attempt to straighten his course, but the vehicle went over to the left side of the highway and down the 75-foot embankment, Dunn reported.

Rambo jumped as the vehicle started its plunge, Dunn reported. The tractor trailer contained no cargo, he said.

Draft Boards Receive Notice of Curtailment

Local draft headquarters said today it had received notice of a cut of about 40 per cent in the April induction calls.

The call by Local Draft Board 18 (city) for 23 men has been cut to 14 and the call for Draft Board 19 (county) for 42 men on April 9 has been cut to 24 men. The cuts are in line with a general curtailment order which had been expected.

Fulbright Assails Moral Corruption As Weakening U. S.

Senator Proposes Group on National Morality Backed by Public

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Senator Fulbright declared today that moral corruption beyong the reach of the law is eating away the foundations of American democracy. He called for revival of the precepts of the pilgrims and founding fathers.

The Arkansas Democrat who heads the sensation packed probe of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC) said it was not a condition to be remedied by politicians or policemen. He said it calls for the wisdom of the nation's most respected private citizens acting as a commission on national morality and backed by an indignant public.

In a speech prepared for Senate delivery, Fulbright offered a list of ten names of jurists, educators, religious leaders, a labor chief and a former senator as men of "integrity beyond reproach" who might make up such a commission.

Includes Athletics

In his passionately stated indictment of public morals, Fulbright included the nation's athletics minided colleges and universities, blaming the "cynical, immoral doctrine that one must win at all costs" for scandals such as bribing of basketball players.

Fulbright said investigation after investigation has shown up evil that is "beyond the reach of the law." Now, he added, it is time to seek remedies.

He protested that "among so many influential people, morality has become identical with legality" and called it "a tragic plight" if that is to be the measure of integrity.

It is a condition, he said, which he found widespread in an investigation of political favoritism in big government loans by the RFC. But it is not peculiar to the RFC, he declared, and called it "a reflection of what may be seen in many other phases of our national life."

Suggests Names

Fulbright said a commission of private citizens well might include former Supreme Court Justice Owen Roberts; former Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin; Chief Judge Learned Hand of the Second Circuit Court of Appeals; Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers Union (CIO); Paul Hoffman, Ford Foundation director; Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, professor at Union Theological Seminary; Dr. Theodore

Full Cooperation Is Asked With U. S. From Nations

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson urged the American republics today to take immediate action to meet a menace posed by international communism.

He said no free nation anywhere in the world is secure against the menace, and called for full economic and military cooperation with the United States.

Acheson delivered the keynote speech of the first regular session of the Inter-American Conference of Foreign Ministers.

The instruments of Soviet Russia's "new imperialism," he said, are "a formidable machine of war and the international Communist movement."

"Never before have we faced a menace of this magnitude," he continued. "Never before has there been so great a challenge to our determination to preserve our independence as nations."

The freedom of the individual man as well as the independence of governments is threatened, he said, and the threat demands "action now."

Only by Building

Only by building up their strength can the free nations provide a deterrent force which "is the only real road to peace," the secretary said.

To do this, he said, each nation must contribute its full share in the spirit of cooperation characteristic of the inter-American tradition.

In a welcoming address before a preliminary meeting yesterday, President Truman asked that the Latin republics of America join in the effort to throw up defenses against the "aggressive expansion of Soviet power" he said threatens the whole world.

Mr. Truman's address, reactions indicated, did not please everyone. He stirred up volatile South American political feelings by endorsing a plan under which Bolivia would trade Chile and Peru irrigation water for an outlet to the sea.

Will Get to Work

Later today the representatives of the 21 American republics will get down to work on political, military and economic agreements to enable Western Hemisphere countries to work as a team against any aggression.

Three committees on the three points of the agenda will meet to organize themselves. At the head of the agenda stands aggression. Next is internal security, and point three is economic problems.

President Truman said Latin America, as "partners in a common enterprise," must increase production of strategic materials and take other economic measures to support the men in Europe and Asia "who are battling for freedom."

Mr. Truman pledged by implication that Latin America can expect continued help from Washington in all ways—economic, military, technical assistance.

On Political Sore Toe

It was Mr. Truman's discussion of ways to develop South America's vast economic potential which led him to tread upon a political sore toe.

He departed from his prepared text to express hope that a plan to give land-locked Bolivia a seaport on the Pacific would be carried out. The plan could also result in turning arid north Chile and south Peru into a garden, Mr. Truman said.

This made the Bolivians jubilant but the Peruvians retired be-

California Search Is Made for Slayer, Kidnaping Feared

Young Father Is Found Dead at Roadside; Babe Plays Near His Body

Riverside, Calif., March 27 (AP)—Search was intensified today for a pretty young mother because of fears that she may have been kidnaped by her husband's slayer.

Mrs. Doris Trask Cook, 18, has not been seen since the body of her 18-year-old husband, Richard Cook, was found on a lonely road yesterday. Their eight-month-old baby was playing happily on a blanket near the body of the father, who had been shot to death, when the tragedy was discovered.

Police continued to question Sgt. Lawrence J. Walker, 20, a Negro of March Air Force Base here who was booked on suspicion of carrying a concealed weapon. He carried a stolen .45 caliber pistol, police said.

The air force sergeant was questioned for three hours last night and Sheriff's Officer W. W. Walrath, chief criminal deputy, said he insisted he knew nothing of the case. After the questioning a sheriff's posse left at midnight to search the area where the car was found, 10 miles south of here.

Bolts Are Found

Sheriff's Captain Don Schrader said bumper bolts found at the scene of the tragedy matched those on Walker's car. Cook's auto, parked near his body, had a dented and torn fender, as

This year there will be additional exhibits from establishments in the Hudson Valley and Catskill Mountain regions as well as "one or two" from New York city, according to Lawrence J. MacAvery, vice chairman.

Morgan D. Ryan, general chairman, has revealed that the job of booking New York talent for the nightly shows has been completed by Robert E. Teetsel and his entertainment committee. Names of the entertainers will be announced.

Another American Unit Squeeze Chinese in Trap; Enemy 77th Is Ineffective

Peace Is Offered

UN Commanders Try to Make Foe See Need for Peace

Tokyo, March 27 (AP)—American troops fought through a Chinese regiment today on the western front in a slow advance toward the Red Korean border. They killed 350 Communists.

Nearby another U. S. unit battled three battalions of rear-guard Chinese. By late Tuesday afternoon the American had squeezed the Reds into a trap. United Nations warplanes dropped surrender leaflets.

An American division staff officer said he did not believe the Chinese would put up another major stand south of Parallel 38. But he added:

"I think if we hit them above the parallel we'll find them fighting like sons of guns."

Elements of six Chinese armies were reported massing just north of the border. A report said Reds defense positions were built directly in front of the present U.N. line about two miles north of the parallel.

The Chinese 26th Army Corps has pulled back across the Imjin river.

Division Ineffective

An American spokesman said the Chinese Regiment mauled by the Americans Tuesday was part of the 77th Division. He said the division could no longer be regarded as an "effective, organized fighting force." The second Chinese force was not identified.

On the American's left flank, South Korean troops by sundown Tuesday were within five miles of the parallel in force. They dug in along the Imjin river east of Munsan. To get there they marched across Korean foothills without opposition.

Allied planes Tuesday supported western front ground action. They hit gun positions, pillboxes, tanks and vehicles.

Although the main U.N. line is within small arms range of 38 only one penetration in force has been reported. On the east coast Republic of Korea troops occupied the small village of Younpo. U. S. Eighth Army spokesmen said the village had no military significance.

Rain, Mud Encountered

On the east central front U.N. troops encountered rain and mud but no enemy as they advanced to within six miles of 38.

The Red buildup was reported on the central front around Kumhwa. This is a road and rail center 20 air miles north of 38. Communist troops have been spotted south of the town, and in the hills to the east and west.

Heavy traffic also was spotted on the roads around Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, and Sukchon. Of the 850 vehicles seen moving Monday night, 600 were headed south. This is the largest group spotted in two weeks.

All were attacked

The air force said it destroyed or damaged about 100 vehicles, 60 railroad cars, 930 Red-occupied buildings and 30 supply and fuel dumps. It also claimed 450 Red soldiers wounded or killed.

Peace Is Played Up

Tokyo, March 27 (AP)—United Nations commanders are trying to convince the Communists a negotiated peace is the cheapest way of wiping off their unprofitable gamble in Korea.

But informed sources here said there had been no Red overtures for a truce, and there is no indication whether they are ready to begin talking terms.

The allies began their campaign of conviction in January with an offensive frankly labelled as mainly an effort to pile up Red losses. The attack, still underway, has cost the enemy more than 180,000 dead and wounded.

Two top commanders made statements over the week-end that evidently were designed to stress the point directly to Communist leaders themselves.

One was General MacArthur's controversial Saturday statement. He told the Reds they had lost four different ways and offered to meet the enemy commander-in-

Wicks Says '51 Legislature Had Awareness Of People's Need; Lauds Defense Law

The Legislature has ended its 1951 session with a record which demonstrates in unmistakable terms a keen awareness of the Legislature's responsibility to the people of the State of New York, Senate Majority Leader Arthur H. Wicks of Kingston said today.

"Once again a Republican-controlled Legislature has acted to protect and preserve the rights of all the people of the State and at the same time provide benefits for them," Senator Wicks said. "This year, however, during these critical times, I believe the Legislature has shown more than ever before that it recognizes its obligations to our citizens.

"Probably the most outstanding legislation enacted was the Civil Defense Law, the prime purpose of which is to protect the lives, health and property of the people of our State. No one likes to think that our nation may be attacked, but we cannot blind our eyes to the facts. The plain truth is that aggression against the United States is a possibility, and if attack comes, it is vital that we be prepared for it.

"The New York State Civil Defense Act is a bold, forward-looking move to put the state in a position to best meet any enemy attack and the consequences of such an attack. It has no intention of granting excessive powers to any individual or agency except in the case of dire necessity and such a grant of powers would be made only to safeguard our citizens and their property. New York State residents should be relieved, proud and grateful that their state government has acted in the important field of civil defense.

"At the same time, Governor Dewey and the Legislature have again proved that it is possible to operate our government on a business-like basis without going hog-wild over expenditures and taxes in the manner of the Federal Administration in Washington. During the coming fiscal year, the State government will continue to provide the same essential services to its people that it has done for the past eight years in addition to financing its share of the Civil Defense program and providing salary increases for school teachers and state employes. Despite these added expenditures, all tax rates, except those in one field, will continue at their present level, including the 10 per cent rebate on personal income tax and the 25 per cent reduction in the unincorporated business tax.

"To correct an injustice to the millions of citizens who own and drive automobiles and pay far more in proportion in state taxes than big trucks do, the Legislature enacted a new tax on heavy trucks based on weight carried and distance traveled. This tax, as well as the increased registration fees for trucks and the boost in the tax on Diesel fuel, is designed to equalize taxes on a just and equitable basis of highway use.

"The Legislature also acted to give New York state, for the first time, a true system of merit rating in unemployment insurance. This bill, which rewards employers who maintain a relatively stable payroll, also increased the benefit payments to unemployed workers and is expected to help eliminate fraudulent claims for unemployment insurance. Higher taxes will be paid by employers to pay for the increased benefits and to build up the Unemployment Insurance Fund.

"A great many important measures were enacted by the 1951

Lioness Gives Party Guests Anxious Time in Desert

Palm Springs, Calif., March 27 (AP)—A hungry Lioness slipped out of her cage at a circus-costume ball here early today and cavorted among movie stars and socialities for 15 minutes before being captured by a singer, a restaurant man and a photographer.

Singer Allan Jones, Renaldo Ferarri of San Francisco, and magazine photographer Earl Tiesen crowded the animal into a corner where her handlers could get a rope around her and lead her back to the cage.

It happened at a birthday party given for his wife by Stewart Hopps, Rhode Island insurance man, at Rogers Ranch Club.

"Just as the animal trainer was leaving the cage after his act," Hopps said, "the lioness slipped out behind him and headed for the desert. She was distracted by all the cars parked outside the big circus tent, I guess, because she started hopping over the cars as if she were a gazelle.

"If you've never seen a lion hopping over a car you've missed something. She was very casual about it. She just walked up to a car and over she went.

"The lion wandered around outside for a while and then headed for the kitchen. She apparently was rather hungry. This was not her day to be fed and she was pretty noisy about it all night. At the kitchen door Jones, Ferarri and Tiesen, with prods and chairs, kept here cornered until the trainer could take over."

The trainer's name was not learned immediately.

Hero of the affair, said Hopps, was an elephant boy named Rudolf Hernandez.

"Hernandez thought very fast. He moved one of his elephants over to the tent entrance, saying one of his beasts could whip any two lions in the world. This way he kept the people inside the tent and the Lion outside where it could do little damage.

"John Ringling North Jr., who happened to be in town, hired Hernandez on the spot. He said that's the kind of a boy who makes a circus great."

Among the celebrities who attended the party were Sonja Henie, William Powell, and Mervyn Le Roy and Harry Joe Brown, movie directors. Hopp said 200 persons were there in circus costume.

Woman Challenges Greenglass' Story

Mrs. Rosenberg Says She Did Not Know He Was at Project

New York, March 27 (AP)—Mrs. Ethel Rosenberg challenged today her brother's testimony that she was a member of a Soviet spy ring that sent atom secrets to Russia.

The 35-year-old housewife is a co-defendant in Federal Court with her husband, Julius, 34, an electrical engineer, and radar expert Morton Sobell, 33, on a charge of conspiring to commit espionage for Russia in wartime.

She denied the story of her brother, former Army Sgt. David Greenglass, that she had typewritten atomic secrets he sent from the Los Alamos, N. M., atom bomb project for transmission to Russia.

She said she did not even know Greenglass was employed on the Los Alamos project until after he was discharged from the army in 1946. Greenglass has pleaded guilty to the spying charge and is awaiting sentence.

Gamblers, Racketeers to Be Checked on Income Tax Returns

Washington, March 27 (AP)—The Treasury advised Senate crime investigators today it is setting up a special fraud section to check on the income tax returns of gamblers and racketeers.

Secretary Snyder sent to the committee a pledge of a continuing drive to bring "chiselers to justice." His statement was presented by Edward Foley, under secretary of the Treasury.

Snyder said there has not been and will not be any letup in the Internal Revenue Bureau's warfare "against major league criminals." He noted it was the income tax men who bagged the late Scarface Al Capone, Chicago gang overlord of the Prohibition era.

George J. Schoeneman, commissioner of internal revenue, followed up Snyder's statement with testimony that his agents are now investigating nearly 2,500 tax cases "in the criminal area."

Others Testify

Foley, Schoeneman and other Treasury officials testified at what was billed as the crime problers last televised hearing before the scheduled windup of their investigation at the end of this week.

Several odds and ends are to be dealt with before the windup. Chairman Kefauver (D.-Tenn.) said the group will decide on Friday what further action to take against three defiant witnesses who are already under $10,000 bond each for contempt.

The three are Morris Kleinman and Louis Rothkopf, both of Cleveland, described by the committee as top rank gamblers, and Jacob (Greasy Thumb) Guzik, Chicago Capone gangsters. All refused to answer the committee's questions about underworld activities.

Just before today's session began, three committee members disclosed to a reporter they have received threats against their lives.

Truck Driver Hurt In Jump From His Vehicle, Route 28

Riverhead Man Is Taken to Margaretville; His Condition Said to Be Fair

A 31-year-old Riverhead truck driver was injured about 9 p. m. Monday when he jumped from the cab of a tractor trailer as it plunged down a 75-foot drop off Route 28, at Big Indian, Corporal Ray Dunn of the state police reported.

The man, John James Rambo, employed by Clare Schnepp of Walton, was given first aid immediately after the accident by Town Constable Robert Grenie, who was in the vicinity and heard the crash. Grenie took him to a Fleischmanns physician, who after treatment ordered Rambo to Margaretville Hospital.

Hospital attendants reported to state police Monday night that Rambo's condition was "fair."

Door Came Open

Investigation by Corporal Dunn disclosed that the right door of the cab came open as Rambo was negotiating a sharp right curve in the highway at Big Indian. Rambo said he reached over to close the door and while he was doing this the vehicle started off the road to the right. The driver spun the wheel in an attempt to straighten his course, but the vehicle went over to the left side of the highway and down the 75-foot embankment, Dunn reported.

Rambo jumped as the vehicle started its plunge, Dunn reported. The tractor trailer contained no cargo, he said.

Draft Boards Receive Notice of Curtailment

Local draft headquarters said today it had received notice of a cut of about 40 per cent in the April induction calls.

The call by Local Draft Board 18 (city) for 23 men has been cut to 14 and the call for Draft Board 19 (county) for 42 men on April 9 has been cut to 24 men. The cuts are in line with a general curtailment order which had been expected.

Restaurant Aide Taken to Hospital

Anastania Arzwaam, about 55, dishwasher at The Sun Restaurant in this city, was taken to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh early today suffering from shock and exposure after a strange series of events that has Walden police puzzled.

Arzwaam, complaining of a headache but otherwise in apparently good physical condition, was found by Walden police wandering in the Valley avenue section of that village, under the impression that he was in Kingston, the police reported.

Patrolman Harold Yaple of Walden learned that the man had purchased a Trailways bus ticket from New York to Kingston and had mistakenly gotten off the bus when it stopped in Walden, about midnight. Yaple put Arbwaam on the 2:10 a. m. bus out of that village for Kingston.

Police Notified

At 5:40 a. m. an unknown truck driver notified Walden police that he saw a man sitting on a rock in the middle of the Wallkill river between Walden and Wallkill, clad only in shirt, tie and shorts. The temperature was 20 degrees at the time.

Patrolman Yaple investigated and found the man was the same Arzwaam, he reported. Yaple notified the fire department and Fireman Harold Taedger tied a rope around himself and waded out in the waist-deep water to rescue Arzwaam, who was then taken to the hospital in Newburgh, where his condition was reported as "fair."

Arzwaam's address is reported as 608 Broadway, Kingston, which is the Holland Hotel.

Wicks Says '51 Legislature Had Awareness Of People's Need; Lauds Defense Law

The Legislature has ended its 1951 session with a record which demonstrates in unmistakable terms a keen awareness of the Legislature's responsibility to the people of the State of New York, Senate Majority Leader Arthur H. Wicks of Kingston said today.

"Once again a Republican-controlled Legislature has acted to protect and preserve the rights of all the people of the State and at the same time provide benefits for them," Senator Wicks said. "This year, however, during these critical times, I believe the Legislature has shown more than ever before that it recognizes its obligations to our citizens.

"Probably the most outstanding legislation enacted was the Civil Defense Law, the prime purpose of which is to protect the lives, health and property of the people of our State. No one likes to think that our nation may be attacked, but we cannot blind our eyes to the facts. The plain truth is that aggression against the United States is a possibility, and if attack comes, it is vital that we be prepared for it.

"The New York State Civil Defense Act is a bold, forward-looking move to put the state in a position to best meet any enemy attack and the consequences of such an attack. It has no intention of granting excessive powers to any individual or agency except in the case of dire necessity and such a grant of powers would be made only to safeguard our citizens and their property. New York State residents should be relieved, proud and grateful that their state government has acted in the important field of civil defense.

"At the same time, Governor Dewey and the Legislature have again proved that it is possible to operate our government on a business-like basis without going hog-wild over expenditures and taxes in the manner of the Federal Administration in Washington. During the coming fiscal year, the State government will continue to provide the same essential services to its people that it has done for the past eight years in addition to financing its share of the Civil Defense program and providing salary increases for school teachers and state employes. Despite these added expenditures, all tax rates, except those in one field, will continue at their present level, including the 10 per cent rebate on personal income tax and the 25 per cent reduction in the unincorporated business tax.

"To correct an injustice to the millions of citizens who own and drive automobiles and pay far more in proportion in state taxes than big trucks do, the Legislature enacted a new tax on heavy trucks based on weight carried and distance traveled. This tax, as well as the increased registration fees for trucks and the boost in the tax on Diesel fuel, is designed to equalize taxes on a just and equitable basis of highway use.

"The Legislature also acted to give New York state, for the first time, a true system of merit rating in unemployment insurance. This bill, which rewards employers who maintain a relatively stable payroll, also increased the benefit payments to unemployed workers and is expected to help eliminate fraudulent claims for unemployment insurance. Higher taxes will be paid by employers to pay for the increased benefits and to build up the Unemployment Insurance Fund.

"A great many important measures were enacted by the 1951

California Search Is Made for Slayer, Kidnaping Feared

Young Father Is Found Dead at Roadside; Babe Plays Near His Body

Riverside, Calif., March 27 (AP)—Search was intensified today for a pretty young mother because of fears that she may have been kidnaped by her husband's slayer.

Mrs. Doris Trask Cook, 18, has not been seen since the body of her 18-year-old husband, Richard Cook, was found on a lonely road yesterday. Their eight-month-old baby was playing happily on a blanket near the body of the father, who had been shot to death, when the tragedy was discovered.

Police continued to question Sgt. Lawrence J. Walker, 20, a Negro of March Air Force Base here who was booked on suspicion of carrying a concealed weapon. He carried a stolen .45 caliber pistol, police said.

The air force sergeant was questioned for three hours last night and Sheriff's Officer W. W. Walrath, chief criminal deputy, said he insisted he knew nothing of the case. After the questioning a sheriff's posse left at midnight to search the area where the car was found, 10 miles south of here.

Bolts Are Found

Sheriff's Captain Don Schrader said bumper bolts found at the scene of the tragedy matched those on Walker's car. Cook's auto, parked near his body, had a dented and torn fender, as

Lioness Gives Party Guests Anxious Time in Desert

Palm Springs, Calif., March 27 (AP)—A hungry Lioness slipped out of her cage at a circus-costume ball here early today and cavorted among movie stars and socialities for 15 minutes before being captured by a singer, a restaurant man and a photographer.

Singer Allan Jones, Renaldo Ferarri of San Francisco, and magazine photographer Earl Tiesen crowded the animal into a corner where her handlers could get a rope around her and lead her back to the cage.

It happened at a birthday party given for his wife by Stewart Hopps, Rhode Island insurance man, at Rogers Ranch Club.

"Just as the animal trainer was leaving the cage after his act," Hopps said, "the lioness slipped out behind him and headed for the desert. She was distracted by all the cars parked outside the big circus tent, I guess, because she started hopping over the cars as if she were a gazelle.

"If you've never seen a lion hopping over a car you've missed something. She was very casual about it. She just walked up to a car and over she went.

"The lion wandered around outside for a while and then headed for the kitchen. She apparently was rather hungry. This was not her day to be fed and she was pretty noisy about it all night. At the kitchen door Jones, Ferarri and Tiesen, with prods and chairs, kept here cornered until the trainer could take over."

The trainer's name was not learned immediately.

Hero of the affair, said Hopps, was an elephant boy named Rudolf Hernandez.

"Hernandez thought very fast. He moved one of his elephants over to the tent entrance, saying one of his beasts could whip any two lions in the world. This way he kept the people inside the tent and the Lion outside where it could do little damage.

"John Ringling North Jr., who happened to be in town, hired Hernandez on the spot. He said that's the kind of a boy who makes a circus great."

Among the celebrities who attended the party were Sonja Henie, William Powell, and Mervyn Le Roy and Harry Joe Brown, movie directors. Hopp said 200 persons were there in circus costume.

Fulbright Assails Moral Corruption As Weakening U. S.

Senator Proposes Group on National Morality Backed by Public

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Senator Fulbright declared today that moral corruption beyong the reach of the law is eating away the foundations of American democracy. He called for revival of the precepts of the pilgrims and founding fathers.

The Arkansas Democrat who heads the sensation packed probe of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC) said it was not a condition to be remedied by politicians or policemen. He said it calls for the wisdom of the nation's most respected private citizens acting as a commission on national morality and backed by an indignant public.

In a speech prepared for Senate delivery, Fulbright offered a list of ten names of jurists, educators, religious leaders, a labor chief and a former senator as men of "integrity beyond reproach" who might make up such a commission.

Includes Athletics

In his passionately stated indictment of public morals, Fulbright included the nation's athletics minided colleges and universities, blaming the "cynical, immoral doctrine that one must win at all costs" for scandals such as bribing of basketball players.

Fulbright said investigation after investigation has shown up evil that is "beyond the reach of the law." Now, he added, it is time to seek remedies.

He protested that "among so many influential people, morality has become identical with legality" and called it "a tragic plight" if that is to be the measure of integrity.

It is a condition, he said, which he found widespread in an investigation of political favoritism in big government loans by the RFC. But it is not peculiar to the RFC, he declared, and called it "a reflection of what may be seen in many other phases of our national life."

Suggests Names

Fulbright said a commission of private citizens well might include former Supreme Court Justice Owen Roberts; former Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin; Chief Judge Learned Hand of the Second Circuit Court of Appeals; Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers Union (CIO); Paul Hoffman, Ford Foundation director; Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, professor at Union Theological Seminary; Dr. Theodore

Full Cooperation Is Asked With U. S. From Nations

Washington, March 27 (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson urged the American republics today to take immediate action to meet a menace posed by international communism.

He said no free nation anywhere in the world is secure against the menace, and called for full economic and military cooperation with the United States.

Acheson delivered the keynote speech of the first regular session of the Inter-American Conference of Foreign Ministers.

The instruments of Soviet Russia's "new imperialism," he said, are "a formidable machine of war and the international Communist movement."

"Never before have we faced a menace of this magnitude," he continued. "Never before has there been so great a challenge to our determination to preserve our independence as nations."

The freedom of the individual man as well as the independence of governments is threatened, he said, and the threat demands "action now."

Only by Building

Only by building up their strength can the free nations provide a deterrent force which "is the only real road to peace," the secretary said.

To do this, he said, each nation must contribute its full share in the spirit of cooperation characteristic of the inter-American tradition.

In a welcoming address before a preliminary meeting yesterday, President Truman asked that the Latin republics of America join in the effort to throw up defenses against the "aggressive expansion of Soviet power" he said threatens the whole world.

Mr. Truman's address, reactions indicated, did not please everyone. He stirred up volatile South American political feelings by endorsing a plan under which Bolivia would trade Chile and Peru irrigation water for an outlet to the sea.

Will Get to Work

Later today the representatives of the 21 American republics will get down to work on political, military and economic agreements to enable Western Hemisphere countries to work as a team against any aggression.

Three committees on the three points of the agenda will meet to organize themselves. At the head of the agenda stands aggression. Next is internal security, and point three is economic problems.

President Truman said Latin America, as "partners in a common enterprise," must increase production of strategic materials and take other economic measures to support the men in Europe and Asia "who are battling for freedom."

Mr. Truman pledged by implication that Latin America can expect continued help from Washington in all ways—economic, military, technical assistance.

On Political Sore Toe

It was Mr. Truman's discussion of ways to develop South America's vast economic potential which led him to tread upon a political sore toe.

He departed from his prepared text to express hope that a plan to give land-locked Bolivia a seaport on the Pacific would be carried out. The plan could also result in turning arid north Chile and south Peru into a garden, Mr. Truman said.

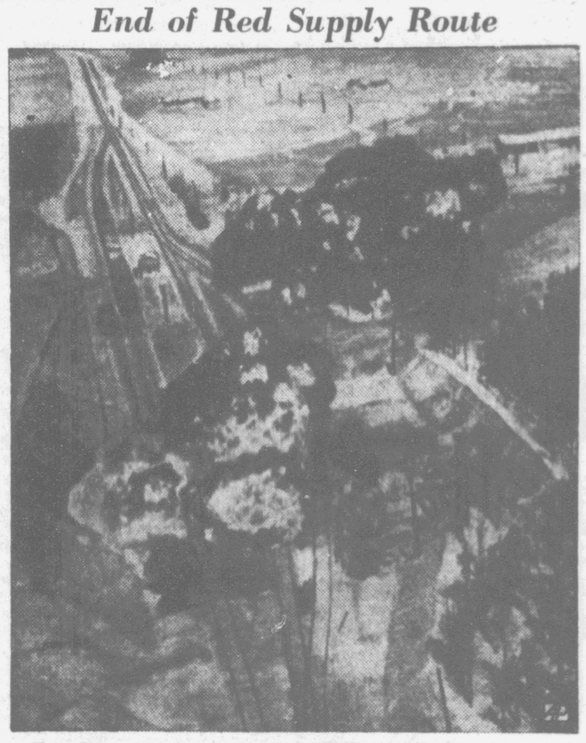

This made the Bolivians jubilant but the Peruvians retired be-

UN Commanders Try to Make Foe See Need for Peace

Tokyo, March 27 (AP)—American troops fought through a Chinese regiment today on the western front in a slow advance toward the Red Korean border. They killed 350 Communists.

Nearby another U. S. unit battled three battalions of rear-guard Chinese. By late Tuesday afternoon the American had squeezed the Reds into a trap. United Nations warplanes dropped surrender leaflets.

An American division staff officer said he did not believe the Chinese would put up another major stand south of Parallel 38. But he added:

"I think if we hit them above the parallel we'll find them fighting like sons of guns."

Elements of six Chinese armies were reported massing just north of the border. A report said Reds defense positions were built directly in front of the present U.N. line about two miles north of the parallel.

The Chinese 26th Army Corps has pulled back across the Imjin river.

Division Ineffective

An American spokesman said the Chinese Regiment mauled by the Americans Tuesday was part of the 77th Division. He said the division could no longer be regarded as an "effective, organized fighting force." The second Chinese force was not identified.

On the American's left flank, South Korean troops by sundown Tuesday were within five miles of the parallel in force. They dug in along the Imjin river east of Munsan. To get there they marched across Korean foothills without opposition.

Allied planes Tuesday supported western front ground action. They hit gun positions, pillboxes, tanks and vehicles.

Although the main U.N. line is within small arms range of 38 only one penetration in force has been reported. On the east coast Republic of Korea troops occupied the small village of Younpo. U. S. Eighth Army spokesmen said the village had no military significance.

Rain, Mud Encountered

On the east central front U.N. troops encountered rain and mud but no enemy as they advanced to within six miles of 38.

The Red buildup was reported on the central front around Kumhwa. This is a road and rail center 20 air miles north of 38. Communist troops have been spotted south of the town, and in the hills to the east and west.

Heavy traffic also was spotted on the roads around Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, and Sukchon. Of the 850 vehicles seen moving Monday night, 600 were headed south. This is the largest group spotted in two weeks.

All were attacked

The air force said it destroyed or damaged about 100 vehicles, 60 railroad cars, 930 Red-occupied buildings and 30 supply and fuel dumps. It also claimed 450 Red soldiers wounded or killed.

Peace Is Played Up

Tokyo, March 27 (AP)—United Nations commanders are trying to convince the Communists a negotiated peace is the cheapest way of wiping off their unprofitable gamble in Korea.

But informed sources here said there had been no Red overtures for a truce, and there is no indication whether they are ready to begin talking terms.

The allies began their campaign of conviction in January with an offensive frankly labelled as mainly an effort to pile up Red losses. The attack, still underway, has cost the enemy more than 180,000 dead and wounded.

Two top commanders made statements over the week-end that evidently were designed to stress the point directly to Communist leaders themselves.

One was General MacArthur's controversial Saturday statement. He told the Reds they had lost four different ways and offered to meet the enemy commander-in-

Wicks Says '51 Legislature Had Awareness Of People's Need; Lauds Defense Law

The Legislature has ended its 1951 session with a record which demonstrates in unmistakable terms a keen awareness of the Legislature's responsibility to the people of the State of New York, Senate Majority Leader Arthur H. Wicks of Kingston said today.

"Once again a Republican-controlled Legislature has acted to protect and preserve the rights of all the people of the State and at the same time provide benefits for them," Senator Wicks said. "This year, however, during these critical times, I believe the Legislature has shown more than ever before that it recognizes its obligations to our citizens.

"Probably the most outstanding legislation enacted was the Civil Defense Law, the prime purpose of which is to protect the lives, health and property of the people of our State. No one likes to think that our nation may be attacked, but we cannot blind our eyes to the facts. The plain truth is that aggression against the United States is a possibility, and if attack comes, it is vital that we be prepared for it.

"The New York State Civil Defense Act is a bold, forward-looking move to put the state in a position to best meet any enemy attack and the consequences of such an attack. It has no intention of granting excessive powers to any individual or agency except in the case of dire necessity and such a grant of powers would be made only to safeguard our citizens and their property. New York State residents should be relieved, proud and grateful that their state government has acted in the important field of civil defense.

"At the same time, Governor Dewey and the Legislature have again proved that it is possible to operate our government on a business-like basis without going hog-wild over expenditures and taxes in the manner of the Federal Administration in Washington. During the coming fiscal year, the State government will continue to provide the same essential services to its people that it has done for the past eight years in addition to financing its share of the Civil Defense program and providing salary increases for school teachers and state employes. Despite these added expenditures, all tax rates, except those in one field, will continue at their present level, including the 10 per cent rebate on personal income tax and the 25 per cent reduction in the unincorporated business tax.

"To correct an injustice to the millions of citizens who own and drive automobiles and pay far more in proportion in state taxes than big trucks do, the Legislature enacted a new tax on heavy trucks based on weight carried and distance traveled. This tax, as well as the increased registration fees for trucks and the boost in the tax on Diesel fuel, is designed to equalize taxes on a just and equitable basis of highway use.

"The Legislature also acted to give New York state, for the first time, a true system of merit rating in unemployment insurance. This bill, which rewards employers who maintain a relatively stable payroll, also increased the benefit payments to unemployed workers and is expected to help eliminate fraudulent claims for unemployment insurance. Higher taxes will be paid by employers to pay for the increased benefits and to build up the Unemployment Insurance Fund.

Tar Bombs Are Thrown

Buenos Aires, March 27 (AP)—Tar bombs were hurled twice last night at a downtown bank building in which the United States embassy has several offices. The bombers escaped police arrest. The bomb-throwing followed several days of increasing local resentment at widespread U. S. criticism of government seizure of the independent newspaper La Prensa. A congressional committee is investigating the paper's affairs. The publication's editor-publisher, Alberto Gainza Paz, has taken refuge at his mother's Uruguay ranch from a 15-day prison sentence on charges of contempt of Congress.

Employer's Quarterly Return For Workers in Households

Social Security Law Affects 1,500 In Kingston Area

One of the important features of the amended social security law is the extension of old-age and survivors insurance to regular household workers, according to George J. Johnson, manager of the Kingston social security office. Approximately 1,500 people in the Kingston field office area were affected by this phase of social security beginning January 1, 1951.

This new law will be important to the household workers—the maid or the cook—and also to her employer. The household worker regularly employed in one household will become eligible to build toward federal insurance benefit payments; the household employer of such a worker will have certain responsibilities for the social security tax and report of wages paid to the worker.

To make this as easy as possible for the people involved, the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Bureau and the Department of Internal Revenue have jointly devised a simple report slip, shown above, for this purpose. It provides space for the household worker's name and social security number, and a space for recording the total amount of the employe's cash wages during a three-month period. A three-month period is a calendar period. That is, three months beginning with January, April, July and October. The household employer who hires a maid, cook,. or any other household workers on a regular basis will keep such a report and send it, together with the social security tax to the collector of internal revenue at the end of each three-month period.

The tax is three per cent of the regular household worker's cash wages for the three-month period. Half of this tax (1½%) may be deducted from the worker's cash wages; the employer will contribute the other 1½%.

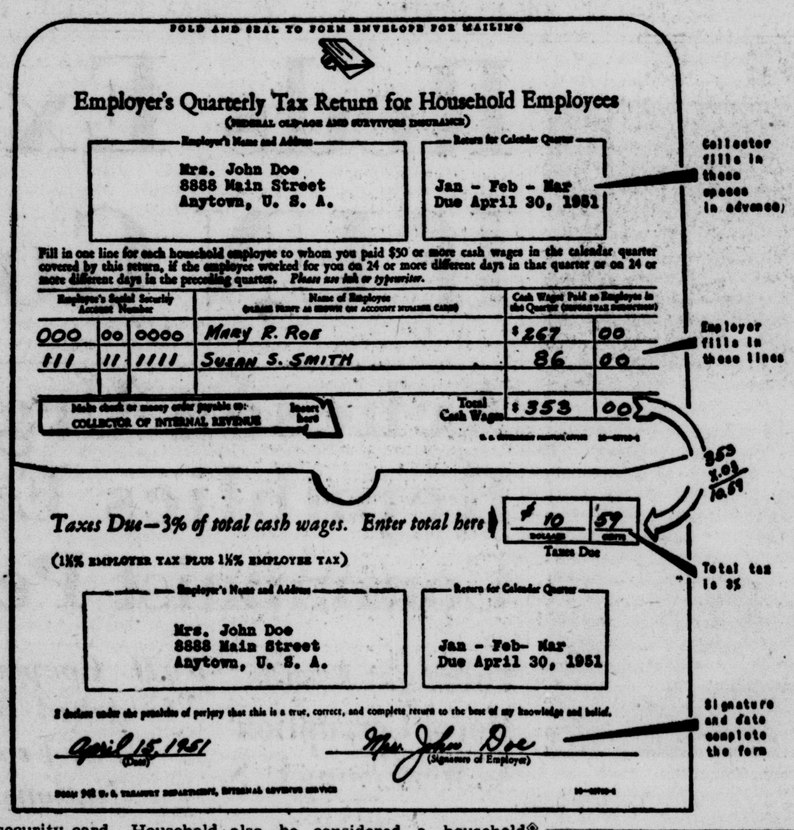

Now about that word "regular." A household worker is a "regular" worker, if he or she works on at least 24 different days for the one household employer in a three-month period and is paid cash wages of not less than $50. She is still "covered" during the next three months if she is paid $50. No report need be kept on a worker employed for an average of less than two days a week because such a worker would not meet the 24-day test for work in that household.

The term "cash wages" is used because meals and board cannot be counted as wages in determining the $50 minimum for social security coverage. The household employer, moreover, is not concerned with any wages the worker may earn elsewhere.

On the household worker's part, it is important that she or he have a social security card. Household workers who have never had a social security number, or have lost their card, or have changed their name should visit or write the social security office and get one.

I have mentioned cooks and maids, but butlers, practical nurses, and chauffeurs, and any other regular worker for one employer in a private household will also be considered a household worker and eligible for old-age and survivors insurance protection under the new social security law beginning in January.

If you are interested in more specific information on whether the new provisions about household workers affect you, write or call the social security office for a special leaflet on the subject.

Governor Approves Funds For 20 Legislative Probes

Albany, N. Y., March 27 (AP)—Appropriations totalling $560,000 for 20 legislative inquiries covering subjects ranging from reapportionment to horse racing and Indian affairs were approved today by Governor Dewey.

The funds will be used by joint legislative committees to finance studies during the new fiscal year, which begins Sunday.

Dewey also signed bills:

1. Providing $200,000 to give cost-of-living pay boosts ranging from $300 to $1,000 to judicial employes of the state who earn less than $17,500 a year. The increases comprise 12½ per cent on the first $2,000 of pay; 10 per cent on the next $2,000 and seven and one-half per cent on all pay above $4,000.

Other measures providing identical raises for state employes and those working for the Legislature already have been approved by the governor.

2. Designed to prevent a U. S. senator and a New York city mayor from being elected at the same time.

3. Extending for another year, until March 31, 1952, the 10-member temporary state commission on county law revision.

Bill Is Vetoed

The governor vetoed a bill that would have established a legal presumption that firemen suffering from heart disease had incurred the disability in line of duty. Dewey, noting he had disapproved an identical measure last year, said that "no basis is advanced for such a presumption."

Firemen disabled in line of duty are eligible for certain benefits.

Dewey said that "every municipality and every state agency which has communicated with me with respect to this bill" had urged that it be vetoed.

The largest appropriation for joint Legislature committees—$115,000—went to the reapportionment group. That agency, headed by Republican Senator Pliny Williamson of Westchester, is drafting legislation to reshuffle congressional and legislative districts to reflect changes in population reported by the 1950 census.

Special Session

A special session of the Legislature will be held next fall to consider the vast reapportionment project.

The other joint legislative committees, and the amount each received:

Insurance problems, $35,000; problems of the aging, $25,000; industrial and labor affairs, $30,000; multiple dwelling law, $25,000; military law revision $35,000; cerebral palsy, $15,000; Indian affairs, $15,000; historical sites, $10,000; natural resources, $20,000; interstate cooperation, $30,000; economic development, $20,000.

Unemployment insurance law, $30,000; canal and highway revenue, $30,000; judgments from motor vehicle accidents, $25,000; motor vehicle problems, $25,000; election law revision, $10,000; executive law revision $25,000; comic books, $15,000, and horse racing, $25,000.

SHOKAN NEWS

Shokan, March 27—The John Gikas family of New York arrived Saturday and spent their first week-end of the year at the family summer home in the village center.

Another spring real estate boom for the north reservoir country appears to have begun according to some local prognosticators. Several properties have changed hands and still others are on the market as holdovers from last year.

William Hand, Woodstock milk products distributor who is developing a business and residential site here, has acquired a big trailer milk truck.

Travel on the Onteora Trail and reservoir boulevards Sunday afternoon ran pretty close to summertime volume. A lot of skiers went up and down the line though no snow was visible here except on High Point and the Wittenberg Range.

Nancy North expected to resume her secretarial duties in New York today after having been ill at her Shokan home last week.

Local doings planned for this week include a food sale Friday afternoon at the Ashokan Methodist Church under auspices of the W.S.C.S.

Robert Haver observed another birthday Sunday. He was born at Samsonville, son of Fred and Ethel (Barley) Haver, now of Ashokan. He is married to Lorrania Tweedy, formerly of Olive Bridge. Birthdays falling on March 27 include that of Francis Phillips, War 2 Army Air Corps veteran. He as elder son of Jerry and Gertrude Phillips of Ashokan and now resides in the Mt. Tremper area.

Jesse James, Jr., Dies

Los Angeles, March 27 (AP)—Jesse James, Jr., 75, retired Kansas city attorney and son of the Missouri bandit, died yesterday of a heart ailment. James, Jr., born in Nashville, Tenn., practiced law in Kansas City for 25 years, retiring and moving to California 24 years ago. One of his four daughters, Mrs. Jo Frances Ross, said he saw his father killed in St. Joseph, Mo., in 1882.

The bomb-throwing followed several days of increasing local resentment at widespread U. S. criticism of government seizure of the independent newspaper La Prensa. A congressional committee is investigating the paper's affairs. The publication's editor-publisher, Alberto Gainza Paz, has taken refuge at his mother's Uruguay ranch from a 15-day prison sentence on charges of contempt of Congress.

Employer's Quarterly Return For Workers in Households

Social Security Law Affects 1,500 In Kingston Area

One of the important features of the amended social security law is the extension of old-age and survivors insurance to regular household workers, according to George J. Johnson, manager of the Kingston social security office. Approximately 1,500 people in the Kingston field office area were affected by this phase of social security beginning January 1, 1951.

This new law will be important to the household workers—the maid or the cook—and also to her employer. The household worker regularly employed in one household will become eligible to build toward federal insurance benefit payments; the household employer of such a worker will have certain responsibilities for the social security tax and report of wages paid to the worker.

To make this as easy as possible for the people involved, the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Bureau and the Department of Internal Revenue have jointly devised a simple report slip, shown above, for this purpose. It provides space for the household worker's name and social security number, and a space for recording the total amount of the employe's cash wages during a three-month period. A three-month period is a calendar period. That is, three months beginning with January, April, July and October. The household employer who hires a maid, cook,. or any other household workers on a regular basis will keep such a report and send it, together with the social security tax to the collector of internal revenue at the end of each three-month period.

The tax is three per cent of the regular household worker's cash wages for the three-month period. Half of this tax (1½%) may be deducted from the worker's cash wages; the employer will contribute the other 1½%.

Now about that word "regular." A household worker is a "regular" worker, if he or she works on at least 24 different days for the one household employer in a three-month period and is paid cash wages of not less than $50. She is still "covered" during the next three months if she is paid $50. No report need be kept on a worker employed for an average of less than two days a week because such a worker would not meet the 24-day test for work in that household.

The term "cash wages" is used because meals and board cannot be counted as wages in determining the $50 minimum for social security coverage. The household employer, moreover, is not concerned with any wages the worker may earn elsewhere.

On the household worker's part, it is important that she or he have a social security card. Household workers who have never had a social security number, or have lost their card, or have changed their name should visit or write the social security office and get one.

I have mentioned cooks and maids, but butlers, practical nurses, and chauffeurs, and any other regular worker for one employer in a private household will also be considered a household worker and eligible for old-age and survivors insurance protection under the new social security law beginning in January.

If you are interested in more specific information on whether the new provisions about household workers affect you, write or call the social security office for a special leaflet on the subject.

Governor Approves Funds For 20 Legislative Probes

Albany, N. Y., March 27 (AP)—Appropriations totalling $560,000 for 20 legislative inquiries covering subjects ranging from reapportionment to horse racing and Indian affairs were approved today by Governor Dewey.

The funds will be used by joint legislative committees to finance studies during the new fiscal year, which begins Sunday.

Dewey also signed bills:

1. Providing $200,000 to give cost-of-living pay boosts ranging from $300 to $1,000 to judicial employes of the state who earn less than $17,500 a year. The increases comprise 12½ per cent on the first $2,000 of pay; 10 per cent on the next $2,000 and seven and one-half per cent on all pay above $4,000.

Other measures providing identical raises for state employes and those working for the Legislature already have been approved by the governor.

2. Designed to prevent a U. S. senator and a New York city mayor from being elected at the same time.

3. Extending for another year, until March 31, 1952, the 10-member temporary state commission on county law revision.

Bill Is Vetoed

The governor vetoed a bill that would have established a legal presumption that firemen suffering from heart disease had incurred the disability in line of duty. Dewey, noting he had disapproved an identical measure last year, said that "no basis is advanced for such a presumption."

Firemen disabled in line of duty are eligible for certain benefits.

Dewey said that "every municipality and every state agency which has communicated with me with respect to this bill" had urged that it be vetoed.

The largest appropriation for joint Legislature committees—$115,000—went to the reapportionment group. That agency, headed by Republican Senator Pliny Williamson of Westchester, is drafting legislation to reshuffle congressional and legislative districts to reflect changes in population reported by the 1950 census.

Special Session

A special session of the Legislature will be held next fall to consider the vast reapportionment project.

The other joint legislative committees, and the amount each received:

Insurance problems, $35,000; problems of the aging, $25,000; industrial and labor affairs, $30,000; multiple dwelling law, $25,000; military law revision $35,000; cerebral palsy, $15,000; Indian affairs, $15,000; historical sites, $10,000; natural resources, $20,000; interstate cooperation, $30,000; economic development, $20,000.

Unemployment insurance law, $30,000; canal and highway revenue, $30,000; judgments from motor vehicle accidents, $25,000; motor vehicle problems, $25,000; election law revision, $10,000; executive law revision $25,000; comic books, $15,000, and horse racing, $25,000.

SHOKAN NEWS

Shokan, March 27—The John Gikas family of New York arrived Saturday and spent their first week-end of the year at the family summer home in the village center.

Another spring real estate boom for the north reservoir country appears to have begun according to some local prognosticators. Several properties have changed hands and still others are on the market as holdovers from last year.

William Hand, Woodstock milk products distributor who is developing a business and residential site here, has acquired a big trailer milk truck.

Travel on the Onteora Trail and reservoir boulevards Sunday afternoon ran pretty close to summertime volume. A lot of skiers went up and down the line though no snow was visible here except on High Point and the Wittenberg Range.

Nancy North expected to resume her secretarial duties in New York today after having been ill at her Shokan home last week.

Local doings planned for this week include a food sale Friday afternoon at the Ashokan Methodist Church under auspices of the W.S.C.S.

Robert Haver observed another birthday Sunday. He was born at Samsonville, son of Fred and Ethel (Barley) Haver, now of Ashokan. He is married to Lorrania Tweedy, formerly of Olive Bridge. Birthdays falling on March 27 include that of Francis Phillips, War 2 Army Air Corps veteran. He as elder son of Jerry and Gertrude Phillips of Ashokan and now resides in the Mt. Tremper area.

Du Pont Lecturer At Rotary Ladies' Night on April 4

L. F. LIVINGSTON

Larry F. Livingston, manager of the Extension Division of E. I. duPont de Nemours & Company, who is widely known as an authority and speaker on industrial progress in chemical developments will be the special guest of the Kingston Rotary Club at its Ladies' Night to be held on Wednesday evening at Williams Lake.

As a result of his extensive work in agricultural engineering before joining the duPont Company and long experience in that field, Livingston is also one of the leading authorities in the United States on the use of explosives for agricultural purposes.

He is an engineering graduate of the University of Washington. Following his graduation, he became a member of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin. He left the University to serve as an engineer in the army in the first World War, returning to Wisconsin to serve in the extension service.

He went to Michigan State College in 1921 as director of that institution's agricultural engineering extension work. Mr. Livingston continued in that capacity until he joined duPont in 1929.

With duPont he specialized in developing the use of explosives in agriculture and won recognition among farm organizations as an expert in the field. During this period he helped establish greatly improved methods of farm land development.

Since that time Mr. Livingston has widened his activities to include an intimate interest in the broad field of chemical developments by industry and the work of national farm organizations.

Schools Must Meet Federal Standards

Hundreds of profit schools training veterans under the G.I. Bill will be required to meet Federal minimum standards by March 31 in order to continue their veterans' training programs, Veterans Administration said today.

Public Law 610, the act establishing the standards, requires certain profit schools to meet a set of eight criteria in order to train G.I. Bill students. Schools affected are those which have, during any period, fewer than 25 students or one-fourth of the enrollment (whichever is larger) paying their own way.

State agencies that approve schools for G.I. Bill training currently are investigating the schools, to determine which ones meet the standards. March 31 is the deadline for the states to complete their surveys and re-approve above-standard schools. Those not recertified may not train veterans under the G.I. Bill after that date, V.A. said.

V.A. also said it already has issued regulations putting into effect two of the standards set up by law calling for reporting systems on what veterans are studying and how they are getting along in their studies.

Under this system, V.A. periodically mails single-page report blanks to all veterans in schools coming under the minimum standards, regardless of whether or not the veterans are on subsistence rolls.

The veterans fill out the first part of the form; those drawing subsistence must have their principal employers fill out the second part; and the schools execute the third part, which pertains to attendance, progress and conduct. The completed form is then returned to V.A.

Mr. Holze has agreed to sell the property to the school district for $7,500. An additional $400 is needed to purchase the street front property. Authorization by the voters to purchase the site does not necessarily commit the district to the construction of an elementary grade school building. A discussion of the proposition to purchase the property will take place at a public meeting to be held Monday, April 23.

L. F. LIVINGSTON

Larry F. Livingston, manager of the Extension Division of E. I. duPont de Nemours & Company, who is widely known as an authority and speaker on industrial progress in chemical developments will be the special guest of the Kingston Rotary Club at its Ladies' Night to be held on Wednesday evening at Williams Lake.

As a result of his extensive work in agricultural engineering before joining the duPont Company and long experience in that field, Livingston is also one of the leading authorities in the United States on the use of explosives for agricultural purposes.

He is an engineering graduate of the University of Washington. Following his graduation, he became a member of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin. He left the University to serve as an engineer in the army in the first World War, returning to Wisconsin to serve in the extension service.

He went to Michigan State College in 1921 as director of that institution's agricultural engineering extension work. Mr. Livingston continued in that capacity until he joined duPont in 1929.

With duPont he specialized in developing the use of explosives in agriculture and won recognition among farm organizations as an expert in the field. During this period he helped establish greatly improved methods of farm land development.

Since that time Mr. Livingston has widened his activities to include an intimate interest in the broad field of chemical developments by industry and the work of national farm organizations.

Schools Must Meet Federal Standards

Hundreds of profit schools training veterans under the G.I. Bill will be required to meet Federal minimum standards by March 31 in order to continue their veterans' training programs, Veterans Administration said today.

Public Law 610, the act establishing the standards, requires certain profit schools to meet a set of eight criteria in order to train G.I. Bill students. Schools affected are those which have, during any period, fewer than 25 students or one-fourth of the enrollment (whichever is larger) paying their own way.

State agencies that approve schools for G.I. Bill training currently are investigating the schools, to determine which ones meet the standards. March 31 is the deadline for the states to complete their surveys and reapprove above-standard schools. Those not recertified may not train veterans under the G.I. Bill after that date, V.A. said.

V.A. also said it already has issued regulations putting into effect two of the standards set up by law calling for reporting systems on what veterans are studying and how they are getting along in their studies.

Under this system, V.A. periodically mails single-page report blanks to all veterans in schools coming under the minimum standards, regardless of whether or not the veterans are on subsistence rolls.

The veterans fill out the first part of the form; those drawing subsistence must have their principal employers fill out the second part; and the schools execute the third part, which pertains to attendance, progress and conduct. The completed form is then returned to V.A.

SCHUMAN PLAN FOR EUROPE

Six nations stand on the verge of an historic step toward European economic unity. Their representatives already have initiated the bold Schuman plan. If foreign ministers and parliaments ratify the action, the plan will take effect.

It is a treaty for the pooling of all coal and steel facilities in France, Western Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. Nothing like it has ever before been seriously contemplated in Europe.

If the Schuman plan works, barriers to the free flow of coal and steel will be knocked down in the six countries. Rigid national cartels—groupings to fix prices and production quotas—will be wiped out. A free market featuring free competition will replace them.

The coal and steel industries of the participating nations would be governed by new international institutions. The high hope is that this proposed integration would boost production, improve and enlarge productive facilities, raise living standards in these countries.

Not to be overlooked is the prospect that this economic integration could serve as a preliminary to broader unity in the European economy, and as a basis for ultimate military and political unification.

The old European habit of living within a national shell will not die easily. It would be foolhardy to expect too much of this beginning effort, or to ignore the practical difficulties of the treaty's application. But unquestionably it deserves to be hailed as a courageous and constructive act of statesmanship.

The original credit goes to Robert Schuman, who as French foreign minister conceived the plan last May. But the real spadework has been done by Jean Monnet, chairman of France's delegation to the treaty-drafting conference. He has toiled long and devotedly to achieve this momentous objective.

The Schuman plan, if ratified, will be in force for fifty years at least. It will provide, too, the first great postwar test of Western Germany's intentions. In this treaty the Germans have been invited to become peace-loving, respectable members of the European family. The world will watch closely to see how they perform in this somewhat unaccustomed role.

As we've noted, the French had to be brave to volunteer the shelving of their ancient feud with Germany. They are breaking with the past and projecting a future for Europe along wholly new lines. Federation is proposed as the real way to end feuding.

The Schuman plan is open to all comers, especially to Britain, which is strong in coal and steel. Thus far the British have held aloof, fearing to handicap their insulated Socialist economy by entanglements on the continent. The French example ought to embarrass them considerably.

But this is no time for carping criticism. The occasion calls for warm expressions of satisfaction that there are men in this troubled era with the courage and imagination to attempt so striking an advance toward solving Europe's economic ills. Every lover of freedom and peace should hope the Schuman plan is ratified—and that it works.

GERMAN UNITY

The German people are coming out of their post-war lethargy and clamoring for the re-establishment of their identity as a nation.

A report from Frankfort tells of the "fervor and passion" with which the members of the Pundestag in special session passed a resolution demanding a unified Germany. Free elections throughout Germany are demanded as a basis for unification. Soviet puppets in power in East Germany have long been plugging for unity, but hardly on such a basis. That "Unity in Freedom," the watchword for the West German government, may mean one thing to its sponsors and another to the East German authorities is the fear of those now under the yoke of the Soviet.

The German states never attained strength until they were unified by Bismarck, a fact of which Germans today are doubtless fully cognizant. Their national strength, when attained, was focussed on world conquest, with disastrous results. Americans hope that if their "unity in freedom" is finally gained, the resulting force will be applied in peaceful ways.

Between eating, sleeping, working and watching television, people are pretty busy these days.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

INDEPENDENCE HALL

One Sunday recently, I took my children to Philadelphia to look at Independence Hall, the Liberty Bell, and other historic evidences of the founding of our country enshrined in that building. I think that parents would strengthen their children's love of country if they, even for once in their lives, walked the floor upon which Washington and Jefferson and Franklin stood on the occasion of the founding of this country. It gives one a feeling of continuity, of belonging to a grand tradition. It relates one to the great spiritual strength of America.

I was, however, disappointed by the environment. The streets are narrow and shabby. There is a little park in front of the building, but not an impressive one. My little girl wanted to see Betsy Ross's house, where our first national flag was sewn, and we drove through narrow Arch street where we stopped in front of 239. The house is buried in a mass of buildings and is perhaps best recognized by a replica of our first flag that hangs on a pole from it.

We wanted to see where Benjamin Franklin was buried in the Christ Church Cemetery and even to enter Christ Church itself, but parking was difficult. Yet it was in that church that the fathers of our country prayed for guidance on those occasions when they wrote the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution.

I am told that a plan is afoot to turn this invaluable historic area into a national historical park. Since January 1 of this year, Independence Hall and the group of historic buildings adjacent to it are under the national park service of the Department of the Interior.

More than that is necessary to preserve these monuments. They should be restored. Independence Hall, for instance, needs a coat of paint on the interior walls. Peeling ceilings are not impressive, particularly to young children. Could not the grand dining room of this building, which also served as a hospital, be restored, so that when the hall is visited, children can see, in their keen imaginations, the great figures who risked their lives that this might be a nation of free men?

With all the billions of dollars that the United States has been spending all over the world for every variety of boondoggling, why has nothing been done until now to restore the entire area, from Spruce to Arch street, from Second to Sixth street, into a shrine to American patriotism? I look at a map of the "Independence National Historical Park project" and I cannot help wondering why it is still a project after 175 years. Why do we have to wait to do the fine things when we can waste so much on the meaningless?

Are Americans so lacking in sentiment, or impotent in their love of tradition that it has taken them this long to rescue the most sacred spot in all this country from obscurity and vandalism? How shall we instill in our children the ideals of our nation if we fail to show any interest in our national monuments?

In a way, I must say that I came away hurt, because my children, who said it was all wonderful, betrayed their own disillusionment. The rooms were so bare. They had been to Plymouth where they saw the Pilgrims' houses and Plymouth Rock. They have not yet been to Williamsburg in Virginia or to the Lincoln Shrine in New Salem, Illinois.

When they are taken to those places, their imagination will road among living things. Here at Independence Hall that feeling of the living is missing and children must have that if they are to understand the quality of a place.

No millions are too many to spend upon a complete restoration of this area, until an American child can see in his mind's eye the grand flourish of John Hancock's pen and the aged Benjamin Franklin being assisted to his seat, and the philosophic Thomas Jefferson writing: "When in the course of human events . . ." and realize that it was to this place that George Washington rode to assume a leadership that is never to be forgotten.

Perhaps if we made much of our national shrines and brought our children to them, they would be more truly bound, in these queer and disconcerting days, to our great national traditions.

That Body of Yours

WRONG POSTURE

A recent newspaper story told of a young bandit who entered a drugstore and while being served, quietly pointed a revolver at the proprietor and demanded the contents of the till. The druggist handed it over and the bandit quietly left the store. During this whole procedure two messenger boys lay on the floor reading the comics and were so intent thereon that they saw or heard nothing of the holdup and theft.

While this story illustrates primarily the boys' complete absorption in the reading of the comics, it touches on another point in which parents should be greatly interested, that is, that keeping the body in the same position for long periods of time can affect the shape and growth of the body.

In The Medical Journal of Australia, Dr. Jean Macnamara (Melbourne) mentions two basic principles which are helpful in viewing this problem in young persons: (1) The form of any living, growing thing is determined by inheritance, nutrition and position habitually assumed; (2) habitual position is most potent in altering the line of growth from that which was expected by inheritance in early life during periods of rapid growth and when nutrition is poor. Approximately this would be from ages of 9 or 10 to the teen ages.

A favorite position of children when lying face down to read is to rest the weight of the head on the palm of the hand. Thus weight is transmitted through the forearm to the elbow which rests on the floor or bed. The palm is pressed firmly against the bone of the cheek. This position causes a distortion of one half of the upper jaw—the dental condition known as crossed bite.

In addition to causing a deformity of the teeth and face, it can easily be seen how this position, with head held high, leads to curvature forward of the lower part of the spine or "sway back" as it is popularly called. Sway back in children very often persists into manhood and womanhood, making necessary snug fitting corsets for women to give lower back support and a better carriage, and lessening the appearance if not the actual size of the protruding abdomen in men.

Sway back is a common cause of sciatica and low back pain. Watch the posture of the child; this may prevent deformities of face and body.

The Red Herring

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—Random reactions of a citizen returning to the U.S.A.—Stepping off a Pan American Clipper in New York the other day I immediately got tangled in a traffic jam. But the traffic jam seemed good . . . In Communist Yugoslavia I couldn't find a taxi to drive from the station in Belgrade to the hotel (this in the capital of Yugoslavia.) I had to take a horse-drawn carriage . . . at Idlewild Airport I also stepped in front of a customs inspector who said: "Things have been happening while you were away. A guy named Kefauver has taken this town by storm. We don't get much work done watching him. That fellow Tobey and his eyeshade isn't so bad either. He's saying a lot of things the American people would like to say." . . . Tobey, I recalled, was the Republican who squeaked through the New Hampshire primary by the scant margin of about 2,000 votes after all sorts of money was poured in by the China lobby and others to defeat him. All sorts of names were hurled at Tobey then. I remember because I got smeared when I went to his support.

At the airport, everywhere around New York, everyone talked Costelloism, Kefauver, O'Dwyer, mink coats, RFC corruption, kick the rascals out. . . . A lot different from war and the preparation for war engrossing Europe. . . . Best thing about the crime probe, I thought, as my car crawled through the traffic jam, is the reaction of the people. Sometimes it's good for people to get sore, to rise up against leaders who fail to lead. . . . These are the folks who are the shock troops of the nation, the home people, the common people, the craftsmen, workmen, shopkeepers who run the race and keep the faith. They may be plain, poor, simple, but they are stubborn in safeguarding the great ideals of decency, and their wrathy reaction to corruption in high places is healthier, more effective than an army of policemen. . . . Truth may desert the high places. Political laziness may engulf the Justice Department, but when you have a great army of plain people holding the front line for clean living, I am not worried about the future. . . . That is the greatest asset of America. . . . That is the most important reaction I got upon returning to the U.S.A.

Inside Senator Kefauver

Since Estes Kefauver has been exposing other people, here is a little exposing of Estes Kefauver. . . . His office walls are cluttered with scribbled drawings of his 7-year-old daughter. His ambition is not to deal with crime, but become an expert on the Foreign Relations Committee. . . . Yale-trained, he once wrote a book, "20th Century Congress," urging that Congress be streamlined. He even blasted his colleagues for taking expensive junkets to Alaska, Hawaii, etc., at the taxpayers expense. . . . One of the few men who ever bucked the Crump machine in Tennessee and lived politically to tell the tale. Boss Crump of Memphis pulled every trick in the bag to defeat Estes, even claimed he was a foreigner. It all backfired. Kefauver was born in Madisonville, Tenn. . . . On Kefauver's office wall also hangs a coon-skin cap in a glass case. He wore it, stumping the state against boss Crump. "My coonskin may have three rings around its tail," he told Tennesseeans, "but it doesn't have a ring through its nose."

Champion of Little Fellow

It isn't always that a crime-buster is also a trust-buster. But Kefauver's record in fighting for little business, standing up for the little fellow is about 100 per cent perfect. He dared challenge veteran Senator Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming on the Basing Point Bill, staged a bitter campaign to show what the new Basing Point Bill would do to little business—and won. . . . He was among those who had the courage to buck the big distillers and demand extension of the president's power to suspend whisky distilling until more grain was on hand to feed Europe. . . . He guided the House Small Business Committee in its fight against monopolies; showed how war concentrated more business in the hands of fewer companies. . . . In the House he campaigned to get the low-cost housing bill dislodged from the Rules Committee where it was blocked by the die-hards. . . . He voted against the big gas companies and against his Democratic friends from the southwest on the Kerr Natural Gas Bill. . . . And he championed a bill to use some of our huge food surpluses to feed underprivileged children. . . . When the senator's father came to Washington to see him sworn in, he remarked: "They used to refer to Estes as my son. Now they call me Estes' daddy. That's what makes a country better—when a son is better than his daddy."

Tennessee Economizer — When Kefauver was first elected to the Senate from the House of Representatives, he had a lot of House stationery still on hand. So to save the government money he proceeded to use up his House writing paper . . . . Fulton Lewis long ago began lambasting Kefauver. (Mrs. Lewis is the daughter of another Tennesseean, Claudius Houston, former chairman of the Republican National Committee.) . . . Nothing galls aging Senator Kenneth McKellar more than Kefauver's triumphs. McKellar did his best to defeat Kefauver, later wrote the President taking credit for swinging Tennessee for Truman. Actually he had done almost nothing . . . A great family man, Kefauver wanted a third child and when this appeared impossible, the Kefauvers adopted one. By that time the family was big enough, but Mrs. Kefauver produced an unexpected fourth . . . Estes was so busy with the crime probe in Chicago that he almost was not there for the arrival.

Quotes from the Washington Merry-Go-Round — "On the surface, Kefauver is as calm as a Sunday afternoon, but this covers a stormy spirit inside" . . . "The young Tennesseean is a liberal lawyer-economist who modes like a tornado in slow motion . . . "A tall, handsome younger edition of Cordell Hull" . . . Three-year-old David Kefauver is the only person who ever told Truman he didn't need a bodyguard. Delivering a ham at the White House with his mother, David asked the President what the circular doors in his office were for. "For the Secret Service men to come in to protect me," the President replied.....'Aw, you're a big man," blurted David, "You don't need anyone to protect you" . . . Eleanor Kefauver, daughter of the crime buster, once invited all members of her class to ride on the Tennessee float in the 1948 inaugural parade. "All the girls in my class have connections with Tennessee," she explained. When asked what connection a south American classmate had with the state, Eleanor replied: "She had to come through Tennessee to get to Washington."

MacArthur Has Right to Say What He Wishes to Enemy in Field

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, March 27—Being a military commander in behalf of the United Nations forces certainly has its handicaps. General MacArthur issues a statement saying that it is time for field officers of both sides to talk over a truce and pointing out that in any extension of the Korean war, China would be beaten, but his very statement is criticized here and abroad as indiscreet and not in keeping with U.N. instructions.

Actually General MacArthur, as field commander, has a right to say what he pleases to his enemy in the field—even to threaten and to use harsh words—if thereby he can persuade the enemy that resistance is futile and that the consequences of a prolonged war would be disastrous to the enemy.

But the reaction in some U.N. quarters and in some circles in Washington now is that MacArthur is stepping into the diplomatic area—as if forces fighting a murderous engagement are to be required to let their every maneuver be subjected to review by a debating society of diplomats. They can use bombs but not the words of a public statement to try to scare the enemy into quitting.

There have been some published reports, moreover, that the Department of State has asked the Pentagon and the White House "to curb General MacArthur's activities in the diplomatic field." These protests are alleged to have resulted from the announcement by MacArthur that he was willing to confer in the field with the North Korean army and arrange a cease fire. His statement was reported to have had diplomatic overtones and hence State Department officials were said to be miffed.

Such an impression, if correct, reflects unfavorably on the Department of State. It is hardly to be believed that any such reprimand really went from one executive Department to another. For every military commander has the right to bring about a truce without asking the diplomatic branch of the government for permission.

All these innuendoes seem always based on the theory that MacArthur and his own government are working at cross purposes—something that has been repeatedly denied by the highest authority.

Thus, last week saw the culmination of many secret conferences between the governments whose forces are engaged in Korea under General MacArthur. These conferences, held in Washington—in which all executive departments of our government participated—resulted in an attempt to formulate a new declaration of policy. London dispatches hint that such a policy revolves around the creation of a "buffer zone" north of the 38th Parallel into which neither side would go pending the outcome of diplomatic efforts to arrange a truce.

The Chinese Communists, however, probably haven't the slightest intention of resolving the U.N. dilemma by ending the fighting now. They have every advantage in not doing so. They know the U.N. is confused and divided and will not allow penetration for any substantial distance into North Korea. They know that the United States is disinclined to send additional forces to push the war far into North Korea. They know the U.N. will not allow the American general to order his air forces to bomb bases in Manchuria.

So why should the Chinese quit? The U.N. "hesitationists" who want to stick around the 38th Parallel indefinitely and then repeatedly ask the Chinese to come and negotiate are at it again. Every such invitation has been rebuffed by the Chinese, and every future invitation will be rebuffed until Russia—the master of Communist China—decides to call the whole thing off.

What General MacArthur tried to hint was that maybe some fine day will come when the U.N. may change its mind and let the bases in Manchuria be bombed so that U.N. forces could liberate all of North Korea. But even the mention of such a conjectural policy now has been frowned upon by the anonymous critics in some official quarters here. So why should the Communists alter their policy in the slightest? They think the U.N. has a bear by the tail—it can move its forces to the 38th Parallel and perhaps a little beyond but no farther.

In a few weeks bad weather will develop as it does seasonally in Korea and U.N. forces will be further handicapped and perhaps even pushed back. About all the U.N. and certain officials here in Washington seem to be doing is making MacArthur's task harder. Sooner or later, the President should clear the air for all time and indicate once more that the sacrifices being made in Korea are not going to be frittered away.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

You may have noticed, as I have, that for all her gabble about her family, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has never told us the sources of the fortune which staked her and her brother, Hall, and their dissolute father, Elliott, to the more abundant life when most of us Americans of the inferior orders were living in cold-water flats and houses or even sod-huts. On the moosejaw side of this ominous family which, insidiously, sucked our country dry and left the shell to our children, the opium trade into Canton, China, unquestionably was an important source. The denials were mere cheeps. They soon faded away into naughty silence because documentary proof exists in books, bank records and official documents in the State Department, which they can not destroy.

The Delanos, of New Bedford, Mass., were a rough and hardy crew. For their day, they may have been creditable citizens, although some of their contemporaries described the Chinese opium trade as "nefarious." They certainly were superior in enterprise command, acumen and courage. It is too bad that, out of dishonest pride, the story of the opium smuggling trade in Yankee clippers has been declouded by abusive sycophants of the family of Franklin D. After all, this belongs to history. And the living Roosevelts, who combine the worst and best elements of the two strains, should conquer their innate dishonesty about embarrassing truth and lay it on the line.

I am not a historian, but I am a reporter and I have discovered by research and by chance a mixed collection of information which must be woven into the story of this era in the life, and fate, of our great nation. The court historians whom I have read, seem to me to have been servile. They do not reject the information which fills in the story. They pretend that it does not exist. That is a betrayal of trust, but it will fail. Someone, some Harry Elmer Barnes, some unknown, studious, dogged writer, will use this information, these facts, one day and a book will issue, if only for the library shelves, about these hidden but significant details of the life, the morals, wealth and character of this family.

This is one of the few great families in the history of the world. Bad, monstrous, yes! But historically great!

From time to time I am scolded because it seems to postmasters and ignorant high school principals that I am determined to trouble the repose of Frank D. Roosevelt. I doubt that he could be troubled by anything that anyone might write about him here. That objection is usually found in crude, abusive vox pop columns of our smaller cities. They are very earthy and often libelous. One is a jackal, a hyena, devouring the dead. One is insensitive to the minimum ethics of humanity. But one must go ahead, lest the historical truth escape.

Think you! We have had two Presidents Roosevelt who served, altogether, almost 20 years, or about two-fifths of the first half of the 20th century. There are

SCHUMAN PLAN FOR EUROPE

Six nations stand on the verge of an historic step toward European economic unity. Their representatives already have initiated the bold Schuman plan. If foreign ministers and parliaments ratify the action, the plan will take effect.

It is a treaty for the pooling of all coal and steel facilities in France, Western Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. Nothing like it has ever before been seriously contemplated in Europe.

If the Schuman plan works, barriers to the free flow of coal and steel will be knocked down in the six countries. Rigid national cartels—groupings to fix prices and production quotas—will be wiped out. A free market featuring free competition will replace them.

The coal and steel industries of the participating nations would be governed by new international institutions. The high hope is that this proposed integration would boost production, improve and enlarge productive facilities, raise living standards in these countries.

Not to be overlooked is the prospect that this economic integration could serve as a preliminary to broader unity in the European economy, and as a basis for ultimate military and political unification.

The old European habit of living within a national shell will not die easily. It would be foolhardy to expect too much of this beginning effort, or to ignore the practical difficulties of the treaty's application. But unquestionably it deserves to be hailed as a courageous and constructive act of statesmanship.

The original credit goes to Robert Schuman, who as French foreign minister conceived the plan last May. But the real spadework has been done by Jean Monnet, chairman of France's delegation to the treaty-drafting conference. He has toiled long and devotedly to achieve this momentous objective.

The Schuman plan, if ratified, will be in force for fifty years at least. It will provide, too, the first great postwar test of Western Germany's intentions. In this treaty the Germans have been invited to become peace-loving, respectable members of the European family. The world will watch closely to see how they perform in this somewhat unaccustomed role.

As we've noted, the French had to be brave to volunteer the shelving of their ancient feud with Germany. They are breaking with the past and projecting a future for Europe along wholly new lines. Federation is proposed as the real way to end feuding.

The Schuman plan is open to all comers, especially to Britain, which is strong in coal and steel. Thus far the British have held aloof, fearing to handicap their insulated Socialist economy by entanglements on the continent. The French example ought to embarrass them considerably.

But this is no time for carping criticism. The occasion calls for warm expressions of satisfaction that there are men in this troubled era with the courage and imagination to attempt so striking an advance toward solving Europe's economic ills. Every lover of freedom and peace should hope the Schuman plan is ratified—and that it works.

GERMAN UNITY

The German people are coming out of their post-war lethargy and clamoring for the re-establishment of their identity as a nation.

A report from Frankfort tells of the "fervor and passion" with which the members of the Pundestag in special session passed a resolution demanding a unified Germany. Free elections throughout Germany are demanded as a basis for unification. Soviet puppets in power in East Germany have long been plugging for unity, but hardly on such a basis. That "Unity in Freedom," the watchword for the West German government, may mean one thing to its sponsors and another to the East German authorities is the fear of those now under the yoke of the Soviet.

The German states never attained strength until they were unified by Bismarck, a fact of which Germans today are doubtless fully cognizant. Their national strength, when attained, was focussed on world conquest, with disastrous results. Americans hope that if their "unity in freedom" is finally gained, the resulting force will be applied in peaceful ways.

'These Days'

INDEPENDENCE HALL

One Sunday recently, I took my children to Philadelphia to look at Independence Hall, the Liberty Bell, and other historic evidences of the founding of our country enshrined in that building. I think that parents would strengthen their children's love of country if they, even for once in their lives, walked the floor upon which Washington and Jefferson and Franklin stood on the occasion of the founding of this country. It gives one a feeling of continuity, of belonging to a grand tradition. It relates one to the great spiritual strength of America.

I was, however, disappointed by the environment. The streets are narrow and shabby. There is a little park in front of the building, but not an impressive one. My little girl wanted to see Betsy Ross's house, where our first national flag was sewn, and we drove through narrow Arch street where we stopped in front of 239. The house is buried in a mass of buildings and is perhaps best recognized by a replica of our first flag that hangs on a pole from it.

We wanted to see where Benjamin Franklin was buried in the Christ Church Cemetery and even to enter Christ Church itself, but parking was difficult. Yet it was in that church that the fathers of our country prayed for guidance on those occasions when they wrote the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution.

I am told that a plan is afoot to turn this invaluable historic area into a national historical park. Since January 1 of this year, Independence Hall and the group of historic buildings adjacent to it are under the national park service of the Department of the Interior.

More than that is necessary to preserve these monuments. They should be restored. Independence Hall, for instance, needs a coat of paint on the interior walls. Peeling ceilings are not impressive, particularly to young children. Could not the grand dining room of this building, which also served as a hospital, be restored, so that when the hall is visited, children can see, in their keen imaginations, the great figures who risked their lives that this might be a nation of free men?

With all the billions of dollars that the United States has been spending all over the world for every variety of boondoggling, why has nothing been done until now to restore the entire area, from Spruce to Arch street, from Second to Sixth street, into a shrine to American patriotism? I look at a map of the "Independence National Historical Park project" and I cannot help wondering why it is still a project after 175 years. Why do we have to wait to do the fine things when we can waste so much on the meaningless?

Are Americans so lacking in sentiment, or impotent in their love of tradition that it has taken them this long to rescue the most sacred spot in all this country from obscurity and vandalism? How shall we instill in our children the ideals of our nation if we fail to show any interest in our national monuments?

In a way, I must say that I came away hurt, because my children, who said it was all wonderful, betrayed their own disillusionment. The rooms were so bare. They had been to Plymouth where they saw the Pilgrims' houses and Plymouth Rock. They have not yet been to Williamsburg in Virginia or to the Lincoln Shrine in New Salem, Illinois.

When they are taken to those places, their imagination will road among living things. Here at Independence Hall that feeling of the living is missing and children must have that if they are to understand the quality of a place.

No millions are too many to spend upon a complete restoration of this area, until an American child can see in his mind's eye the grand flourish of John Hancock's pen and the aged Benjamin Franklin being assisted to his seat, and the philosophic Thomas Jefferson writing: "When in the course of human events . . . " and realize that it was to this place that George Washington rode to assume a leadership that is never to be forgotten.

Perhaps if we made much of our national shrines and brought our children to them, they would be more truly bound, in these queer and disconcerting days, to our great national traditions.

That Body of Yours

WRONG POSTURE

A recent newspaper story told of a young bandit who entered a drugstore and while being served, quietly pointed a revolver at the proprietor and demanded the contents of the till. The druggist handed it over and the bandit quietly left the store. During this whole procedure two messenger boys lay on the floor reading the comics and were so intent thereon that they saw or heard nothing of the holdup and theft.

While this story illustrates primarily the boys' complete absorption in the reading of the comics, it touches on another point in which parents should be greatly interested, that is, that keeping the body in the same position for long periods of time can affect the shape and growth of the body.

In The Medical Journal of Australia, Dr. Jean Macnamara (Melbourne) mentions two basic principles which are helpful in viewing this problem in young persons: (1) The form of any living, growing thing is determined by inheritance, nutrition and position habitually assumed; (2) habitual position is most potent in altering the line of growth from that which was expected by inheritance in early life during periods of rapid growth and when nutrition is poor. Approximately this would be from ages of 9 or 10 to the teen ages.

A favorite position of children when lying face down to read is to rest the weight of the head on the palm of the hand. Thus weight is transmitted through the forearm to the elbow which rests on the floor or bed. The palm is pressed firmly against the bone of the cheek. This position causes a distortion of one half of the upper jaw—the dental condition known as crossed bite.

In addition to causing a deformity of the teeth and face, it can easily be seen how this position, with head held high, leads to curvature forward of the lower part of the spine or "sway back" as it is popularly called. Sway back in children very often persists into manhood and womanhood, making necessary snug fitting corsets for women to give lower back support and a better carriage, and lessening the appearance if not the actual size of the protruding abdomen in men.

Sway back is a common cause of sciatica and low back pain. Watch the posture of the child; this may prevent deformities of face and body.

The Red Herring

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—Random reactions of a citizen returning to the U.S.A.—Stepping off a Pan American Clipper in New York the other day I immediately got tangled in a traffic jam. But the traffic jam seemed good . . . In Communist Yugoslavia I couldn't find a taxi to drive from the station in Belgrade to the hotel (this in the capital of Yugoslavia.) I had to take a horse-drawn carriage . . . at Idlewild Airport I also stepped in front of a customs inspector who said: "Things have been happening while you were away. A guy named Kefauver has taken this town by storm. We don't get much work done watching him. That fellow Tobey and his eyeshade isn't so bad either. He's saying a lot of things the American people would like to say." . . . Tobey, I recalled, was the Republican who squeaked through the New Hampshire primary by the scant margin of about 2,000 votes after all sorts of money was poured in by the China lobby and others to defeat him. All sorts of names were hurled at Tobey then. I remember because I got smeared when I went to his support.

At the airport, everywhere around New York, everyone talked Costelloism, Kefauver, O'Dwyer, mink coats, RFC corruption, kick the rascals out. . . . A lot different from war and the preparation for war engrossing Europe. . . . Best thing about the crime probe, I thought, as my car crawled through the traffic jam, is the reaction of the people. Sometimes it's good for people to get sore, to rise up against leaders who fail to lead. . . . These are the folks who are the shock troops of the nation, the home people, the common people, the craftsmen, workmen, shopkeepers who run the race and keep the faith. They may be plain, poor, simple, but they are stubborn in safeguarding the great ideals of decency, and their wrathy reaction to corruption in high places is healthier, more effective than an army of policemen. . . . Truth may desert the high places. Political laziness may engulf the Justice Department, but when you have a great army of plain people holding the front line for clean living, I am not worried about the future. . . . That is the greatest asset of America. . . . That is the most important reaction I got upon returning to the U.S.A.

Inside Senator Kefauver

Since Estes Kefauver has been exposing other people, here is a little exposing of Estes Kefauver. . . . His office walls are cluttered with scribbled drawings of his 7-year-old daughter. His ambition is not to deal with crime, but become an expert on the Foreign Relations Committee. . . . Yale-trained, he once wrote a book, "20th Century Congress," urging that Congress be streamlined. He even blasted his colleagues for taking expensive junkets to Alaska, Hawaii, etc., at the taxpayers expense. . . . One of the few men who ever bucked the Crump machine in Tennessee and lived politically to tell the tale. Boss Crump of Memphis pulled every trick in the bag to defeat Estes, even claimed he was a foreigner. It all backfired. Kefauver was born in Madisonville, Tenn. . . . On Kefauver's office wall also hangs a coon-skin cap in a glass case. He wore it, stumping the state against boss Crump. "My coonskin may have three rings around its tail," he told Tennesseans, "but it doesn't have a ring through its nose."

Champion of Little Fellow

It isn't always that a crime-buster is also a trust-buster. But Kefauver's record in fighting for little business, standing up for the little fellow is about 100 per cent perfect. He dared challenge veteran Senator Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming on the Basing Point Bill, staged a bitter campaign to show what the new Basing Point Bill would do to little business—and won. . . . He was among those who had the courage to buck the big distillers and demand extension of the president's power to suspend whisky distilling until more grain was on hand to feed Europe. . . . He guided the House Small Business Committee in its fight against monopolies; showed how war concentrated more business in the hands of fewer companies. . . . In the House he campaigned to get the low-cost housing bill dislodged from the Rules Committee where it was blocked by the die-hards. . . . He voted against the big gas companies and against his Democratic friends from the southwest on the Kerr Natural Gas Bill. . . . And he championed a bill to use some of our huge food surpluses to feed underprivileged children. . . . When the senator's father came to Washington to see him sworn in, he remarked: "They used to refer to Estes as my son. Now they call me Estes' daddy. That's what makes a country better—when a son is better than his daddy."

Tennessee Economizer — When Kefauver was first elected to the Senate from the House of Representatives, he had a lot of House stationery still on hand. So to save the government money he proceeded to use up his House writing paper . . . . Fulton Lewis long ago began lambasting Kefauver. (Mrs. Lewis is the daughter of another Tennesseean, Claudius Houston, former chairman of the Republican National Committee.) . . . Nothing galls aging Senator Kenneth McKellar more than Kefauver's triumphs. McKellar did his best to defeat Kefauver, later wrote the President taking credit for swinging Tennessee for Truman. Actually he had done almost nothing . . . A great family man, Kefauver wanted a third child and when this appeared impossible, the Kefauvers adopted one. By that time the family was big enough, but Mrs. Kefauver produced an unexpected fourth . . . Estes was so busy with the crime probe in Chicago that he almost was not there for the arrival.

Quotes from the Washington Merry-Go-Round — "On the surface, Kefauver is as calm as a Sunday afternoon, but this covers a stormy spirit inside" . . . "The young Tennesseean is a liberal lawyer-economist who modes like a tornado in slow motion . . . "A tall, handsome younger edition of Cordell Hull" . . . Three-year-old David Kefauver is the only person who ever told Truman he didn't need a bodyguard. Delivering a ham at the White House with his mother, David asked the President what the circular doors in his office were for. "For the Secret Service men to come in to protect me," the President replied. . . . "Aw, you're a big man," blurted David, "You don't need anyone to protect you" . . . Eleanor Kefauver, daughter of the crime buster, once invited all members of her class to ride on the Tennessee float in the 1948 inaugural parade. "All the girls in my class have connections with Tennessee," she explained. When asked what connection a south American classmate had with the state, Eleanor replied: "She had to come through Tennessee to get to Washington."

But even the mention of such a conjectural policy now has been frowned upon by the anonymous critics in some official quarters here. So why should the Communists alter their policy in the slightest? They think the U.N. has a bear by the tail—it can move its forces to the 38th Parallel and perhaps a little beyond but no farther.

In a few weeks bad weather will develop as it does seasonally in Korea and U.N. forces will be further handicapped and perhaps even pushed back. About all the U.N. and certain officials here in Washington seem to be doing is making MacArthur's task harder. Sooner or later, the President should clear the air for all time and indicate once more that the sacrifices being made in Korea are not going to be frittered away.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

You may have noticed, as I have, that for all her gabble about her family, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has never told us the sources of the fortune which staked her and her brother, Hall, and their dissolute father, Elliott, to the more abundant life when most of us Americans of the inferior orders were living in cold-water flats and houses or even sod-huts. On the moosejaw side of this ominous family which, insidiously, sucked our country dry and left the shell to our children, the opium trade into Canton, China, unquestionably was an important source. The denials were mere cheeps. They soon faded away into naughty silence because documentary proof exists in books, bank records and official documents in the State Department, which they can not destroy.

The Delanos, of New Bedford, Mass., were a rough and hardy crew. For their day, they may have been creditable citizens, although some of their contemporaries described the Chinese opium trade as "nefarious." They certainly were superior in enterprise command, acumen and courage. It is too bad that, out of dishonest pride, the story of the opium smuggling trade in Yankee clippers has been declouded by abusive sycophants of the family of Franklin D. After all, this belongs to history. And the living Roosevelts, who combine the worst and best elements of the two strains, should conquer their innate dishonesty about embarrassing truth and lay it on the line.

I am not a historian, but I am a reporter and I have discovered by research and by chance a mixed collection of information which must be woven into the story of this era in the life, and fate, of our great nation. The court historians whom I have read, seem to me to have been servile. They do not reject the information which fills in the story. They pretend that it does not exist. That is a betrayal of trust, but it will fail. Someone, some Harry Elmer Barnes, some unknown, studious, dogged writer, will use this information, these facts, one day and a book will issue, if only for the library shelves, about these hidden but significant details of the life, the morals, wealth and character of this family.

This is one of the few great families in the history of the world. Bad, monstrous, yes! But historically great!

From time to time I am scolded because it seems to postmasters and ignorant high school principals that I am determined to trouble the repose of Frank D. Roosevelt. I doubt that he could be troubled by anything that anyone might write about him here. That objection is usually found in crude, abusive vox pop columns of our smaller cities. They are very earthy and often libelous. One is a jackal, a hyena, devouring the dead. One is insensitive to the minimum ethics of humanity. But one must go ahead, lest the historical truth escape.

Think you! We have had two Presidents Roosevelt who served, altogether, almost 20 years, or about two-fifths of the first half of the 20th century. There are

SCHUMAN PLAN FOR EUROPE

Six nations stand on the verge of an historic step toward European economic unity. Their representatives already have initiated the bold Schuman plan. If foreign ministers and parliaments ratify the action, the plan will take effect.

It is a treaty for the pooling of all coal and steel facilities in France, Western Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. Nothing like it has ever before been seriously contemplated in Europe.

If the Schuman plan works, barriers to the free flow of coal and steel will be knocked down in the six countries. Rigid national cartels—groupings to fix prices and production quotas—will be wiped out. A free market featuring free competition will replace them.

The coal and steel industries of the participating nations would be governed by new international institutions. The high hope is that this proposed integration would boost production, improve and enlarge productive facilities, raise living standards in these countries.

Not to be overlooked is the prospect that this economic integration could serve as a preliminary to broader unity in the European economy, and as a basis for ultimate military and political unification.

The old European habit of living within a national shell will not die easily. It would be foolhardy to expect too much of this beginning effort, or to ignore the practical difficulties of the treaty's application. But unquestionably it deserves to be hailed as a courageous and constructive act of statesmanship.

The original credit goes to Robert Schuman, who as French foreign minister conceived the plan last May. But the real spadework has been done by Jean Monnet, chairman of France's delegation to the treaty-drafting conference. He has toiled long and devotedly to achieve this momentous objective.

The Schuman plan, if ratified, will be in force for fifty years at least. It will provide, too, the first great postwar test of Western Germany's intentions. In this treaty the Germans have been invited to become peace-loving, respectable members of the European family. The world will watch closely to see how they perform in this somewhat unaccustomed role.

As we've noted, the French had to be brave to volunteer the shelving of their ancient feud with Germany. They are breaking with the past and projecting a future for Europe along wholly new lines. Federation is proposed as the real way to end feuding.

The Schuman plan is open to all comers, especially to Britain, which is strong in coal and steel. Thus far the British have held aloof, fearing to handicap their insulated Socialist economy by entanglements on the continent. The French example ought to embarrass them considerably.

But this is no time for carping criticism. The occasion calls for warm expressions of satisfaction that there are men in this troubled era with the courage and imagination to attempt so striking an advance toward solving Europe's economic ills. Every lover of freedom and peace should hope the Schuman plan is ratified—and that it works.

GERMAN UNITY

The German people are coming out of their post-war lethargy and clamoring for the re-establishment of their identity as a nation.

A report from Frankfort tells of the "fervor and passion" with which the members of the Pundestag in special session passed a resolution demanding a unified Germany. Free elections throughout Germany are demanded as a basis for unification. Soviet puppets in power in East Germany have long been plugging for unity, but hardly on such a basis. That "Unity in Freedom," the watchword for the West German government, may mean one thing to its sponsors and another to the East German authorities is the fear of those now under the yoke of the Soviet.

The German states never attained strength until they were unified by Bismarck, a fact of which Germans today are doubtless fully cognizant. Their national strength, when attained, was focussed on world conquest, with disastrous results. Americans hope that if their "unity in freedom" is finally gained, the resulting force will be applied in peaceful ways.

'These Days'

INDEPENDENCE HALL

One Sunday recently, I took my children to Philadelphia to look at Independence Hall, the Liberty Bell, and other historic evidences of the founding of our country enshrined in that building. I think that parents would strengthen their children's love of country if they, even for once in their lives, walked the floor upon which Washington and Jefferson and Franklin stood on the occasion of the founding of this country. It gives one a feeling of continuity, of belonging to a grand tradition. It relates one to the great spiritual strength of America.

I was, however, disappointed by the environment. The streets are narrow and shabby. There is a little park in front of the building, but not an impressive one. My little girl wanted to see Betsy Ross's house, where our first national flag was sewn, and we drove through narrow Arch street where we stopped in front of 239. The house is buried in a mass of buildings and is perhaps best recognized by a replica of our first flag that hangs on a pole from it.

We wanted to see where Benjamin Franklin was buried in the Christ Church Cemetery and even to enter Christ Church itself, but parking was difficult. Yet it was in that church that the fathers of our country prayed for guidance on those occasions when they wrote the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution.

I am told that a plan is afoot to turn this invaluable historic area into a national historical park. Since January 1 of this year, Independence Hall and the group of historic buildings adjacent to it are under the national park service of the Department of the Interior.

More than that is necessary to preserve these monuments. They should be restored. Independence Hall, for instance, needs a coat of paint on the interior walls. Peeling ceilings are not impressive, particularly to young children. Could not the grand dining room of this building, which also served as a hospital, be restored, so that when the hall is visited, children can see, in their keen imaginations, the great figures who risked their lives that this might be a nation of free men?

With all the billions of dollars that the United States has been spending all over the world for every variety of boondoggling, why has nothing been done until now to restore the entire area, from Spruce to Arch street, from Second to Sixth street, into a shrine to American patriotism? I look at a map of the "Independence National Historical Park project" and I cannot help wondering why it is still a project after 175 years. Why do we have to wait to do the fine things when we can waste so much on the meaningless?

Are Americans so lacking in sentiment, or impotent in their love of tradition that it has taken them this long to rescue the most sacred spot in all this country from obscurity and vandalism? How shall we instill in our children the ideals of our nation if we fail to show any interest in our national monuments?

In a way, I must say that I came away hurt, because my children, who said it was all wonderful, betrayed their own disillusionment. The rooms were so bare. They had been to Plymouth where they saw the Pilgrims' houses and Plymouth Rock. They have not yet been to Williamsburg in Virginia or to the Lincoln Shrine in New Salem, Illinois.

When they are taken to those places, their imagination will road among living things. Here at Independence Hall that feeling of the living is missing and children must have that if they are to understand the quality of a place.

No millions are too many to spend upon a complete restoration of this area, until an American child can see in his mind's eye the grand flourish of John Hancock's pen and the aged Benjamin Franklin being assisted to his seat, and the philosophic Thomas Jefferson writing: "When in the course of human events . . . " and realize that it was to this place that George Washington rode to assume a leadership that is never to be forgotten.

Perhaps if we made much of our national shrines and brought our children to them, they would be more truly bound, in these queer and disconcerting days, to our great national traditions.

That Body of Yours

WRONG POSTURE

A recent newspaper story told of a young bandit who entered a drugstore and while being served, quietly pointed a revolver at the proprietor and demanded the contents of the till. The druggist handed it over and the bandit quietly left the store. During this whole procedure two messenger boys lay on the floor reading the comics and were so intent thereon that they saw or heard nothing of the holdup and theft.

While this story illustrates primarily the boys' complete absorption in the reading of the comics, it touches on another point in which parents should be greatly interested, that is, that keeping the body in the same position for long periods of time can affect the shape and growth of the body.

In The Medical Journal of Australia, Dr. Jean Macnamara (Melbourne) mentions two basic principles which are helpful in viewing this problem in young persons: (1) The form of any living, growing thing is determined by inheritance, nutrition and position habitually assumed; (2) habitual position is most potent in altering the line of growth from that which was expected by inheritance in early life during periods of rapid growth and when nutrition is poor. Approximately this would be from ages of 9 or 10 to the teen ages.

A favorite position of children when lying face down to read is to rest the weight of the head on the palm of the hand. Thus weight is transmitted through the forearm to the elbow which rests on the floor or bed. The palm is pressed firmly against the bone of the cheek. This position causes a distortion of one half of the upper jaw—the dental condition known as crossed bite.

In addition to causing a deformity of the teeth and face, it can easily be seen how this position, with head held high, leads to curvature forward of the lower part of the spine or "sway back" as it is popularly called. Sway back in children very often persists into manhood and womanhood, making necessary snug fitting corsets for women to give lower back support and a better carriage, and lessening the appearance if not the actual size of the protruding abdomen in men.

Sway back is a common cause of sciatica and low back pain. Watch the posture of the child; this may prevent deformities of face and body.

The Red Herring

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—Random reactions of a citizen returning to the U.S.A.—Stepping off a Pan American Clipper in New York the other day I immediately got tangled in a traffic jam. But the traffic jam seemed good . . . In Communist Yugoslavia I couldn't find a taxi to drive from the station in Belgrade to the hotel (this in the capital of Yugoslavia.) I had to take a horse-drawn carriage . . . at Idlewild Airport I also stepped in front of a customs inspector who said: "Things have been happening while you were away. A guy named Kefauver has taken this town by storm. We don't get much work done watching him. That fellow Tobey and his eyeshade isn't so bad either. He's saying a lot of things the American people would like to say." . . . Tobey, I recalled, was the Republican who squeaked through the New Hampshire primary by the scant margin of about 2,000 votes after all sorts of money was poured in by the China lobby and others to defeat him. All sorts of names were hurled at Tobey then. I remember because I got smeared when I went to his support.

At the airport, everywhere around New York, everyone talked Costelloism, Kefauver, O'Dwyer, mink coats, RFC corruption, kick the rascals out. . . . A lot different from war and the preparation for war engrossing Europe. . . . Best thing about the crime probe, I thought, as my car crawled through the traffic jam, is the reaction of the people. Sometimes it's good for people to get sore, to rise up against leaders who fail to lead. . . . These are the folks who are the shock troops of the nation, the home people, the common people, the craftsmen, workmen, shopkeepers who run the race and keep the faith. They may be plain, poor, simple, but they are stubborn in safeguarding the great ideals of decency, and their wrathy reaction to corruption in high places is healthier, more effective than an army of policemen. . . . Truth may desert the high places. Political laziness may engulf the Justice Department, but when you have a great army of plain people holding the front line for clean living, I am not worried about the future. . . . That is the greatest asset of America. . . . That is the most important reaction I got upon returning to the U.S.A.

Inside Senator Kefauver

Since Estes Kefauver has been exposing other people, here is a little exposing of Estes Kefauver. . . . His office walls are cluttered with scribbled drawings of his 7-year-old daughter. His ambition is not to deal with crime, but become an expert on the Foreign Relations Committee. . . . Yale-trained, he once wrote a book, "20th Century Congress," urging that Congress be streamlined. He even blasted his colleagues for taking expensive junkets to Alaska, Hawaii, etc., at the taxpayers expense. . . . One of the few men who ever bucked the Crump machine in Tennessee and lived politically to tell the tale. Boss Crump of Memphis pulled every trick in the bag to defeat Estes, even claimed he was a foreigner. It all backfired. Kefauver was born in Madisonville, Tenn. . . . On Kefauver's office wall also hangs a coon-skin cap in a glass case. He wore it, stumping the state against boss Crump. "My coonskin may have three rings around its tail," he told Tennesseeans, "but it doesn't have a ring through its nose."

Champion of Little Fellow

It isn't always that a crime-buster is also a trust-buster. But Kefauver's record in fighting for little business, standing up for the little fellow is about 100 per cent perfect. He dared challenge veteran Senator Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming on the Basing Point Bill, staged a bitter campaign to show what the new Basing Point Bill would do to little business—and won. . . . He was among those who had the courage to buck the big distillers and demand extension of the president's power to suspend whisky distilling until more grain was on hand to feed Europe. . . . He guided the House Small Business Committee in its fight against monopolies; showed how war concentrated more business in the hands of fewer companies. . . . In the House he campaigned to get the low-cost housing bill dislodged from the Rules Committee where it was blocked by the die-hards. . . . He voted against the big gas companies and against his Democratic friends from the southwest on the Kerr Natural Gas Bill. . . . And he championed a bill to use some of our huge food surpluses to feed underprivileged children. . . . When the senator's father came to Washington to see him sworn in, he remarked: "They used to refer to Estes as my son. Now they call me Estes' daddy. That's what makes a country better—when a son is better than his daddy."

Tennessee Economizer — When Kefauver was first elected to the Senate from the House of Representatives, he had a lot of House stationery still on hand. So to save the government money he proceeded to use up his House writing paper . . . . Fulton Lewis long ago began lambasting Kefauver. (Mrs. Lewis is the daughter of another Tennesseean, Claudius Houston, former chairman of the Republican National Committee.) . . . Nothing galls aging Senator Kenneth McKellar more than Kefauver's triumphs. McKellar did his best to defeat Kefauver, later wrote the President taking credit for swinging Tennessee for Truman. Actually he had done almost nothing . . . A great family man, Kefauver wanted a third child and when this appeared impossible, the Kefauvers adopted one. By that time the family was big enough, but Mrs. Kefauver produced an unexpected fourth . . . Estes was so busy with the crime probe in Chicago that he almost was not there for the arrival.

Quotes from the Washington Merry-Go-Round — "On the surface, Kefauver is as calm as a Sunday afternoon, but this covers a stormy spirit inside" . . . "The young Tennesseean is a liberal lawyer-economist who modes like a tornado in slow motion . . . "A tall, handsome younger edition of Cordell Hull" . . . Three-year-old David Kefauver is the only person who ever told Truman he didn't need a bodyguard. Delivering a ham at the White House with his mother, David asked the President what the circular doors in his office were for. "For the Secret Service men to come in to protect me," the President replied. . . . "Aw, you're a big man," blurted David, "You don't need anyone to protect you" . . . Eleanor Kefauver, daughter of the crime buster, once invited all members of her class to ride on the Tennessee float in the 1948 inaugural parade. "All the girls in my class have connections with Tennessee," she explained. When asked what connection a south American classmate had with the state, Eleanor replied: "She had to come through Tennessee to get to Washington."

The Golden Domes of Kadimain

The Golden Domes of the Mosque of Kadimain in Bagdad, the city of the Arabian Nights, which is now in Iraq are covered with golden plate one inch thick. It contains 3768 cubic inches of gold, worth $1,300,000 at the United States Treasury. The Mosque was built over the tomb of two Imams (Holy Men) one of whom was interred here in 802 and the other in 832. Kadimain means "The Two Kadims" (Servants of God).

MacArthur Has Right to Say What He Wishes to Enemy in Field

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, March 27—Being a military commander in behalf of the United Nations forces certainly has its handicaps. General MacArthur issues a statement saying that it is time for field officers of both sides to talk over a truce and pointing out that in any extension of the Korean war, China would be beaten, but his very statement is criticized here and abroad as indiscreet and not in keeping with U.N. instructions.

Actually General MacArthur, as field commander, has a right to say what he pleases to his enemy in the field—even to threaten and to use harsh words—if thereby he can persuade the enemy that resistance is futile and that the consequences of a prolonged war would be disastrous to the enemy.

But the reaction in some U.N. quarters and in some circles in Washington now is that MacArthur is stepping into the diplomatic area—as if forces fighting a murderous engagement are to be required to let their every maneuver be subjected to review by a debating society of diplomats. They can use bombs but not the words of a public statement to try to scare the enemy into quitting.

There have been some published reports, moreover, that the Department of State has asked the Pentagon and the White House "to curb General MacArthur's activities in the diplomatic field." These protests are alleged to have resulted from the announcement by MacArthur that he was willing to confer in the field with the North Korean army and arrange a cease fire. His statement was reported to have had diplomatic overtones and hence State Department officials were said to be miffed.

Such an impression, if correct, reflects unfavorably on the Department of State. It is hardly to be believed that any such reprimand really went from one executive Department to another. For every military commander has the right to bring about a truce without asking the diplomatic branch of the government for permission.

All these innuendoes seem always based on the theory that MacArthur and his own government are working at cross purposes—something that has been repeatedly denied by the highest authority.

Thus, last week saw the culmination of many secret conferences between the governments whose forces are engaged in Korea under General MacArthur. These conferences, held in Washington—in which all executive departments of our government participated—resulted in an attempt to formulate a new declaration of policy. London dispatches hint that such a policy revolves around the creation of a "buffer zone" north of the 38th Parallel into which neither side would go pending the outcome of diplomatic efforts to arrange a truce.

The Chinese Communists, however, probably haven't the slightest intention of resolving the U.N. dilemma by ending the fighting now. They have every advantage in not doing so. They know the U.N. is confused and divided and will not allow penetration for any substantial distance into North Korea. They know that the United States is disinclined to send additional forces to push the war far into North Korea. They know the U.N. will not allow the American general to order his air forces to bomb bases in Manchuria.

So why should the Chinese quit? The U.N. "hesitationists" who want to stick around the 38th Parallel indefinitely and then repeatedly ask the Chinese to come and negotiate are at it again. Every such invitation has been rebuffed by the Chinese, and every future invitation will be rebuffed until Russia—the master of Communist China—decides to call the whole thing off.

What General MacArthur tried to hint was that maybe some fine day will come when the U.N. may change its mind and let the bases in Manchuria be bombed so that U.N. forces could liberate all of North Korea. But even the mention of such a conjectural policy now has been frowned upon by the anonymous critics in some official quarters here. So why should the Communists alter their policy in the slightest? They think the U.N. has a bear by the tail—it can move its forces to the 38th Parallel and perhaps a little beyond but no farther.

In a few weeks bad weather will develop as it does seasonally in Korea and U.N. forces will be further handicapped and perhaps even pushed back. About all the U.N. and certain officials here in Washington seem to be doing is making MacArthur's task harder. Sooner or later, the President should clear the air for all time and indicate once more that the sacrifices being made in Korea are not going to be frittered away.

Sanford Honored By City Firemen; Presented Ring

Deputy Fire Chief Harold A. Sanford was honored for his 25 year's service with the Kingston Fire Department at a banquet Monday night at Thomas DeCicco's tavern on High street.

A gold ring with the three-trumpet insignia of a deputy chief was presented to Sanford by Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy on behalf of Uniformed Firemen's Association Local 461.

Department dignitaries and city officials present included Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk; the Rev. Frank Lawrence Gollnick, department chaplain; Fire Commissioners Henry F. Kelsch and Charles Derrenbacher; and Deputy Chief George Matthews, as well as Chief Murphy and Deputy Sanford.

Fireman Howard Whitaker, vice president of Local 461, was banquet committee chairman and acted as toastmaster. Other members of his committee were Firemen James Hutton and Fred Williams. About 30 off-duty members of the department attended. Also present was John Hoffman, a retired fireman.

First Banquet

The banquet was the first such occasion sponsored by the local UFA to honor one of its members. Robert Hardwick, president of the local, was unable to be present because he was on duty Monday night. Other officers of the local include Whitaker, vice president; Frank Hornbeck, secretary, and Philip Maines, treasurer.

Sanford was appointed to the fire department on February 1, 1926. He became a deputy chief on May 1, 1941 and a state fire instructor in 1949. Active in Red Cross work as first aid instructor, he has been chairman of the chapter's first aid committee since 1943. In accepting the ring, Sanford said he could look back on the past 25 years as a "real pleasure" because of the good fellowship on the department and the cooperation he has received since his appointment as deputy chief.

In making the presentation, Chief Murphy commended the deputy chief for his interest in the job shown by his continuing study of new methods and materials in firefighting and his service as instructor to volunteer firemen. The chief noted that Sanford was scheduled to leave Tuesday morning for Utica to attend a session of the state fire school for instructors. The chief told the firemen that the best way for them to "sell themselves" to the citizens and officials of the city is by "doing a good job" in protecting the city from fire loss.

Among the congratulations received by Sanford was a telegram from Fireman Joseph Disch, who was unable to attend due to illness.

Slated to Leave

Camp Kilmer, N. J., March 27 (AP)—The first contingent of European-bound soldiers from this newly reactivated embarkation base are slated to leave for Bremerhaven, Germany today. The troops, 98 officers and 500 enlisted men, will board ships in New York for their overseas destination.

Not Burglar Proof

Long Beach, Calif., March 27 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's personal armored car is not burglar proof. Someone stole $175 from its trunk compartment, Harry K. Arslan of Chicago, showing the car on a nationwide tour, told police yesterday.

Free Rides Given

Buffalo, N. Y., March 27 (AP)—The Niagara Frontier Transit System said yesterday it gave 217,476 free bus rides to persons going to church services during Lent.

Car Seller Robbed, Cuffed to Tree

Huntington, N. Y., March 27 (AP)—A New York man who wanted to sell his automobile was held up, robbed and handcuffed around a tree near here last night by a man who posed as a purchaser.

Sidney Weiser, 30, was found by police after shouting for help for an hour and a half.

Weiser said he had advertised his 1949 automobile for sale. A prospective client answered the ad and asked for a demonstration.

Weiser said he and the likely buyer decided to take a ride on Grand Central Parkway. Soon after entering Nassau county, Weiser said, the man pulled a gun.

After forcing him to drive 25 miles to Huntington in Suffolk county, Weiser said, the man made him turn off to a sideroad. There the man took from him $40, legal papers relating to the car, and the auto itself.

Then he made Weiser hug a tree, handcuffed him in that position, and drove off.

Law Student Flunks Course—Wrong Zone

Pittsfield, Mass., March 27 (AP)—Eugene Peters, 21, of Ashtabula, Ohio, a law student at Butler University, "flunked" a course in district court yesterday because of a small oversight.

The youth produced an involved mathematical formula designed to refute the testimony of police that he was driving 60 miles an hour.

Judge Charles Alberti interrupted presentation of the formula to ask:

"Just what is it your formula will prove?"

Peter replied: "It will prove that I was going 33 to 35 miles an hour, not 40 or 60."

"Well," replied the judge, "you've flunked this law course. $10 fine."

Cut-Off Study Ruling Exempts Some Veterans

The "cut-off" date of July 25 for veterans' education and training does not apply to disabled World War 2 veterans studying under Public Law 16 nor to those disabled since June 27, 1950, John E. Delehanty of the Kingston Veterans Administration office said today.

The cut-off date applies, however, to most veterans studying under the G.I. Bill. The law fixed the starting date for such courses as not later than four years after the termination of World War 2 or four years after date of discharge, whichever is later. For G. I. Bill purposes the date for termination of the war was July 25, 1947.

G. I. Bill students must start their training by July 25 this year, if they wish to continue thereafter. Application by that date, with actual training to start later is not enough, Delehanty said.

A few exceptions to the ruling have been made:

1. Veterans who have started G.I. Bill training and interrupt it to go back into active military service may resume training within a reasonable period after release from service, provided their conduct and progress in G.I. training has been satisfactory

2. World War II veterans, now in active military service, who have been taking G.I. Bill training in their spare time and whose military duties make it impossible to continue, may also resume their training within a reasonable period after discharge from service.

3. Veterans who complete predental, pre-medical and pre-osteopath training under the G.I. Bill, but haven't yet gained admittance to medical, dental or osteopath schools, will be permitted to start their advanced training in such schools whenever an accredited school has room for them.

4. Veteran-teachers who take G.I. Bill courses during succeeding summer vacations may continue to do so after the cut-off date.

5. Generally, veterans finishing under-graduate courses and intending to go ahead with graduate training which would start after the cut-off date, may do so if they file an appropriate application sometime before they complete their undergraduate work.

All of these exceptions to the cut-off date apply only to veterans who have remaining entitlement to G.I. Bill education and training benefits. This entitlement is based on their length of military service and certain other basic requirements, Mr. Delehanty said.

All G.I. Bill training must come to an end on July 25, 1956, as the law now reads.

Legionnaires Present Toys to German Kids

Bonn, Germany, March 27 (AP)—American Legionnaires who once fought in Germany as soldiers handed out gifts of toys here today to German orphans.

It was part of the Legion-sponsored "Tide of Toys" program which is distributing 5,000,000 toys to children in 17 countries.

One hundred rosy-cheeked youngsters in a Catholic children's home grinned happily as Legion Commander Erle Cocke handed them the toys donated by American children.

West Germany's Vice Chancellor, Franz Bleucher, called the exchange a "victory of peace and friendship over the bitterness of war."

He told the childen he hoped that when they grew up they would remember this occasion and realize its significance.

Most toys given here came from Marion, Ohio. Each gift bore the name of the child who donated it, and a little note from the child to the German youngster who received it.

From here Cocke and his party will go to Berlin to distribnte more toys, and then will move on to other European countries.

Sanford Honored By City Firemen; Presented Ring

Deputy Fire Chief Harold A. Sanford was honored for his 25 year's service with the Kingston Fire Department at a banquet Monday night at Thomas DeCicco's tavern on High street.

A gold ring with the three-trumpet insignia of a deputy chief was presented to Sanford by Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy on behalf of Uniformed Firemen's Association Local 461.

Department dignitaries and city officials present included Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk; the Rev. Frank Lawrence Gollnick, department chaplain; Fire Commissioners Henry F. Kelsch and Charles Derrenbacher; and Deputy Chief George Matthews, as well as Chief Murphy and Deputy Sanford.

Fireman Howard Whitaker, vice president of Local 461, was banquet committee chairman and acted as toastmaster. Other members of his committee were Firemen James Hutton and Fred Williams. About 30 off-duty members of the department attended. Also present was John Hoffman, a retired fireman.

First Banquet

The banquet was the first such occasion sponsored by the local UFA to honor one of its members. Robert Hardwick, president of the local, was unable to be present because he was on duty Monday night. Other officers of the local include Whitaker, vice president; Frank Hornbeck, secretary, and Philip Maines, treasurer.

Sanford was appointed to the fire department on February 1, 1926. He became a deputy chief on May 1, 1941 and a state fire instructor in 1949. Active in Red Cross work as first aid instructor, he has been chairman of the chapter's first aid committee since 1943. In accepting the ring, Sanford said he could look back on the past 25 years as a "real pleasure" because of the good fellowship on the department and the cooperation he has received since his appointment as deputy chief.

In making the presentation, Chief Murphy commended the deputy chief for his interest in the job shown by his continuing study of new methods and materials in firefighting and his service as instructor to volunteer firemen. The chief noted that Sanford was scheduled to leave Tuesday morning for Utica to attend a session of the state fire school for instructors. The chief told the firemen that the best way for them to "sell themselves" to the citizens and officials of the city is by "doing a good job" in protecting the city from fire loss.

Among the congratulations received by Sanford was a telegram from Fireman Joseph Disch, who was unable to attend due to illness.

Slated to Leave

Camp Kilmer, N. J., March 27 (AP)—The first contingent of European-bound soldiers from this newly reactivated embarkation base are slated to leave for Bremerhaven, Germany today. The troops, 98 officers and 500 enlisted men, will board ships in New York for their overseas destination.

Not Burglar Proof

Long Beach, Calif., March 27 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's personal armored car is not burglar proof. Someone stole $175 from its trunk compartment, Harry K. Arslan of Chicago, showing the car on a nationwide tour, told police yesterday.

Free Rides Given

Buffalo, N. Y., March 27 (AP)—The Niagara Frontier Transit System said yesterday it gave 217,476 free bus rides to persons going to church services during Lent.

Car Seller Robbed, Cuffed to Tree

Huntington, N. Y., March 27 (AP)—A New York man who wanted to sell his automobile was held up, robbed and handcuffed around a tree near here last night by a man who posed as a purchaser.

Sidney Weiser, 30, was found by police after shouting for help for an hour and a half.

Weiser said he had advertised his 1949 automobile for sale. A prospective client answered the ad and asked for a demonstration.

Weiser said he and the likely buyer decided to take a ride on Grand Central Parkway. Soon after entering Nassau county, Weiser said, the man pulled a gun.

After forcing him to drive 25 miles to Huntington in Suffolk county, Weiser said, the man made him turn off to a sideroad. There the man took from him $40, legal papers relating to the car, and the auto itself.

Then he made Weiser hug a tree, handcuffed him in that position, and drove off.

Law Student Flunks Course—Wrong Zone

Pittsfield, Mass., March 27 (AP)—Eugene Peters, 21, of Ashtabula, Ohio, a law student at Butler University, "flunked" a course in district court yesterday because of a small oversight.

The youth produced an involved mathematical formula designed to refute the testimony of police that he was driving 60 miles an hour.

Judge Charles Alberti interrupted presentation of the formula to ask:

"Just what is it your formula will prove?"

Peter replied: "It will prove that I was going 33 to 35 miles an hour, not 40 or 60."

"Well," replied the judge, "you've flunked this law course. $10 fine."

Cut-Off Study Ruling Exempts Some Veterans

The "cut-off" date of July 25 for veterans' education and training does not apply to disabled World War 2 veterans studying under Public Law 16 nor to those disabled since June 27, 1950, John E. Delehanty of the Kingston Veterans Administration office said today.

The cut-off date applies, however, to most veterans studying under the G.I. Bill. The law fixed the starting date for such courses as not later than four years after the termination of World War 2 or four years after date of discharge, whichever is later. For G. I. Bill purposes the date for termination of the war was July 25, 1947.

G. I. Bill students must start their training by July 25 this year, if they wish to continue thereafter. Application by that date, with actual training to start later is not enough, Delehanty said.

A few exceptions to the ruling have been made:

1. Veterans who have started G.I. Bill training and interrupt it to go back into active military service may resume training within a reasonable period after release from service, provided their conduct and progress in G.I. training has been satisfactory

2. World War II veterans, now in active military service, who have been taking G.I. Bill training in their spare time and whose military duties make it impossible to continue, may also resume their training within a reasonable period after discharge from service.

3. Veterans who complete predental, pre-medical and pre-osteopath training under the G.I. Bill, but haven't yet gained admittance to medical, dental or osteopath schools, will be permitted to start their advanced training in such schools whenever an accredited school has room for them.

4. Veteran-teachers who take G.I. Bill courses during succeeding summer vacations may continue to do so after the cut-off date.

5. Generally, veterans finishing under-graduate courses and intending to go ahead with graduate training which would start after the cut-off date, may do so if they file an appropriate application sometime before they complete their undergraduate work.

All of these exceptions to the cut-off date apply only to veterans who have remaining entitlement to G.I. Bill education and training benefits. This entitlement is based on their length of military service and certain other basic requirements, Mr. Delehanty said.

All G.I. Bill training must come to an end on July 25, 1956, as the law now reads.

Legionnaires Present Toys to German Kids

Bonn, Germany, March 27 (AP)—American Legionnaires who once fought in Germany as soldiers handed out gifts of toys here today to German orphans.

It was part of the Legion-sponsored "Tide of Toys" program which is distributing 5,000,000 toys to children in 17 countries.

One hundred rosy-cheeked youngsters in a Catholic children's home grinned happily as Legion Commander Erle Cocke handed them the toys donated by American children.

West Germany's Vice Chancellor, Franz Bleucher, called the exchange a "victory of peace and friendship over the bitterness of war."

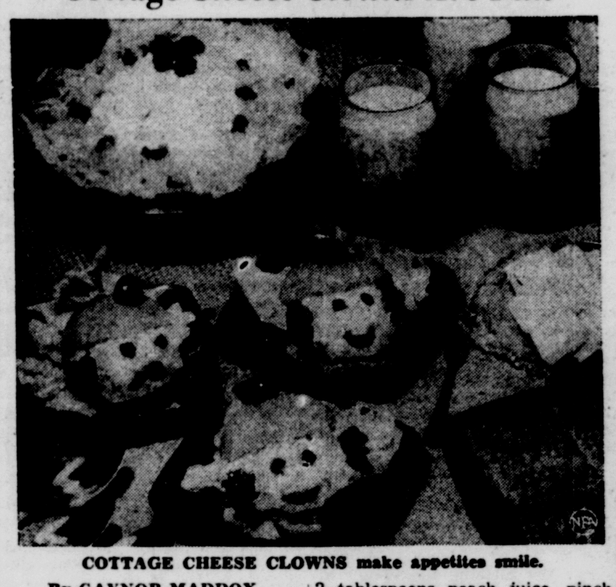

He told the childen he hoped that when they grew up they would remember this occasion and realize its significance.

Most toys given here came from Marion, Ohio. Each gift bore the name of the child who donated it, and a little note from the child to the German youngster who received it.

From here Cocke and his party will go to Berlin to distribnte more toys, and then will move on to other European countries.

There was no official comment on his testimony.

Townsend Club to Meet

Kingston Townsend Club No. 1 will hold its regular semi-monthly meeting on Wednesday evening at Mechanics' Hall, 14 Henry street, at 8 p. m. Several important business matters will be discussed and future activities will be planned. A large attendance is requested.

Treasury Will . . .

he had received two threats by letter and one by telephone. Kefauver said he had received a number of threats "in crackpot letters" but did not take them seriously. Senator Hunt (D.-Wyo.) said he got a warning letter against "sticking my nose in other people's business" during recent hearings in Miami, Fla.

Kefauver said Kleinman, Rothkopf and Guzik automatically will face contempt charges. He said the possibility of asking the Senate to order them sent to jail immediately is being studied.

Volatile Senator Tobey (R.-N.H.) saw in the defiance of the trio another cogent reason for continuing the work of the committee beyond its deadline of Saturday.

'Burning Shame'

"If we lie down before such birds as these and permit such men to flaunt the Senate, it will be a burning shame on the people of this country," Tobey told reporters.

He said he believes such tactics furnish a top reason why the committee should go on. Although Kefauver has said he can't continue to serve, there were growing indications that there may be a 60-day extension in the committee's life.

Under the glare of kleig lights, Kleinman and Rothkopf last night pulled a new stunt on the committee after it had heard Abner (Longie) Zwillman, north New Jersey political kingping, admit he once was a bootlegger but plead dramatically that he now is going straight.

Kleinman, wearing what might have been a Florida tan, read a statement saying he wouldn't testify unless television and movie equipment was moved from the crowd packed, ornate Senate caucus room.

With Pained Expression

When Kefauver overruled this objection, the swarthy Kleinman clammed up. He sat silently with a pained expression on his face as Joseph Nellis, committee counsel, and Kefauver fired a series of questions at him.

Nellis charged that Kleinman was a partner in a new Beverly Hills Country Club. When the witness sat silent, Nellis produced a business card which announced that the bearer would be admitted to the gaming room of the club, which the card said will open April 1 near Southgate, Ky. That would be one day after the committee is due to close up show.

Kefauver told reporters the committee had been in touch with local officials and he expressed the hope they would stop any gambling activities there.

Rothkopf Does Same

When Kleinman was ordered held under $10,000 bond for contempt, Rothkopf went through an identical act. He, too, wound up under arrest with his bond fixed at $10,000. Both made bond within a matter of minutes.

Kefauver gave Kleinman and Rothkopf a chance to answer questions without the TV cameras trained on them. Kleinman remained silent and slender, dark complexioned Rothkopf would have none of it.

Senator Wiley (R-Wis.) suggested that the TV cameras be turned on Rothkopf again to furnish the grounds for a test case.

Kefauver described the two Ohio men as members of "one of the most active and important interstate gambling syndicates in the United States."

Nellis asked Kleinman if he ever had been convicted of a crime. When there was no answer, the committee counsel said Kleinman had been sentenced to four years and $15,000 fine for tax evasion.

Nellis questioned Kleinman about his alleged partnership in the Lookout Club at Covington, Ky. There was no answer.

The committee counsel asked Rothkopf where he had been the last three and a half months while the committee was looking for him.

"I have stated my position, I have nothing further to say," the witness replied crisply.

Evasion, Says Tobey

Tobey took after Kleinman, asserting he had been sitting "without blinking" in the strong lights for a hour and a half while the previous witness testified.

"You evaded this committee for two or three months and no honest man would do that," Tobey shouted.

Timothy McMahon, Cleveland attorney, oversaw the Kleinman and Rothkopf appearances.

Most of the committee's night session was spent in questioning Zwillman, an admitted ex-bootlegger of Newark, N. J.

He risked a possible contempt citation by declining to give any details about his money affairs, although he did acknowledge he has 1,100 cigarette vending machines which distribute 650,000 packs a month.

He testified he makes about 1½ cents profit on each pack. That figures out to $9,750.

Knows Them, He Says

Zwillman, a tall graying man, agreed he knows a lot of gamblers around New Jersey and New York and some of the Capone gangsters in Chicago.

But he told the committee that any idea he had ever been, or aspired to be, the "Al Capone of New Jersey" was a "myth" which he should have exploded long ago.

Tobey observed that former Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York had listed Zwillman as one of the six top criminals in the New York area. Tobey wanted to know what Zwillman had to say about that.

"Not now, nor ever was," Zwillman replied.

Zwillman said he has known New York racketeer Frank Costello for a long time but testified that Costello is not interested in any business ventures with him.

Says Erickson Friend

Among other friends, Zwillman listed Frank Erickson, one of the nation's biggest bookies, who is now in jail, and Joe Adonis, another big-time gagmbler.

At an afternoon session, gray haired Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz of Brooklyn told the senators he thinks $25,000,000 annually is being paid in graft to New York policemen for gambling protection.

He said "higher-ups" must know about this, and added that a rackets grand jury over which he presides is waiting for a cleanup in the higher ranks by the New York police commissioner.

Leibowitz later issued a statement saying he meant only a "comparative handful of miscreants" take gamblers money. His statement said the present New York administration under Mayor Vincent Impelliteri and Police Commissioner Thomas Murphy "should not be deemed involved."

Leibowitz castigated politicians who "crawl on their bellies" to a "no-good plug-ugly" like, he said, Costello.

As did Attorney General McGrath and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, who preceded him on the stand, Leibowitz urged that the committee's investigations be continued.

Wilson Says U.S. Has Armed Power 'in Sight' for Defense

Washington, March 27 (AP) — Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson said today the country has "in sight" the military power to deter any aggressor.

Wilson also told a news conference the inflationary spiral has been "moderated." but he said the government may have to "put on the brakes a little harder."

"We still have the internal enemy of inflation that we must lick if we are to win the whole fight."

Wilson indicated his Office of Defense Mobilization will seek further power to curb prices, including revision of the Defense Production Act's restrictions on price ceiling for farm products.

But he said that precisely how this should be changed has not been decided.

Hope Is Expressed

The mobilization chief expressed hope that the Wage Stabilization Board, now out of business because of labor's walkout, soon will be reorganized and functioning.

Union labor representatives walked out in January after the board approved a wage control formula limiting pay increases to 10 per cent above the level of January, 1950. The labor men said they were protesting also other dissatisfactions with the mobilization program. They have demanded that a new board have power to settle wage disputes.

Wilson indicated the new board will have some dispute-settling powers, but said it is still uncertain whether President Truman must call a full-dress labor-management conference before disputes-settlement machinery can be set up.

Progress in restoring labor to participation in the defense program is indicated, he said, by the fact that labor representatives evidently will serve on a new labor-management agriculture committee on manpower.

To Operate Soon

The committee, having as co-chairmen Dr. Arthur S. Fleming and Dr. Frank P. Graham, will be in operation shortly as an advisor to him on deferments and other manpower policy, Wilson said.

The nation's progress in rearmament will be made plain in ODM's first quarterly report to Mr. Truman, due next week-end, Wilson said. He gave this clue to its contents: "If I were a principal enemy, I would be frightened by our progress."

It was Wilson's first meeting with reporters in 12 weeks. Even before it, he had been reported by aides to be much more optimistic now than earlier over progress.

A few months ago there was talk the production program would impose an austerity economy on Americans.

Spring Brings Threat Of Floods to Midwest

(By The Associated Press)

Spring-like weather came to the snow-covered midwest today bringing a threat of floods to some areas.

A national guard unit was ordered on duty in northeastern Nebraska where flood waters menaced many sections which recently were hit by heavy snowstorms. A quick thaw sent water pouring into rivers and streams from all directions.

The mild weather also cut snow depths sharply over Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin. Temperatures were above normal over most of the Great Lakes and Rocky mountain states. They were slightly below seasonal levels over the North and Middle Atlantic states.

Day Line Service Hinges on Dock

Extension of the Hudson River Day Line service to Kingston is still contingent on the purchase of property that will allow accesibility to the dock at Kingston Point, Albert Kurdt, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce said today.

George Sanders, president of the day line company, recently announced the possibility of extending its service from New York to Albany again, and said he was also considering a stop at Kingston, but the dock situation is still not solved.

Kurdt learned through a former effort to have the line resume its service here, that the Kingston Point property leading to the dock is owned by the Indian Point Corp., and they are interested in allowing dock rights only through sale of the property.

To Begin May 20

Sanders said the boats are scheduled to begin their service on the river next May 20 and that three of the company's four vessels will be operated through the end of September from New York to Poughkeepsie and points along the way. Business was better in 1950 than during the previous year, he said.

Extention of the service to Albany, although remote is not entirely beyond consideration Sanders said. He did not indicate how soon he was hopeful of sending the boats to Kingston, but Kurdt indicated today, that he is willing to come here at any time if the dock situation is settled.

The line's three active boats are the Alexander Hamilton, flagship; the Robert Fulton and Peter Stuyvesant. They will be drydocked in April although work has been done on each during the winter. They are berthed at the company's pier at 42nd street, New York.

Jersey Considers Demands

Trenton, N. J., March 27 (AP)—The state Legislature today weighed demands that it follow up the U. S Senate Crime Committee's disclosures on "hoodlums, criminals and racketeers" in New Jersey. The demands came from Democrats in both Houses. They called for a legislative inquiry into alleged connections between organized crime and New Jersey government officials.

Nazro Found Dead

Concord, N. H., March 27 (AP)—Thomas W. Nazro, 39, former Harvard football captain and master of St. Paul's School here, was found dead in a bathtub in his apartment today with a bullet wound in his head. No verdict was officially given by Medical Referee Dr. Paul Shaw, pending further examination of the body. Nazro was found early this morning in his suite by a maid.

French Plane Explodes

Paris, March 27 (AP)—A French military plane, reported en route to Marseille to pick up Defense Minister Jules Moch, exploded in flight 30 miles southeast of Paris today, killing the three air force officers aboard. Police began an immediate investigation into cause of the explosion and crash. Reports from the village of Nemours, near the crash scene, said the craft literally disintegrated in the air.

PBA President Sends Telegram Defending Police

New York, March 27 (AP)—A policeman's association told the Senate Crime Committee today that Brooklyn Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz in his testimony yesterday omitted mention that the great majority of New York police are honest.

Leibowitz told the committee that gamblers pay $20,000,000 to $25,000,000 a year to New York police for protection.

John E. Carton, president of the Patrolman's Benevolent Association, said in a telegram to Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), committee chairman:

"Judge Leibowitz has stated repeatedly in the past that more than 99 per cent of New York City's police are reputable law enforcement officers. He has also stated in the past that only a small handful is under suspicion during the year and a half of the Brooklyn (Grand Jury) investigation which has resulted in only one indictment."

Barton said he asked "on behalf of 19,000 policemen and their families that you make these facts public to the millions of Americans who have a right to the full truth."

After the hearing Leibowitz told reporters his testimony should not be considered as referring to the vast majority of policemen.

Shield, president, who will stress the success of the drive which raised the company's annual sales to $160,967,452, highest in its 79-year history.

Clinics on improvement of service and on distribution costs will be held, and a management committee meeting is to bring a decision on ten typical store problems.

News of Interest to Fraternal Organizations

A regular stated conclave of Rondout Commandery No. 52 will be held in its asylum, Masonic Temple, 31 Albany avenue, Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. The Commandery will be opened in full form.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 27 (AP)—With trading on the quiet side, the stock market today moved a little higher.

There was marked activity in a few issues in the chemicals, rails, motors, and aircrafts, but as a general rule the market's pace was slow.

Interest in the aircraft division was bolstered by fine earnings and sales reports turned in by Boeing and Republic. Boeing said it had a billion dollar backlog the first of this year.

Railroads now are reporting net operating income for February, and the results brought forth no great amount of enthusiasm.

Higher prices were posted all around in the copper mining section, but there was little business transacted. Revere Copper & Brass stood above the rest after a 1950 earning report showing per share profits equal to $8.47 as against $3.56 the year before.

The market started out on a steady keel leaning to the upside. The opening rush of overnight orders soon spent itself, and the pace slowed. Prices, however, kept edging higher.

Reds Expected

chief to discuss military preludes to peace.

But he stirred his government more, apparently, than Peiping by warning Red China it would face the risk of "imminent military collapse," if the United Nations decided to attack its coastal areas and interior bases.

Struble Gives View

The next day Vice Admiral Arthur B. Struble, retiring commander of the U. S. Seventh Fleet, said his force was strong enough to blockade the China coastline.

It could also protect Formosa against a Red invasion, he added.

Together the two statements formed a composite warning that the Allied command was confident of holding Korea and simultaneously capable of chopping down any Chinese thrust elsewhere. They also implied the possibility of widened action against Red China.

MacArthur's statement was broadcast and air dropped to Communist forces. Qualified sources said its main purpose was to logically recount Red weaknesses to the enemy commander and to get them more widely known among Red troops.

The informants said the Communist commander might be more easily persuaded than his political commissars that continued high losses made the gamble unprofitable.

Some commanders have voiced impatience with what they say are halting diplomatic efforts to settle the Korean war. General MacArthur has reflected this sentiment by his repeated public requests for "political decisions."

The general's latest statement indicated a conviction the diplomats are getting nowhere and a new approach was necessary.

Some of his supporters say, however, that Washington's tacit disavowal of the statement would nullify any chance it might have had to convince the Communists. They say Peiping will draw encouragement from this evidence of high-level American disagreement, and will gain comfort from what they contend is a fresh promise that the Reds do not have to fear an attack on China itself.

ment in New York in January, 1945. Greenglass said on that occasion Rosenberg cut up a jello box and gave him one-half as a means of identifying himself to a spy contact which would meet him in New Mexico with the other half.

"Did you have any jello boxes in your home?" asked Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman.

"Yes," said Mrs. Rosenberg.

She denied hearing any discussion in her home while Greenglass' wife and Rosenberg were present, about any advantage the United States might have over Russia through possession of the atom bomb.

She also denied that her husband told Mrs. Greenglass in 1944 that the United States had an atom bomb and that such information should be shared among allies, including Russia, so no nation could threaten another with the weapon.

No official report of the incident had been made locally by Anderson, an office spokesman said.

Kerhonkson Paper Maker Arrested

Joseph DiCandia, 35, Kerhonkson paper manufacturer, was arrested Saturday by Sheriff Cluett Schantz and Undersheriff Clayton Vredenburg on a Pennsylvania charge of "delivering a check with intent to cheat and defraud."

The arrest was ordered in governor's warrants from the governor of Pennsylvania and the governor of New York. The warrants call for delivering DiCandia to the custody of Pennsylvania authorities.

No information has been received locally on details of the charge, according to District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn. Attorney John Bonomi is representing DiCandia.

DiCandia operates the former Napanoch paper mills.

There was no official comment on his testimony.

Treasury Will . . .

he had received two threats by letter and one by telephone. Kefauver said he had received a number of threats "in crackpot letters" but did not take them seriously. Senator Hunt (D.-Wyo.) said he got a warning letter against "sticking my nose in other people's business" during recent hearings in Miami, Fla.

Kefauver said Kleinman, Rothkopf and Guzik automatically will face contempt charges. He said the possibility of asking the Senate to order them sent to jail immediately is being studied.

Volatile Senator Tobey (R.-N.H.) saw in the defiance of the trio another cogent reason for continuing the work of the committee beyond its deadline of Saturday.

'Burning Shame'

"If we lie down before such birds as these and permit such men to flaunt the Senate, it will be a burning shame on the people of this country," Tobey told reporters.

He said he believes such tactics furnish a top reason why the committee should go on. Although Kefauver has said he can't continue to serve, there were growing indications that there may be a 60-day extension in the committee's life.

Under the glare of kleig lights, Kleinman and Rothkopf last night pulled a new stunt on the committee after it had heard Abner (Longie) Zwillman, north New Jersey political kingping, admit he once was a bootlegger but plead dramatically that he now is going straight.

Kleinman, wearing what might have been a Florida tan, read a statement saying he wouldn't testify unless television and movie equipment was moved from the crowd packed, ornate Senate caucus room.

With Pained Expression

When Kefauver overruled this objection, the swarthy Kleinman clammed up. He sat silently with a pained expression on his face as Joseph Nellis, committee counsel, and Kefauver fired a series of questions at him.

Nellis charged that Kleinman was a partner in a new Beverly Hills Country Club. When the witness sat silent, Nellis produced a business card which announced that the bearer would be admitted to the gaming room of the club, which the card said will open April 1 near Southgate, Ky. That would be one day after the committee is due to close up show.

Kefauver told reporters the committee had been in touch with local officials and he expressed the hope they would stop any gambling activities there.

Rothkopf Does Same

When Kleinman was ordered held under $10,000 bond for contempt, Rothkopf went through an identical act. He, too, wound up under arrest with his bond fixed at $10,000. Both made bond within a matter of minutes.

Kefauver gave Kleinman and Rothkopf a chance to answer questions without the TV cameras trained on them. Kleinman remained silent and slender, dark complexioned Rothkopf would have none of it.

Senator Wiley (R-Wis.) suggested that the TV cameras be turned on Rothkopf again to furnish the grounds for a test case.

Kefauver described the two Ohio men as members of "one of the most active and important interstate gambling syndicates in the United States."

Nellis asked Kleinman if he ever had been convicted of a crime. When there was no answer, the committee counsel said Kleinman had been sentenced to four years and $15,000 fine for tax evasion.

Nellis questioned Kleinman about his alleged partnership in the Lookout Club at Covington, Ky. There was no answer.

The committee counsel asked Rothkopf where he had been the last three and a half months while the committee was looking for him.

Evasion, Says Tobey

Tobey took after Kleinman, asserting he had been sitting "without blinking" in the strong lights for a hour and a half while the previous witness testified.

"You evaded this committee for two or three months and no honest man would do that," Tobey shouted.

Timothy McMahon, Cleveland attorney, oversaw the Kleinman and Rothkopf appearances.

Most of the committee's night session was spent in questioning Zwillman, an admitted ex-bootlegger of Newark, N. J.

He risked a possible contempt citation by declining to give any details about his money affairs, although he did acknowledge he has 1,100 cigarette vending machines which distribute 650,000 packs a month.

He testified he makes about 1½ cents profit on each pack. That figures out to $9,750.

Knows Them, He Says

Zwillman, a tall graying man, agreed he knows a lot of gamblers around New Jersey and New York and some of the Capone gangsters in Chicago.

But he told the committee that any idea he had ever been, or aspired to be, the "Al Capone of New Jersey" was a "myth" which he should have exploded long ago.

Tobey observed that former Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York had listed Zwillman as one of the six top criminals in the New York area. Tobey wanted to know what Zwillman had to say about that.

"Not now, nor ever was," Zwillman replied.

Zwillman said he has known New York racketeer Frank Costello for a long time but testified that Costello is not interested in any business ventures with him.

Says Erickson Friend

Among other friends, Zwillman listed Frank Erickson, one of the nation's biggest bookies, who is now in jail, and Joe Adonis, another big-time gagmbler.

At an afternoon session, gray haired Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz of Brooklyn told the senators he thinks $25,000,000 annually is being paid in graft to New York policemen for gambling protection.

He said "higher-ups" must know about this, and added that a rackets grand jury over which he presides is waiting for a cleanup in the higher ranks by the New York police commissioner.

Leibowitz later issued a statement saying he meant only a "comparative handful of miscreants" take gamblers money. His statement said the present New York administration under Mayor Vincent Impelliteri and Police Commissioner Thomas Murphy "should not be deemed involved."

Leibowitz castigated politicians who "crawl on their bellies" to a "no-good plug-ugly" like, he said, Costello.

Wilson Says U.S. Has Armed Power 'in Sight' for Defense

Washington, March 27 (AP) — Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson said today the country has "in sight" the military power to deter any aggressor.

Wilson also told a news conference the inflationary spiral has been "moderated." but he said the government may have to "put on the brakes a little harder."

"We still have the internal enemy of inflation that we must lick if we are to win the whole fight."

Wilson indicated his Office of Defense Mobilization will seek further power to curb prices, including revision of the Defense Production Act's restrictions on price ceiling for farm products.

But he said that precisely how this should be changed has not been decided.

Hope Is Expressed

The mobilization chief expressed hope that the Wage Stabilization Board, now out of business because of labor's walkout, soon will be reorganized and functioning.

Union labor representatives walked out in January after the board approved a wage control formula limiting pay increases to 10 per cent above the level of January, 1950. The labor men said they were protesting also other dissatisfactions with the mobilization program. They have demanded that a new board have power to settle wage disputes.

Wilson indicated the new board will have some dispute-settling powers, but said it is still uncertain whether President Truman must call a full-dress labor-management conference before disputes-settlement machinery can be set up.

Progress in restoring labor to participation in the defense program is indicated, he said, by the fact that labor representatives evidently will serve on a new labor-management agriculture committee on manpower.

To Operate Soon

The committee, having as co-chairmen Dr. Arthur S. Fleming and Dr. Frank P. Graham, will be in operation shortly as an advisor to him on deferments and other manpower policy, Wilson said.

The nation's progress in rearmament will be made plain in ODM's first quarterly report to Mr. Truman, due next week-end, Wilson said. He gave this clue to its contents: "If I were a principal enemy, I would be frightened by our progress."

It was Wilson's first meeting with reporters in 12 weeks. Even before it, he had been reported by aides to be much more optimistic now than earlier over progress.

A few months ago there was talk the production program would impose an austerity economy on Americans.

Spring Brings Threat Of Floods to Midwest

(By The Associated Press)

Spring-like weather came to the snow-covered midwest today bringing a threat of floods to some areas.

A national guard unit was ordered on duty in northeastern Nebraska where flood waters menaced many sections which recently were hit by heavy snowstorms. A quick thaw sent water pouring into rivers and streams from all directions.

The mild weather also cut snow depths sharply over Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin. Temperatures were above normal over most of the Great Lakes and Rocky mountain states. They were slightly below seasonal levels over the North and Middle Atlantic states.

Day Line Service Hinges on Dock

Extension of the Hudson River Day Line service to Kingston is still contingent on the purchase of property that will allow accesibility to the dock at Kingston Point, Albert Kurdt, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce said today.

George Sanders, president of the day line company, recently announced the possibility of extending its service from New York to Albany again, and said he was also considering a stop at Kingston, but the dock situation is still not solved.

Kurdt learned through a former effort to have the line resume its service here, that the Kingston Point property leading to the dock is owned by the Indian Point Corp., and they are interested in allowing dock rights only through sale of the property.

To Begin May 20

Sanders said the boats are scheduled to begin their service on the river next May 20 and that three of the company's four vessels will be operated through the end of September from New York to Poughkeepsie and points along the way. Business was better in 1950 than during the previous year, he said.

Extention of the service to Albany, although remote is not entirely beyond consideration Sanders said. He did not indicate how soon he was hopeful of sending the boats to Kingston, but Kurdt indicated today, that he is willing to come here at any time if the dock situation is settled.

The line's three active boats are the Alexander Hamilton, flagship; the Robert Fulton and Peter Stuyvesant. They will be drydocked in April although work has been done on each during the winter. They are berthed at the company's pier at 42nd street, New York.

Jersey Considers Demands

Trenton, N. J., March 27 (AP)—The state Legislature today weighed demands that it follow up the U. S Senate Crime Committee's disclosures on "hoodlums, criminals and racketeers" in New Jersey. The demands came from Democrats in both Houses. They called for a legislative inquiry into alleged connections between organized crime and New Jersey government officials.

Nazro Found Dead

Concord, N. H., March 27 (AP)—Thomas W. Nazro, 39, former Harvard football captain and master of St. Paul's School here, was found dead in a bathtub in his apartment today with a bullet wound in his head. No verdict was officially given by Medical Referee Dr. Paul Shaw, pending further examination of the body. Nazro was found early this morning in his suite by a maid.

French Plane Explodes

Paris, March 27 (AP)—A French military plane, reported en route to Marseille to pick up Defense Minister Jules Moch, exploded in flight 30 miles southeast of Paris today, killing the three air force officers aboard. Police began an immediate investigation into cause of the explosion and crash. Reports from the village of Nemours, near the crash scene, said the craft literally disintegrated in the air.

PBA President Sends Telegram Defending Police

New York, March 27 (AP)—A policeman's association told the Senate Crime Committee today that Brooklyn Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz in his testimony yesterday omitted mention that the great majority of New York police are honest.

Leibowitz told the committee that gamblers pay $20,000,000 to $25,000,000 a year to New York police for protection.

John E. Carton, president of the Patrolman's Benevolent Association, said in a telegram to Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), committee chairman:

"Judge Leibowitz has stated repeatedly in the past that more than 99 per cent of New York City's police are reputable law enforcement officers. He has also stated in the past that only a small handful is under suspicion during the year and a half of the Brooklyn (Grand Jury) investigation which has resulted in only one indictment."

Barton said he asked "on behalf of 19,000 policemen and their families that you make these facts public to the millions of Americans who have a right to the full truth."

After the hearing Leibowitz told reporters his testimony should not be considered as referring to the vast majority of policemen.

Grand Union Managers To Attend Convention

A 1951 automobile will be awarded to the winner of a company-wide sales contest and other prizes will be awarded. These will be announced in a general report by Lansing P. Shield, president, who will stress the success of the drive which raised the company's annual sales to $160,967,452, highest in its 79-year history.

Clinics on improvement of service and on distribution costs will be held, and a management committee meeting is to bring a decision on ten typical store problems.

The Joiners

News of Interest to Fraternal Organizations

A regular stated conclave of Rondout Commandery No. 52 will be held in its asylum, Masonic Temple, 31 Albany avenue, Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. The Commandery will be opened in full form.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 27 (AP)—With trading on the quiet side, the stock market today moved a little higher.

There was marked activity in a few issues in the chemicals, rails, motors, and aircrafts, but as a general rule the market's pace was slow.

Interest in the aircraft division was bolstered by fine earnings and sales reports turned in by Boeing and Republic. Boeing said it had a billion dollar backlog the first of this year.

Railroads now are reporting net operating income for February, and the results brought forth no great amount of enthusiasm.

Higher prices were posted all around in the copper mining section, but there was little business transacted. Revere Copper & Brass stood above the rest after a 1950 earning report showing per share profits equal to $8.47 as against $3.56 the year before.

The market started out on a steady keel leaning to the upside. The opening rush of overnight orders soon spent itself, and the pace slowed. Prices, however, kept edging higher.

Reds Expected

chief to discuss military preludes to peace.

But he stirred his government more apparently than Peiping by warning Red China it would face the risk of "imminent military collapse," if the United Nations decided to attack its coastal areas and interior bases.

Struble Gives View

The next day Vice Admiral Arthur B. Struble, retiring commander of the U. S. Seventh Fleet, said his force was strong enough to blockade the China coastline.

It could also protect Formosa against a Red invasion, he added.

Together the two statements formed a composite warning that the Allied command was confident of holding Korea and simultaneously capable of chopping down any Chinese thrust elsewhere. They also implied the possibility of widened action against Red China.

MacArthur's statement was broadcast and air dropped to Communist forces. Qualified sources said its main purpose was to logically recount Red weaknesses to the enemy commander and to get them more widely known among Red troops.

The informants said the Communist commander might be more easily persuaded than his political commissars that continued high losses made the gamble unprofitable.

Some commanders have voiced impatience with what they say are halting diplomatic efforts to settle the Koreah war. General MacArthur has reflected this sentiment by his repeated public requests for "political decisions."

The general's latest statement indicated a conviction the diplomats are getting nowhere and a new approach was necessary.

Some of his supporters say, however, that Washington's tacit disavowal of the statement would nullify any chance it might have had to convince the Communists. They say Peiping will draw encouragement from this evidence of high-level American disagreement, and will gain comfort from what they contend is a fresh promise that the Reds do not have to fear an attack on China itself.

Woman Challenges

ment in New York in January, 1945. Greenglass said on that occasion Rosenberg cut up a jello box and gave him one-half as a means of identifying himself to a spy contact which would meet him in New Mexico with the other half.

"Did you have any jello boxes in your home?" asked Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman.

"Yes," said Mrs. Rosenberg.

She denied hearing any discussion in her home while Greenglass' wife and Rosenberg were present, about any advantage the United States might have over Russia through possession of the atom bomb.

She also denied that her husband told Mrs. Greenglass in 1944 that the United States had an atom bomb and that such information should be shared among allies, including Russia, so no nation could threaten another with the weapon.

The 2:10 a. m. bus out of Wakien, scheduled to arrive at Kingston at 2:55 a. m., was driven by Herbert Anderson, who continued on through to Albany and could not be contacted this morning, according to the local Trailways office. No official report of the incident had been made locally by Anderson, an office spokesman said.

Kerhonkson Paper Maker Arrested

Joseph DiCandia, 35, Kerhonkson paper manufacturer, was arrested Saturday by Sheriff Cluett Schantz and Undersheriff Clayton Vredenburg on a Pennsylvania charge of "delivering a check with intent to cheat and defraud."

The arrest was ordered in governor's warrants from the governor of Pennsylvania and the governor of New York. The warrants call for delivering DiCandia to the custody of Pennsylvania authorities.

No information has been received locally on details of the charge, according to District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn. Attorney John Bonomi is representing DiCandia.

DiCandia operates the former Napanoch paper mills.

Treasury Will . . .

he had received two threats by letter and one by telephone. Kefauver said he had received a number of threats "in crackpot letters" but did not take them seriously. Senator Hunt (D.-Wyo.) said he got a warning letter against "sticking my nose in other people's business" during recent hearings in Miami, Fla.

Kefauver said Kleinman, Rothkopf and Guzik automatically will face contempt charges. He said the possibility of asking the Senate to order them sent to jail immediately is being studied.

Volatile Senator Tobey (R.-N.H.) saw in the defiance of the trio another cogent reason for continuing the work of the committee beyond its deadline of Saturday.

'Burning Shame'

"If we lie down before such birds as these and permit such men to flaunt the Senate, it will be a burning shame on the people of this country," Tobey told reporters.

He said he believes such tactics furnish a top reason why the committee should go on. Although Kefauver has said he can't continue to serve, there were growing indications that there may be a 60-day extension in the committee's life.

Under the glare of kleig lights, Kleinman and Rothkopf last night pulled a new stunt on the committee after it had heard Abner (Longie) Zwillman, north New Jersey political kingping, admit he once was a bootlegger but plead dramatically that he now is going straight.

Kleinman, wearing what might have been a Florida tan, read a statement saying he wouldn't testify unless television and movie equipment was moved from the crowd packed, ornate Senate caucus room.

With Pained Expression

When Kefauver overruled this objection, the swarthy Kleinman clammed up. He sat silently with a pained expression on his face as Joseph Nellis, committee counsel, and Kefauver fired a series of questions at him.

Nellis charged that Kleinman was a partner in a new Beverly Hills Country Club. When the witness sat silent, Nellis produced a business card which announced that the bearer would be admitted to the gaming room of the club, which the card said will open April 1 near Southgate, Ky. That would be one day after the committee is due to close up show.

Kefauver told reporters the committee had been in touch with local officials and he expressed the hope they would stop any gambling activities there.

Rothkopf Does Same

When Kleinman was ordered held under $10,000 bond for contempt, Rothkopf went through an identical act. He, too, wound up under arrest with his bond fixed at $10,000. Both made bond within a matter of minutes.

Kefauver gave Kleinman and Rothkopf a chance to answer questions without the TV cameras trained on them. Kleinman remained silent and slender, dark complexioned Rothkopf would have none of it.

Senator Wiley (R-Wis.) suggested that the TV cameras be turned on Rothkopf again to furnish the grounds for a test case.

Kefauver described the two Ohio men as members of "one of the most active and important interstate gambling syndicates in the United States."

Nellis asked Kleinman if he ever had been convicted of a crime. When there was no answer, the committee counsel said Kleinman had been sentenced to four years and $15,000 fine for tax evasion.

Nellis questioned Kleinman about his alleged partnership in the Lookout Club at Covington, Ky. There was no answer.

The committee counsel asked Rothkopf where he had been the last three and a half months while the committee was looking for him.

Evasion, Says Tobey

Tobey took after Kleinman, asserting he had been sitting "without blinking" in the strong lights for a hour and a half while the previous witness testified.

"You evaded this committee for two or three months and no honest man would do that," Tobey shouted.

Timothy McMahon, Cleveland attorney, oversaw the Kleinman and Rothkopf appearances.

Most of the committee's night session was spent in questioning Zwillman, an admitted ex-bootlegger of Newark, N. J.

He risked a possible contempt citation by declining to give any details about his money affairs, although he did acknowledge he has 1,100 cigarette vending machines which distribute 650,000 packs a month.

He testified he makes about 1½ cents profit on each pack. That figures out to $9,750.

Knows Them, He Says

Zwillman, a tall graying man, agreed he knows a lot of gamblers around New Jersey and New York and some of the Capone gangsters in Chicago.

But he told the committee that any idea he had ever been, or aspired to be, the "Al Capone of New Jersey" was a "myth" which he should have exploded long ago.

Tobey observed that former Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York had listed Zwillman as one of the six top criminals in the New York area. Tobey wanted to know what Zwillman had to say about that.

"Not now, nor ever was," Zwillman replied.

Zwillman said he has known New York racketeer Frank Costello for a long time but testified that Costello is not interested in any business ventures with him.

Says Erickson Friend

Among other friends, Zwillman listed Frank Erickson, one of the nation's biggest bookies, who is now in jail, and Joe Adonis, another big-time gagmbler.

At an afternoon session, gray haired Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz of Brooklyn told the senators he thinks $25,000,000 annually is being paid in graft to New York policemen for gambling protection.

He said "higher-ups" must know about this, and added that a rackets grand jury over which he presides is waiting for a cleanup in the higher ranks by the New York police commissioner.

Leibowitz later issued a statement saying he meant only a "comparative handful of miscreants" take gamblers money. His statement said the present New York administration under Mayor Vincent Impelliteri and Police Commissioner Thomas Murphy "should not be deemed involved."

Leibowitz castigated politicians who "crawl on their bellies" to a "no-good plug-ugly" like, he said, Costello.

Wilson Says U.S. Has Armed Power 'in Sight' for Defense

Washington, March 27 (AP) — Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson said today the country has "in sight" the military power to deter any aggressor.

Wilson also told a news conference the inflationary spiral has been "moderated." but he said the government may have to "put on the brakes a little harder."

"We still have the internal enemy of inflation that we must lick if we are to win the whole fight."

Wilson indicated his Office of Defense Mobilization will seek further power to curb prices, including revision of the Defense Production Act's restrictions on price ceiling for farm products.

But he said that precisely how this should be changed has not been decided.

Hope Is Expressed

The mobilization chief expressed hope that the Wage Stabilization Board, now out of business because of labor's walkout, soon will be reorganized and functioning.

Union labor representatives walked out in January after the board approved a wage control formula limiting pay increases to 10 per cent above the level of January, 1950. The labor men said they were protesting also other dissatisfactions with the mobilization program. They have demanded that a new board have power to settle wage disputes.

Wilson indicated the new board will have some dispute-settling powers, but said it is still uncertain whether President Truman must call a full-dress labor-management conference before disputes-settlement machinery can be set up.

Progress in restoring labor to participation in the defense program is indicated, he said, by the fact that labor representatives evidently will serve on a new labor-management agriculture committee on manpower.

To Operate Soon

The committee, having as co-chairmen Dr. Arthur S. Fleming and Dr. Frank P. Graham, will be in operation shortly as an advisor to him on deferments and other manpower policy, Wilson said.

The nation's progress in rearmament will be made plain in ODM's first quarterly report to Mr. Truman, due next week-end, Wilson said. He gave this clue to its contents: "If I were a principal enemy, I would be frightened by our progress."

It was Wilson's first meeting with reporters in 12 weeks. Even before it, he had been reported by aides to be much more optimistic now than earlier over progress.

A few months ago there was talk the production program would impose an austerity economy on Americans.

Spring Brings Threat Of Floods to Midwest

(By The Associated Press)

Spring-like weather came to the snow-covered midwest today bringing a threat of floods to some areas.

A national guard unit was ordered on duty in northeastern Nebraska where flood waters menaced many sections which recently were hit by heavy snowstorms. A quick thaw sent water pouring into rivers and streams from all directions.

The mild weather also cut snow depths sharply over Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin. Temperatures were above normal over most of the Great Lakes and Rocky mountain states. They were slightly below seasonal levels over the North and Middle Atlantic states.

Day Line Service Hinges on Dock

Extension of the Hudson River Day Line service to Kingston is still contingent on the purchase of property that will allow accesibility to the dock at Kingston Point, Albert Kurdt, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce said today.

George Sanders, president of the day line company, recently announced the possibility of extending its service from New York to Albany again, and said he was also considering a stop at Kingston, but the dock situation is still not solved.

Kurdt learned through a former effort to have the line resume its service here, that the Kingston Point property leading to the dock is owned by the Indian Point Corp., and they are interested in allowing dock rights only through sale of the property.

To Begin May 20

Sanders said the boats are scheduled to begin their service on the river next May 20 and that three of the company's four vessels will be operated through the end of September from New York to Poughkeepsie and points along the way. Business was better in 1950 than during the previous year, he said.

Extention of the service to Albany, although remote is not entirely beyond consideration Sanders said. He did not indicate how soon he was hopeful of sending the boats to Kingston, but Kurdt indicated today, that he is willing to come here at any time if the dock situation is settled.

The line's three active boats are the Alexander Hamilton, flagship; the Robert Fulton and Peter Stuyvesant. They will be drydocked in April although work has been done on each during the winter. They are berthed at the company's pier at 42nd street, New York.

Jersey Considers Demands

Trenton, N. J., March 27 (AP)—The state Legislature today weighed demands that it follow up the U. S Senate Crime Committee's disclosures on "hoodlums, criminals and racketeers" in New Jersey. The demands came from Democrats in both Houses. They called for a legislative inquiry into alleged connections between organized crime and New Jersey government officials.

Nazro Found Dead

Concord, N. H., March 27 (AP)—Thomas W. Nazro, 39, former Harvard football captain and master of St. Paul's School here, was found dead in a bathtub in his apartment today with a bullet wound in his head. No verdict was officially given by Medical Referee Dr. Paul Shaw, pending further examination of the body. Nazro was found early this morning in his suite by a maid.

French Plane Explodes

Paris, March 27 (AP)—A French military plane, reported en route to Marseille to pick up Defense Minister Jules Moch, exploded in flight 30 miles southeast of Paris today, killing the three air force officers aboard. Police began an immediate investigation into cause of the explosion and crash. Reports from the village of Nemours, near the crash scene, said the craft literally disintegrated in the air.

PBA President Sends Telegram Defending Police

New York, March 27 (AP)—A policeman's association told the Senate Crime Committee today that Brooklyn Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz in his testimony yesterday omitted mention that the great majority of New York police are honest.

Leibowitz told the committee that gamblers pay $20,000,000 to $25,000,000 a year to New York police for protection.

John E. Carton, president of the Patrolman's Benevolent Association, said in a telegram to Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), committee chairman:

"Judge Leibowitz has stated repeatedly in the past that more than 99 per cent of New York City's police are reputable law enforcement officers. He has also stated in the past that only a small handful is under suspicion during the year and a half of the Brooklyn (Grand Jury) investigation which has resulted in only one indictment."

Barton said he asked "on behalf of 19,000 policemen and their families that you make these facts public to the millions of Americans who have a right to the full truth."

After the hearing Leibowitz told reporters his testimony should not be considered as referring to the vast majority of policemen.

News of Interest to Fraternal Organizations

A regular stated conclave of Rondout Commandery No. 52 will be held in its asylum, Masonic Temple, 31 Albany avenue, Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. The Commandery will be opened in full form.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 27 (AP)—With trading on the quiet side, the stock market today moved a little higher.

There was marked activity in a few issues in the chemicals, rails, motors, and aircrafts, but as a general rule the market's pace was slow.

Interest in the aircraft division was bolstered by fine earnings and sales reports turned in by Boeing and Republic. Boeing said it had a billion dollar backlog the first of this year.

Railroads now are reporting net operating income for February, and the results brought forth no great amount of enthusiasm.

Higher prices were posted all around in the copper mining section, but there was little business transacted. Revere Copper & Brass stood above the rest after a 1950 earning report showing per share profits equal to $8.47 as against $3.56 the year before.

The market started out on a steady keel leaning to the upside. The opening rush of overnight orders soon spent itself, and the pace slowed. Prices, however, kept edging higher.

Reds Expected

chief to discuss military preludes to peace.

But he stirred his government more, apparently, than Peiping by warning Red China it would face the risk of "imminent military collapse," if the United Nations decided to attack its coastal areas and interior bases.

Struble Gives View

The next day Vice Admiral Arthur B. Struble, retiring commander of the U. S. Seventh Fleet, said his force was strong enough to blockade the China coastline.

It could also protect Formosa against a Red invasion, he added.

Together the two statements formed a composite warning that the Allied command was confident of holding Korea and simultaneously capable of chopping down any Chinese thrust elsewhere. They also implied the possibility of widened action against Red China.

MacArthur's statement was broadcast and air dropped to Communist forces. Qualified sources said its main purpose was to logically recount Red weaknesses to the enemy commander and to get them more widely known among Red troops.

The informants said the Communist commander might be more easily persuaded than his political commissars that continued high losses made the gamble unprofitable.

Some commanders have voiced impatience with what they say are halting diplomatic efforts to settle the Korean war. General MacArthur has reflected this sentiment by his repeated public requests for "political decisions."

The general's latest statement indicated a conviction the diplomats are getting nowhere and a new approach was necessary.

Some of his supporters say, however, that Washington's tacit disavowal of the statement would nullify any chance it might have had to convince the Communists. They say Peiping will draw encouragement from this evidence of high-level American disagreement, and will gain comfort from what they contend is a fresh promise that the Reds do not have to fear an attack on China itself.

ment in New York in January, 1945. Greenglass said on that occasion Rosenberg cut up a jello box and gave him one-half as a means of identifying himself to a spy contact which would meet him in New Mexico with the other half.

"Did you have any jello boxes in your home?" asked Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman.

"Yes," said Mrs. Rosenberg.

She denied hearing any discussion in her home while Greenglass' wife and Rosenberg were present, about any advantage the United States might have over Russia through possession of the atom bomb.

She also denied that her husband told Mrs. Greenglass in 1944 that the United States had an atom bomb and that such information should be shared among allies, including Russia, so no nation could threaten another with the weapon.

The 2:10 a. m. bus out of Walden, scheduled to arrive at Kingston at 2:55 a. m., was driven by Herbert Anderson, who continued on through to Albany and could not be contacted this morning, according to the local Trailways office. No official report of the incident had been made locally by Anderson, an office spokesman said.

Kerhonkson Paper Maker Arrested

Joseph DiCandia, 35, Kerhonkson paper manufacturer, was arrested Saturday by Sheriff Chett Schantz and Undersheriff Clayton Vredenburg on a Pennsylvania charge of "delivering a check with intent to cheat and defraud."

The arrest was ordered in governor's warrants from the governor of Pennsylvania and the governor of New York. The warrants call for delivering DiCandia to the custody of Pennsylvania authorities.

No information has been received locally on details of the charge, according to District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn. Attorney John Bonomi is representing DiCandia.

DiCandia operates the former Napanoch paper mills.

Adult Beginners

Many adults wish they could play the piano, but feel that they are too old to begin musical study. Actually, this is a false notion, for in piano study it is never too late to learn. An adult beginner very often makes much more progress than a younger student.

Reasons for this are that the adult takes lessons, because he really wants to, whereas a high percentage of child students is studying because parents believe they should. Also, the more mature judgement and better concentration possessed by the adult over the child is an added advantage. Adults, further, know the value of time and more readily learn to make every minute count during practice periods. The adult mind is also more receptive to learning, because he looks to his music making for pleasure and relaxation.

In evenings spent with music, the worries of the day are soon forgotten. Soon, the adult will find a large repertoire within his technical grasp, such as operatic arias, folk songs, arrangements of overtures, symphonies and chamber music. Brilliant piano solos with which a concert pianist dazzles his audiences can be found in simplified form for the average player.

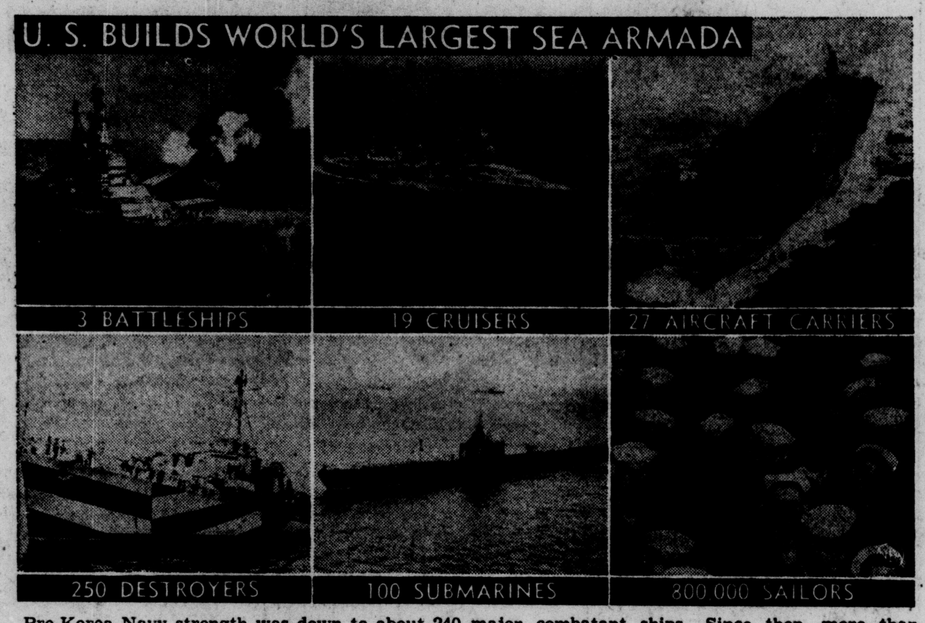

Most modern books of instruction have been designed for enjoyment from the first lessons. Pieces are played right at the start. These pieces usually have words which can be sung for amusement as the pieces are played.

The adult beginner will find that the study of chords is an easy one. If three notes are played together with every other white key or every other black key, a chord has been played. Further instruction soon shows which chords are generally used together. Very excellent books on this subject can be found at all music stores.

Most adults who work all day will feel that they haven't much time for musical study. Once they have learned how to practice efficiently, they are usually delighted with the progress made on as little as 30 minutes a day. Besides, much practice can be done away from the piano. The time spent traveling to and from work each day offers excellent opportunities. During these times the music need merely be read and the notes pointed to with a pencil and their names mentally recited. This banishes the feeling of uneasy strangeness with the piece and it will be found that much of it is familiar when taken to the piano for the first time.

Since the outbreak of the Korean War the Army has more than doubled its manpower, increasing from about 600,000 to over 1,200,000 officers and men. By July 1 the Army plans to have the equivalent of 24 divisions at least. Many of these will have to wait perhaps a year or so until war plants can turn out all the equipment they need for combat.

Pre-Korea Navy strength was down to about 240 major combatant ships. Since then, more than 200 ships—from a battlewagon down to amphibious craft—have been demothballed. Others are in the process. By July 1, next year, the Navy will have a fleet of 500 warships. It also will have more than 500 support and smaller amphibious craft, plus hundreds of patrol and small carrier planes.

When Communists invaded South Korea, the Air Force had only 48 groups and 412,000 officers and men. This has been upped to more than 60 groups and 620,000 uniformed personnel. Air Force is expected to have 68 groups by next July 1 and 84 groups by next January. Top officials say the 95 groups will be sufficient only for a cold war. For all-out war they would want three times that.

Marines had two under-strength divisions and 16 air squadrons at the beginning of the Korean fighting. Since then, manpower has jumped to over 170,000—more than double the pre-Korean 74,000. Nearly all Marine ground reserves have been called up. Nine Marine reserve air squadrons called up last January are being broken up and their personnel used to bring the 21 existing squadrons up to full strength.

As Pegler Sees It

old diehard, shamed adherents of Teddy Roosevelt who still insist that he was a great man. But he and Franklin had very much in common. They were demagogs; they were rich men by inheritance who pretended to despise the idle rich. They both had a way of patronizing rugged people by calling them "Jim" or "Joe," as though they were coachmen or gunbearers. Teddy made character for himself by hunting in the western plains when thousands of men and women still alive lived their daily life, rode ponies to school, trapped a little, split wood and hauled water as the routine of daily existence. Teddy made adventure and publicity of it. We thought him a very devil of a man because that was the era when Newport was a fantastic frivolity, and a college man, especially from Harvard, was depicted in the funnies as "Cholly Boy." When he came back from Cuba, where he took a manly part in one skirmish, Teddy actually wrote to Elihu Root that he had earned the Medal of Honor (as, of course, he had not) and was determined to get it for political use in his campaign to be governor of New York.

This is the most disgusting act of immodesty by a man of fair renown that I have ever come upon. His own son, young Ted, did earn, and got, a medal of honor posthumously. But, oh, what a brave he was in war! T. R., was, by creditable accounts that have come down in my profession, a liar so cynical and brazen that reporters would not quote him without corroboration. And he was a blood brother of Elliott Roosevelt, the father of our own Eleanor the Great.

They were a very rich family. They had livery for their footmen, and ran charge accounts at the jeweler's and the drapers and the fruiterer's when all the rest of us, the people who let them use us and impose on our innocent trust in the quality, wore jeans to school and our mother worked up our clothes on the sewing machines and mended and did for us. And when an orange in one's stocking at Christmas was the only orange of the year.

Why do we let this family conceal their background? They owe us the truth, at least. Isn't that little enough to ask that they tell us who they are, how they got there and where the money came from which enabled Eleanor's grandfathers and T. R.'s father to leave more than a million dollars as long ago as 1894?

WAC Sergeant Is Here Recruiting

The U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force recruiting station of Kingston announces that Sgt. Madeline Wiener of the Albany recruiting main station will be in this area to interview young women interested in joining the WAC or WAF. She will be at the recruiting office in the central post office today and Wednesday of this week.

Sgt. Wiener is from Watervliet and has been in the WAC several years. She has had her share of overseas duty having served in Australia, New Guinea and the Philippines. Madeline is definitely a career girl and is so much sold on the army that she decided to apply for recruiting duty to "sell" the army and air force to others.

Both the WAC and the WAF are looking for qualified women between the ages of 18 and 34, if under 21 the girls must have written consent of their parents. High school graduates are eligible for either service, and must be of excellent character. It is easier to get into the WAC because army quotas are nearly double to air force alloments, however, girls willing to wait can get into the WAF when vacancies occur. Opportunities are equal in all services today for young women. There are jobs for all, such as, in communications, finance, food service, drafting, medical service, intelligence, administration, photography, radio, special services and purchasing and supply, to mention a few. The local recruiting station advises all young women to see Sgt. Wiener while she is in town. They may drop in the office or call 1999 for an appointment.

Dewey Stresses Red Cross Need

Albany, N. Y.—Vincent G. Connelly, chairman Red Cross Fund Ulster County Chapter, 308 Clinton avenue, Kingston, N. Y.:

New York state has always responded to the demands made upon it during great national emergencies. Ever increasing numbers of our young men and women are now entering the nation's armed forces and New York state is well represented on the battlefields of Korea. We on the home front can not let them down. Through our support of the American Red Cross we shall assure the funds necessary to carry on the many Red Cross services that are so essential to them and their families. The 1951 Red Cross campaign workers in your chapter are carrying out a patriotic service of vital importance to the citizens of this state. This mission must be accomplished.

New Delhi is now the capital of India. It is a new city laid out near Delhi and patterned after Washington, D. C. The old city now is referred to as Old Delhi.

When your own a share of stock, you own a share of a business.

Let's say you own just one share of common stock in an automobile company. Then you are an owner of an interest in that company, in its factories, materials, products, reputation, even in the skill of its workers and management.

Or let's say you own a share, or ten shares, of a company in a different industry—a railroad, a drug and chemical concern, a public utility, a food processor, an airplane maker. Again you own an interest in everything that company has—its laboratories, supplies, patents, know-how.

You have a certificate showing that you are one of the legal owners. That certificate is registered in your name on the books of the company. You have the right, with other stockholders, to elect the men who run the business and who report to you on the company's operations.

The number of shares you hold measures your part of the company—your part of the profits it may earn, the dividends it may pay, the ownership risks you have assumed. Whether you own one share or seven or 1,000, you own a share of a business . . . and to that extent it is your company.

Shares in hundreds of different companies are bought and sold daily on the New York Stock Exchange by people all over the country. These companies are "listed." They met certain requirements when they placed their shares on the Exchange.

Information about prominent corporations, including earnings and dividend records, is available without obligation at offices of member firms of the New York Stock Exchange.

IN 1951 MOBILGAS ECONOMY RUN!

Here is proof positive that the Nash Rambler is the most economical full-size car on the road . . . official proof that you can expect to go farther on every gallon of gas in a Rambler Airflyte.

For in America's blue-ribbon stock car event—the 1951 Mobilgas Economy Run from Los Angeles to the Grand Canyon—the Rambler smashed all previous records for the Run . . . covered the 840.05 miles on just 27.05 gallons . . . averaging 31.05 miles a gallon! That's the thrifty performance you've been looking for.

In setting this all-time record, the Rambler carried 4 passengers with driver and averaged over 41 miles an hour. The course covered all types of terrain—deserts, mountains, city and highway driving . . . with snow, rain and head winds. Yet never before had any car in this economy run gone so far on so little gasoline!

Most modern books of instruction have been designed for enjoyment from the first lessons. Pieces are played right at the start. These pieces usually have words which can be sung for amusement as the pieces are played.

The adult beginner will find that the study of chords is an easy one. If three notes are played together with every other white key or every other black key, a chord has been played. Further instruction soon shows which chords are generally used together. Very excellent books on this subject can be found at all music stores.

Most adults who work all day will feel that they haven't much time for musical study. Once they have learned how to practice efficiently, they are usually delighted with the progress made on as little as 30 minutes a day. Besides, much practice can be done away from the piano. The time spent traveling to and from work each day offers excellent opportunities. During these times the music need merely be read and the notes pointed to with a pencil and their names mentally recited. This banishes the feeling of uneasy strangeness with the piece and it will be found that much of it is familiar when taken to the piano for the first time.

ARMY GOAL: 1,500,000 MEN BY JULY 1

13 INFANTRY DIVISIONS — ABOUT 247,000 OFFICERS AND MEN

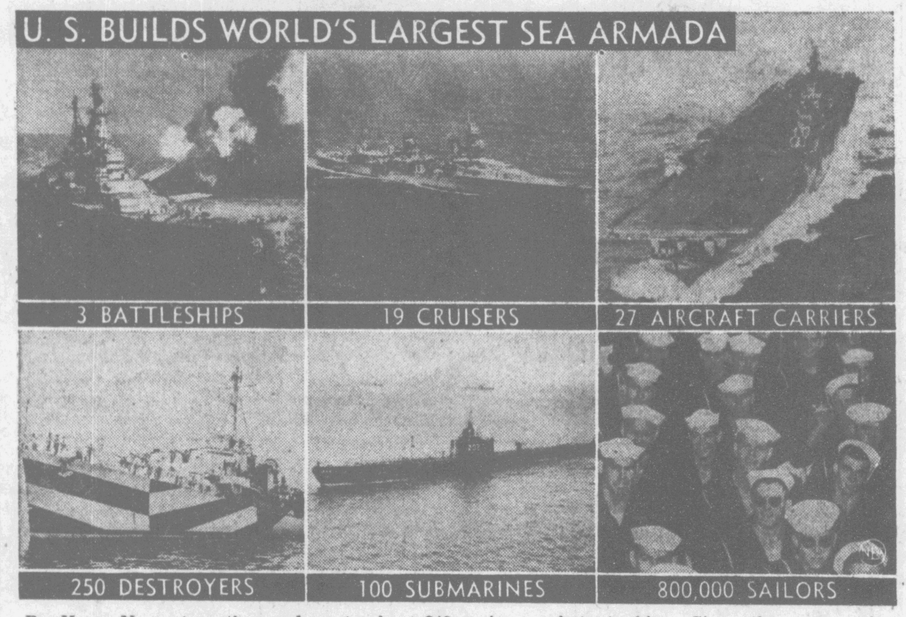

3 OR 4 ARMORED DIVISIONS — 48,000 TO 64,000 OFFICERS AND MEN

2 OR 3 AIRBORNE DIVISIONS — 28,000 TO 42,000 OFFICERS AND MEN

IN ADDITION, PLANNED ARMY WILL HAVE 18 REGIMENTAL COMBAT TEAMS (EQUIVALENT OF SIX DIVISIONS) AND NUMEROUS SMALLER COMBAT OUTFITS SUCH AS ANTI AIRCRAFT AND ENGINEER BATTALIONS AND COMPANIES.

Since the outbreak of the Korean War the Army has more than doubled its manpower, increasing from about 600,000 to over 1,200,000 officers and men. By July 1 the Army plans to have the equivalent of 24 divisions at least. Many of these will have to wait perhaps a year or so until war plants can turn out all the equipment they need for combat.

U. S. BUILDS WORLD'S LARGEST SEA ARMADA

3 BATTLESHIPS — 19 CRUISERS — 27 AIRCRAFT CARRIERS

250 DESTROYERS — 100 SUBMARINES — 800,000 SAILORS

Pre-Korea Navy strength was down to about 240 major combatant ships. Since then, more than 200 ships—from a battlewagon down to amphibious craft—have been demothballed. Others are in the process. By July 1, next year, the Navy will have a fleet of 500 warships. It also will have more than 500 support and smaller amphibious craft, plus hundreds of patrol and small carrier planes.

95-GROUP AIR FORCE PLANNED

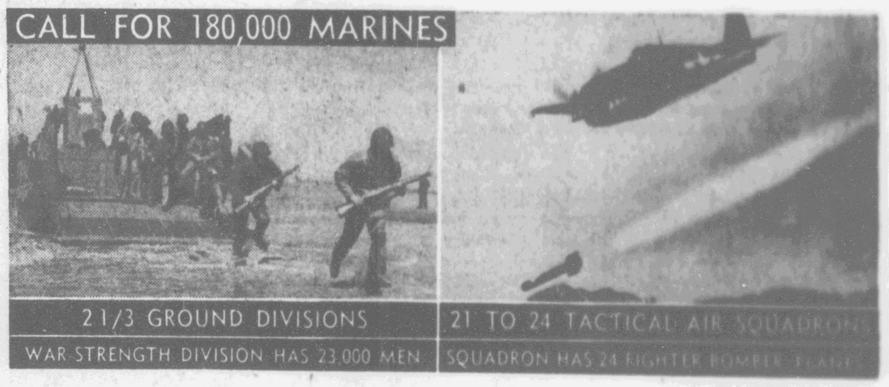

6 HEAVY BOMBER GROUPS — 20 MEDIUM BOMBER GROUPS — 5 LIGHT BOMBER GROUPS

18 TACTICAL FIGHTER BOMBER GROUPS — 11 DAY INTERCEPTOR GROUPS — 1,000,000 OFFICERS AND MEN

ROUNDING OUT 95 GROUP AIR FORCE WOULD BE 11 ALL WEATHER INTERCEPTOR GROUPS, 6 TACTICAL RECONNAISSANCE GROUPS, 6 STRATEGICAL RECONNAISSANCE GROUPS, AND 12 TROOP CARRIER GROUPS

When Communists invaded South Korea, the Air Force had only 48 groups and 412,000 officers and men. This has been upped to more than 60 groups and 620,000 uniformed personnel. Air Force is expected to have 68 groups by next July 1 and 84 groups by next January. Top officials say the 95 groups will be sufficient only for a cold war. For all-out war they would want three times that.

CALL FOR 180,000 MARINES

21/3 GROUND DIVISIONS — WAR-STRENGTH DIVISION HAS 23,000 MEN

21 TO 24 TACTICAL AIR SQUADRONS — SQUADRON HAS 24 FIGHTER BOMBER PLANES

Marines had two under-strength divisions and 16 air squadrons at the beginning of the Korean fighting. Since then, manpower has jumped to over 170,000—more than double the pre-Korean 74,000. Nearly all Marine ground reserves have been called up. Nine Marine reserve air squadrons called up last January are being broken up and their personnel used to bring the 21 existing squadrons up to full strength.

As Pegler Sees It

old diehard, shamed adherents of Teddy Roosevelt who still insist that he was a great man. But he and Franklin had very much in common. They were demagogs; they were rich men by inheritance who pretended to despise the idle rich. They both had a way of patronizing rugged people by calling them "Jim" or "Joe," as though they were coachmen or gunbearers. Teddy made character for himself by hunting in the western plains when thousands of men and women still alive lived their daily life, rode ponies to school, trapped a little, split wood and hauled water as the routine of daily existence. Teddy made adventure and publicity of it. We thought him a very devil of a man because that was the era when Newport was a fantastic frivolity, and a college man, especially from Harvard, was depicted in the funnies as "Cholly Boy." When he came back from Cuba, where he took a manly part in one skirmish, Teddy actually wrote to Elihu Root that he had earned the Medal of Honor (as, of course, he had not) and was determined to get it for political use in his campaign to be governor of New York.

This is the most disgusting act of immodesty by a man of fair renown that I have ever come upon. His own son, young Ted, did earn, and get, a medal of honor posthumously. But, oh, what a brave he was in war! F. R., was, by creditable accounts that have come down in my profession, a liar so cynical and brazen that reporters would not quote him without corroboration. And he was a blood brother of Elliott Roosevelt, the father of our own Eleanor the Great.

They were a very rich family. They had livery for their footmen, and ran charge accounts at the jeweler's and the drapers and the fruiterer's when all the rest of us, the people who let them use us and impose on our innocent trust in the quality, wore jeans to school and our mother worked up our clothes on the sewing machines and mended and did for us. And when an orange in one's stocking at Christmas was the only orange of the year.

Why do we let this family conceal their background? They owe us the truth, at least. Isn't that little enough to ask that they tell us who they are, how they got there and where the money came from which enabled Eleanor's grandfathers and F. R.'s father to leave more than a million dollars as long ago as 1884?

WAC Sergeant Is Here Recruiting

The U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force recruiting station of Kingston announces that Sgt. Madeline Wiener of the Albany recruiting main station will be in this area to interview young women interested in joining the WAC or WAF. She will be at the recruiting office in the central post office today and Wednesday of this week.

Sgt. Wiener is from Watervliet and has been in the WAC several years. She has had her share of overseas duty having served in Australia, New Guinea and the Philippines. Madeline is definitely a career girl and is so much sold on the army that she decided to apply for recruiting duty to "sell" the army and air force to others.

Both the WAC and the WAF are looking for qualified women between the ages of 18 and 34, if under 21 the girls must have written consent of their parents. High school graduates are eligible for either service, and must be of excellent character. It is easier to get into the WAC because army quotas are nearly double to air force alloments, however, girls willing to wait can get into the WAF when vacancies occur. Opportunities are equal in all services today for young women. There are jobs for all, such as, in communications, finance, food service, drafting, medical service, intelligence, administration, photography, radio, special services and purchasing and supply, to mention a few. The local recruiting station advises all young women to see Sgt. Wiener while she is in town. They may drop in the office or call 1999 for an appointment.

Dewey Stresses Red Cross Need

Albany, N. Y.—Vincent G. Connelly, chairman Red Cross Fund Ulster County Chapter, 308 Clinton avenue, Kingston, N. Y.:

New York state has always responded to the demands made upon it during great national emergencies. Ever increasing numbers of our young men and women are now entering the nation's armed forces and New York state is well represented on the battlefields of Korea. We on the home front can not let them down. Through our support of the American Red Cross we shall assure the funds necessary to carry on the many Red Cross services that are so essential to them and their families. The 1951 Red Cross campaign workers in your chapter are carrying out a patriotic service of vital importance to the citizens of this state. This mission must be accomplished.

New Delhi is now the capital of India. It is a new city laid out near Delhi and patterned after Washington, D. C. The old city now is referred to as Old Delhi.

When you own a share of stock, you own a share of a business.

Let's say you own just one share of common stock in an automobile company. Then you are an owner of an interest in that company, in its factories, materials, products, reputation, even in the skill of its workers and management.

Or let's say you own a share, or ten shares, of a company in a different industry—a railroad, a drug and chemical concern, a public utility, a food processor, an airplane maker. Again you own an interest in everything that company has—its laboratories, supplies, patents, know-how.

You have a certificate showing that you are one of the legal owners. That certificate is registered in your name on the books of the company. You have the right, with other stockholders, to elect the men who run the business and who report to you on the company's operations.

The number of shares you hold measures your part of the company—your part of the profits it may earn, the dividends it may pay, the ownership risks you have assumed. Whether you own one share or seven or 1,000, you own a share of a business . . . and to that extent it is your company.

Shares in hundreds of different companies are bought and sold daily on the New York Stock Exchange by people all over the country. These companies are "listed." They met certain requirements when they placed their shares on the Exchange.

Information about prominent corporations, including earnings and dividend records, is available without obligation at offices of member firms of the New York Stock Exchange.

Stenson, Sr., of 208 West Chestnut street, Sunday at 1:30 p. m., in St. Mary's Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. John A. Flaherty.

During the ceremony traditional wedding music was played, and Martin Kelly sang Ave Maria. The church was decorated with Easter lilies.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white Skinner satin gown with a Peter Pan collar, long pointed sleeves, and a full skirt, en train. Her lace trimmed illusion net veil was caught to a crown of white glamellias and sweetpeas.

Miss Lillian Gunderud of 26 Pearl street, was maid of honor. Miss Gunderud was dressed in an aqua taffeta faille gown, cut with a full skirt, and short sleeves. She wore matching mitts and a picture hat, and carried a bouquet of yellow glamellias.

Robert Stenson of 97 Orchard street, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were LeRoy Donaldson of High Woods, brother-in-law of the bride, and Joseph Stenson of 9 Clifton avenue, brother of the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Airport Inn for 50 guests.

On their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Stenson will visit New York, and Washington, D. C. For traveling, the bride wore a slate gray suit, with navy accessories, and a yellow rose corsage. Upon their return the couple will make their home here.

The bride is an alumna of Saugerties High School, and the Moran-Spencerian School of Business. Prior to her marriage she was employed at the Kingston Lumber Corporation.

PROMPTNESS ESSENTIAL TO COURTESY

A reader explains: "I'm a bit puzzled as to the exact time a guest is expected to arrive at dinner. Let's say I'm invited for seven. Does this mean that I arrive on the stroke of seven, or earlier, and how much earlier?"

It means, ideally, on the stroke of seven, or scarcely more than a minute or two before or after. The only excuse for arriving a very few minutes after the hour is when you know the house customarily serves cocktails and you don't take any.

Wedding Toasts

Dear Mrs. Post: Please tell us some customary toasts and speeches given at the wedding reception—and by whom proposed.

Answer: Correctly, the best man proposes the toast to the bride and groom saying merely, "To the bride and groom" or "To John and Mary!" But there is no reason why other people may not propose brief toasts, although at a large reception these necessarily are confined to individual groups.

Birth Announcements Ad Infinitum!

Dear Mrs. Post: Have heard it is not proper to send birth announcements for a second child. Is this true? Why shouldn't a second and third, even fourth and fifth child be just as important news?

Answer: It is just as proper to send them for the last child in the family as the first. Only those people who mistakenly believe that an announcement requires a gift can find any objection to this.

Marking Linens

Dear Mrs. Post: Please tell us whose initials should be used on bed and bathroom linen when replacements are necessary some years after marriage?

Answer: The wife's.

Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but her booklet, No. 501, "Weddings," includes information about the announcement, reception, ceremony and clothes of the bridal party. Good Taste Today

PROMPTNESS ESSENTIAL TO COURTESY

A reader explains: "I'm a bit puzzled as to the exact time a guest is expected to arrive at dinner. Let's say I'm invited for seven. Does this mean that I arrive on the stroke of seven, or earlier, and how much earlier?"

It means, ideally, on the stroke of seven, or scarcely more than a minute or two before or after. The only excuse for arriving a very few minutes after the hour is when you know the house customarily serves cocktails and you don't take any.

Wedding Toasts

Dear Mrs. Post: Please tell us some customary toasts and speeches given at the wedding reception—and by whom proposed.

Answer: Correctly, the best man proposes the toast to the bride and groom saying merely, "To the bride and groom" or "To John and Mary!" But there is no reason why other people may not propose brief toasts, although at a large reception these necessarily are confined to individual groups.

Birth Announcements Ad Infinitum!

Dear Mrs. Post: Have heard it is not proper to send birth announcements for a second child. Is this true? Why shouldn't a second and third, even fourth and fifth child be just as important news?

Answer: It is just as proper to send them for the last child in the family as the first. Only those people who mistakenly believe that an announcement requires a gift can find any objection to this.

Marking Linens

Dear Mrs. Post: Please tell us whose initials should be used on bed and bathroom linen when replacements are necessary some years after marriage?

Answer: The wife's.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Resounding Double May Tip Declarer

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

When today's hand was actually played, South knew something that doesn't appear in cold print. West had doubled the contract of four spades as though he had found a thousand-dollar bill in the street and could hardly believe his good luck. Hence there was absolutely no doubt in South's mind as to where all the high cards were.

West won the first club trick and led the ace of clubs, whereupon South ruffed. Declarer next led the king of spades and another trump to dummy's ace. Now South returned a heart from dummy and put up the ace instead of taking the finesse. He followed with the queen of hearts, obliging West to win with the king.

West dared not return a club or a heart, since dummy would ruff while South discarded a diamond. Then a low diamond would be ducked around to West, and he would once more have the same problem.

West therefore returned the jack of diamonds, which South won with the queen. Declarer returned the seven of diamonds, obliging West to win with the ten.

Now West was hooked a second time in the same hand. If he returned a diamond, South would make two tricks with his ace-nine; and if West returned anything else, dummy could ruff while South discarded the nine of diamonds.

South could have made his contract another way also. After drawing trumps, he could have ducked a low diamond to West. That player would win and return a diamond (best), whereupon South would take his two diamond tricks and give up another diamond, forcing West to win and lead hearts.

However, South could not make the contract if he tried the heart finesse. West would win and return a heart in perfect safety. Thereafter South would have to lose two diamond tricks.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Resounding Double May Tip Declarer

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

When today's hand was actually played, South knew something that doesn't appear in cold print. West had doubled the contract of four spades as though he had found a thousand-dollar bill in the street and could hardly believe his good luck. Hence there was absolutely no doubt in South's mind as to where all the high cards were.

West won the first club trick and led the ace of clubs, whereupon South ruffed. Declarer next led the king of spades and another trump to dummy's ace. Now South returned a heart from dummy and put up the ace instead of taking the finesse. He followed with the queen of hearts, obliging West to win with the king.

West dared not return a club or a heart, since dummy would ruff while South discarded a diamond. Then a low diamond would be ducked around to West, and he would once more have the same problem.

West therefore returned the jack of diamonds, which South won with the queen. Declarer returned the seven of diamonds, obliging West to win with the ten.

Now West was hooked a second time in the same hand. If he returned a diamond, South would make two tricks with his ace-nine; and if West returned anything else, dummy could ruff while South discarded the nine of diamonds.

South could have made his contract another way also. After drawing trumps, he could have ducked a low diamond to West. That player would win and return a diamond (best), whereupon South would take his two diamond tricks and give up another diamond, forcing West to win and lead hearts.

However, South could not make the contract if he tried the heart finesse. West would win and return a heart in perfect safety. Thereafter South would have to lose two diamond tricks.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Resounding Double May Tip Declarer

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

When today's hand was actually played, South knew something that doesn't appear in cold print. West had doubled the contract of four spades as though he had found a thousand-dollar bill in the street and could hardly believe his good luck. Hence there was absolutely no doubt in South's mind as to where all the high cards were.

West won the first club trick and led the ace of clubs, whereupon South ruffed. Declarer next led the king of spades and another trump to dummy's ace. Now South returned a heart from dummy and put up the ace instead of taking the finesse. He followed with the queen of hearts, obliging West to win with the king.

West dared not return a club or a heart, since dummy would ruff while South discarded a diamond. Then a low diamond would be ducked around to West, and he would once more have the same problem.

West therefore returned the jack of diamonds, which South won with the queen. Declarer returned the seven of diamonds, obliging West to win with the ten.

Now West was hooked a second time in the same hand. If he returned a diamond, South would make two tricks with his ace-nine; and if West returned anything else, dummy could ruff while South discarded the nine of diamonds.

South could have made his contract another way also. After drawing trumps, he could have ducked a low diamond to West. That player would win and return a diamond (best), whereupon South would take his two diamond tricks and give up another diamond, forcing West to win and lead hearts.

However, South could not make the contract if he tried the heart finesse. West would win and return a heart in perfect safety. Thereafter South would have to lose two diamond tricks.

St. Peter's Defeats St. Mary's, 48-32, for County Senior CYO Title

St. Joseph's Cops Met Crown; Junior Loop to St. Mary's

J. Smith, Joe Erena Tournament Stars

St. Peter's wrapped up the Senior C.Y.O. basketball championship of Ulster county last night, by trouncing St. Mary's 48 to 32, in the C.Y.O. tournament finals at the municipal auditorium.

Other divisional champions are:

Met Division—St. Joseph's, 39-19 winners over St. Mary's.

Junior Division — St. Mary's, 40-27 winners over St. Joseph's.

J. Smith Stars

A 21-point barrage by J. Smith was instrumental in giving St. Peter's a substantial early lead over St. Mary's. The winners led 25-13 at halftime.

Smith hit for eight fields and added five singletons. Paul Smith and Frank Sass collected eight points apiece while Dan McGrane played a standout floor game for the St. Mary's squad.

Andy Juhl and Don Haggerty of St. Joseph's packed too much power for St. Mary's in the Met Division, accounting for 29 points between them. Juhl's 19 matched the entire output of the losers, while Haggerty hit for 10 and Manfro had eight. Rienzo's six led the losers, who trailed 20-8 at the half.

St. Mary's Junior quintet asserted itself in the second half, after being hard pressed to lead St. Joseph's 20-16 at halftime.

Joe Erena, the team's brightest star during the regular season, came through in the clutch with 16 points. McCluskey, L. Perry and Graney shared 18. Cahill and Secreto accounted for 15 of the St. Joseph's total.

Colonials Plan Meeting

The baseball picture brightened in Kingston today with the arrival of Hank Camelli, new manager of the Colonial baseball team in the Canadian-American League, amid definite signs that Wednesday's financial report at the Hotel Stuyvesant would reflect growing popular interest in the 1951 team.

Al Kurdt, who is assisting finance chairman, Dave Popick, in the drive to raise $15,000 by the start of the season, reported that the list of financial workers has been increased to nearly 50.

Temporary treasurer, Vic Roth, had more than $4,020 in cash on hand last week, according to a letter sent to the workers this week. The amount is expected to be nearly doubled by tomorrow night.

Camelli will be in Kingston for the next several days signing new players and making plans for a spring tryout camp and spring training for the Colonials.

All baseball fans in the city are invited to attend Wednesday's meeting which starts at 8 p. m. at the Stuyvesant.

Two-Ton Galento Here Saturday

"Two-Ton" Tony Galento, just returned from a triumphant tour of Europe, meets Wally Dusek, the Omaha Bearcat, in the feature wrestling match, Saturday night, March 31, at the municipal auditorium.

Galento, the former East Orange, N. J., barkeep, who had Joe Louis on the floor in a world's heavyweight championship bout, was a tremendous hit in Europe, especially in jolly old England where his tactics created a sensation.

After reading of Galento's smash hit in England, Joe Williams, the World-Telly sports columnist quipped:

"Either the British are slipping or Two-Ton isn't the same guy we used to know."

Forty years old, Galento hasn't changed much since the day he gave Joe Louis a hectic argument for four rounds and was within fleeting seconds of the world's heavyweight crown.

As a wrestler, Galento has never been pinned, but his rough tactics have cost him several disqualifications against topnotchers like Primo Carnera, Argentine Rocca and Lord Leslie Carlton. The Human Beer Barrel complains that as a boxer he was hit below the belt several times, but in wrestling he has been punched and kicked below the legal line thousands of times.

Dusek Is Tough

Dusek is well known to Kingston fans who have no fears about his ability to meet Galento on even terms when it comes to tossing dirty grips around. Dusek is from an old distinguished line of wrestling marauders—the five Dusek brothers of Omaha, known to the trade as the "Riot Squad."

Hall Kanner, "Mr. Germany of 1950," will tangle with the one-man riot squad, tough Johnny Hiederman, who survived two sensational brawls with Ivan Gorky in the local arena. This will be a two out of three falls bout with a 45-minute time limit.

The opening 30-minute bout will pit the popular Greek star, Mike Kilonis, against Wally Dern, a Greenwich Village artist. Dern, an Australian with a classic build, had to turn to wrestling in order to support himself while learning to paint. He was a standout in one previous appearance at the auditorium.

College Cagers Stay in Garden

New York, March 27 (AP)—College basketball will continue to be played in Madison Square Garden.

This was decided yesterday when the presidents of Manhattan, New York University and St. John's University announced "It is our firm conviction that college basketball can be played in the Garden without our student-players succumbing to corruption as disclosed in the recent scandal."

The college heads, in a joint statement, declared that the idea that "Madison Square Garden is totally responsible for the present status of intercollegiate basketball in metropolitan New York, and that the college gymnasium is a panacea for this evil is a myth.

"In spite of the college gymnasium, in spite even of education permeated with ethical, cultural and religious principles, it is still possible to have corruption, if the individual does not exercise courageously the powers of his own personality."

The statement was issued after a meeting of the very Rev. John A. Flynn, C.M. president of St. John's; Brother Bonaventure Thomas, F.S.C., president of Manhattan; and James L. Madden, acting chancellor at New York University, with Brig. Gen. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of the Garden, and Bernard Gimbel, who represented the Garden board of directors.

Harry Wright, president of City College of New York (CCNY) was unable to attend, but assured the group that CCNY would play in the Garden next year "if the board of higher eduction approves."

Long Island University was not represented having dropped the sport last month in the wake of the fixed game disclosures. Fourteen players from CCNY, NYU, Manhattan and Long Island have been involved in the widening betting scandal.

Bridge City Loses Dad Vail Regatta

New York, March 27 (AP)—The Dad Vail Regatta—the small colleges' "Poughkeepsie"—will be rowed at Tampa, Fla. this year, thus leaving the country's former center of crew without a race.

Last year, Poughkeepsie, a small city in the picturesque Hudson valley, lost the Intercollegiate Rowing Association Regatta to Marietta, O., because of increasing difficulties of lodging, transportation and financing.

This year, Poughkeepsie made no attempt to hold the Dad Vail race. In fact, Poughkeepsie officials told the colleges that there was no money on hand to finance the regatta on the Hudson this year—and in so many words suggested it be taken elsewhere.

Now, except for some schoolboy racing there won't be a ripple on the Hudson river, which for more than half a century was the hotbed of rowing in the United States.

The decision to shift the Dad Vail to Tampa was made last night at a meeting of the Board of Stewards here. The date was set as May 19 on the Hillsborough river.

Anthony P. Savarese, chairman of the board, said it was subject to "satisfactory arrangements for the transportation of crews and shells from the New England and middle states member colleges."

No KAA Meeting

The Kingston Athletic Association's March meeting has been cancelled. The next meeting will be at the call of the chair, Robert Umpleby, president, announced today.

Training Camp News in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Los Angeles, March 27 (AP)—Whether pitcher Frank Shea ever will regain the keen form he displayed as a rookie for the New York Yankees in 1947 is debatable. He suffered a torn back muscle in his latest comeback try yesterday.

Shea was working against the University of Southern California nine when he had to leave the mound in the second inning. Dr. Sidney Gayner, Yankee physician, would not estimate how long Shea would be unable to pitch.

Vero Beach, Fla., March 27 (AP)—Brooklyn Dodger Manager Charley Dressen hasn't given up yet on pitcher Rex Barney, his erratic righthander. He has ordered Barney to rejoin the main Brooklyn squad at Miami on Wednesday.

Lakeland, Fla., March 27 (AP)—Spider Jorgensen, the third sacker who recently joined the New York Giants, made his first appearance as a 1951 Giant yesterday. It was not an impressive debut—he struck out as a pinch-hitter against the Detroit Tigers.

Lakeland, Fla., March 27 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers, saddled with a 3-8 exhibition record, will miss the services of star third baseman George Kell for at least five days because of a spiked right hand.

First Baseman Monte Irvin of the New York Giants stepped on Kell's hand on a pickoff play yesterday and cut George's ring finger in two places. However, no bones were broken.

Herman on First

San Bernardino, Calif., March 27 (AP)—Babe Herman, the former major league outfielder who has been with the Pittsburgh Pirate organization several years, definitely will be the first base coach for the Bucs this season.

Pirate officials disclosed that Bob Clements, west coast supervisor of scouts, has failed to pass his physical examination for a return to active service in the air force. Had Clements passed, General Manager Branch Rickey planned to assign his scouting duties to Herman.

Easter Returns

Tucson, Ariz., March 27 (AP)—Luke Easter returns to first base today for the Cleveland Indians.

The big righthanded swinger hasn't seen action since he hurt an elbow three weeks ago. But he tested his power at batting practice the other day and knocked one pitch over the right field wall.

Luke needn't worry about his lack of practice affecting his status with the Indians. Manager Al Lopez made that clear yesterday when he said, "I'm going to keep Luke Easter, Al Rosen, Ray Boone and Bob Avila in there as much as possible. They have a lot of work to do, getting together."

Cleveland plays the St. Louis Browns today and stays in Arizona until its annual eastern barnstorming tour which starts April 5 against the New York Giants in Houston, Texas.

Pep Hurts Shoulder In Florida Bout

Miami Beach, Fla., March 27 (AP)—Former featherweight champion Willie Pep's unanimous decision over Pat Iacobucci of Cincinnati last night may be a costly one.

Lou Viscusi, Pep's manager, disclosed after the fight at Miami Beach Auditorium that Pep hurt his left shoulder in the first round and the injury may delay a return match with Sandy Saddler in New York in June.

Viscusi said Pep would go to Tampa today to have an X-ray made. He said it was the same shoulder Pep had injured in his last fight with Saddler.

The flashy former champion outclassed Iacobucci in their 10-round match before 3,254 fans, who paid a gross gate of $9,098.

Pep weighed 127 pounds, one more than Iacobucci.

Colonials Plan Meeting

The baseball picture brightened in Kingston today with the arrival of Hank Camelli, new manager of the Colonial baseball team in the Canadian-American League, amid definite signs that Wednesday's financial report at the Hotel Stuyvesant would reflect growing popular interest in the 1951 team.

Al Kurdt, who is assisting finance chairman, Dave Popick, in the drive to raise $15,000 by the start of the season, reported that the list of financial workers has been increased to nearly 50.

Temporary treasurer, Vic Roth, had more than $4,020 in cash on hand last week, according to a letter sent to the workers this week. The amount is expected to be nearly doubled by tomorrow night.

Camelli will be in Kingston for the next several days signing new players and making plans for a spring tryout camp and spring training for the Colonials.

All baseball fans in the city are invited to attend Wednesday's meeting which starts at 8 p. m. at the Stuyvesant.

Two-Ton Galento Here Saturday

"Two-Ton" Tony Galento, just returned from a triumphant tour of Europe, meets Wally Dusek, the Omaha Bearcat, in the feature wrestling match, Saturday night, March 31, at the municipal auditorium.

Galento, the former East Orange, N. J., barkeep, who had Joe Louis on the floor in a world's heavyweight championship bout, was a tremendous hit in Europe, especially in jolly old England where his tactics created a sensation.

After reading of Galento's smash hit in England, Joe Williams, the World-Telly sports columnist quipped:

"Either the British are slipping or Two-Ton isn't the same guy we used to know."

Forty years old, Galento hasn't changed much since the day he gave Joe Louis a hectic argument for four rounds and was within fleeting seconds of the world's heavyweight crown.

As a wrestler, Galento has never been pinned, but his rough tactics have cost him several disqualifications against topnotchers like Primo Carnera, Argentine Rocca and Lord Leslie Carlton. The Human Beer Barrel complains that as a boxer he was hit below the belt several times, but in wrestling he has been punched and kicked below the legal line thousands of times.

Dusek Is Tough

Dusek is well known to Kingston fans who have no fears about his ability to meet Galento on even terms when it comes to tossing dirty grips around. Dusek is from an old distinguished line of wrestling marauders—the five Dusek brothers of Omaha, known to the trade as the "Riot Squad."

Hall Kanner, "Mr. Germany of 1950," will tangle with the one-man riot squad, tough Johnny Hiederman, who survived two sensational brawls with Ivan Gorky in the local arena. This will be a two out of three falls bout with a 45-minute time limit.

The opening 30-minute bout will pit the popular Greek star, Mike Kilonis, against Wally Dern, a Greenwich Village artist. Dern, an Australian with a classic build, had to turn to wrestling in order to support himself while learning to paint. He was a standout in one previous appearance at the auditorium.

College Cagers Stay in Garden

New York, March 27 (AP)—College basketball will continue to be played in Madison Square Garden.

This was decided yesterday when the presidents of Manhattan, New York University and St. John's University announced "It is our firm conviction that college basketball can be played in the Garden without our student-players succumbing to corruption as disclosed in the recent scandal."

The college heads, in a joint statement, declared that the idea that "Madison Square Garden is totally responsible for the present status of intercollegiate basketball in metropolitan New York, and that the college gymnasium is a panacea for this evil is a myth.

"In spite of the college gymnasium, in spite even of education permeated with ethical, cultural and religious principles, it is still possible to have corruption, if the individual does not exercise courageously the powers of his own personality."

The statement was issued after a meeting of the very Rev. John A. Flynn, C.M. president of St. John's; Brother Bonaventure Thomas, F.S.C., president of Manhattan; and James L. Madden, acting chancellor at New York University, with Brig. Gen. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of the Garden, and Bernard Gimbel, who represented the Garden board of directors.

Harry Wright, president of City College of New York (CCNY) was unable to attend, but assured the group that CCNY would play in the Garden next year "if the board of higher eduction approves."

Long Island University was not represented having dropped the sport last month in the wake of the fixed game disclosures. Fourteen players from CCNY, NYU, Manhattan and Long Island have been involved in the widening betting scandal.

Bridge City Loses Dad Vail Regatta

New York, March 27 (AP)—The Dad Vail Regatta—the small colleges' "Poughkeepsie"—will be rowed at Tampa, Fla. this year, thus leaving the country's former center of crew without a race.

Last year, Poughkeepsie, a small city in the picturesque Hudson valley, lost the Intercollegiate Rowing Association Regatta to Marietta, O., because of increasing difficulties of lodging, transportation and financing.

This year, Poughkeepsie made no attempt to hold the Dad Vail race. In fact, Poughkeepsie officials told the colleges that there was no money on hand to finance the regatta on the Hudson this year—and in so many words suggested it be taken elsewhere.

Now, except for some schoolboy racing there won't be a ripple on the Hudson river, which for more than half a century was the hotbed of rowing in the United States.

The decision to shift the Dad Vail to Tampa was made last night at a meeting of the Board of Stewards here. The date was set as May 19 on the Hillsborough river.

Anthony P. Savarese, chairman of the board, said it was subject to "satisfactory arrangements for the transportation of crews and shells from the New England and middle states member colleges."

No KAA Meeting

The Kingston Athletic Association's March meeting has been cancelled. The next meeting will be at the call of the chair, Robert Umpleby, president, announced today.

Pep Hurts Shoulder In Florida Bout

Miami Beach, Fla., March 27 (AP)—Former featherweight champion Willie Pep's unanimous decision over Pat Iacobucci of Cincinnati last night may be a costly one.

Lou Viscusi, Pep's manager, disclosed after the fight at Miami Beach Auditorium that Pep hurt his left shoulder in the first round and the injury may delay a return match with Sandy Saddler in New York in June.

Viscusi said Pep would go to Tampa today to have an X-ray made. He said it was the same shoulder Pep had injured in his last fight with Saddler.

The flashy former champion outclassed Iacobucci in their 10-round match before 3,254 fans, who paid a gross gate of $9,098.

Pep weighed 127 pounds, one more than Iacobucci.

Colonials Plan Meeting

The baseball picture brightened in Kingston today with the arrival of Hank Camelli, new manager of the Colonial baseball team in the Canadian-American League, amid definite signs that Wednesday's financial report at the Hotel Stuyvesant would reflect growing popular interest in the 1951 team.

Al Kurdt, who is assisting finance chairman, Dave Popick, in the drive to raise $15,000 by the start of the season, reported that the list of financial workers has been increased to nearly 50.

Temporary treasurer, Vic Roth, had more than $4,020 in cash on hand last week, according to a letter sent to the workers this week. The amount is expected to be nearly doubled by tomorrow night.

Camelli will be in Kingston for the next several days signing new players and making plans for a spring tryout camp and spring training for the Colonials.

All baseball fans in the city are invited to attend Wednesday's meeting which starts at 8 p. m. at the Stuyvesant.

Two-Ton Galento Here Saturday

"Two-Ton" Tony Galento, just returned from a triumphant tour of Europe, meets Wally Dusek, the Omaha Bearcat, in the feature wrestling match, Saturday night, March 31, at the municipal auditorium.

Galento, the former East Orange, N. J., barkeep, who had Joe Louis on the floor in a world's heavyweight championship bout, was a tremendous hit in Europe, especially in jolly old England where his tactics created a sensation.

After reading of Galento's smash hit in England, Joe Williams, the World-Telly sports columnist quipped:

"Either the British are slipping or Two-Ton isn't the same guy we used to know."

Forty years old, Galento hasn't changed much since the day he gave Joe Louis a hectic argument for four rounds and was within fleeting seconds of the world's heavyweight crown.

As a wrestler, Galento has never been pinned, but his rough tactics have cost him several disqualifications against topnotchers like Primo Carnera, Argentine Rocca and Lord Leslie Carlton. The Human Beer Barrel complains that as a boxer he was hit below the belt several times, but in wrestling he has been punched and kicked below the legal line thousands of times.

Dusek Is Tough

Dusek is well known to Kingston fans who have no fears about his ability to meet Galento on even terms when it comes to tossing dirty grips around. Dusek is from an old distinguished line of wrestling marauders—the five Dusek brothers of Omaha, known to the trade as the "Riot Squad."

Hall Kanner, "Mr. Germany of 1950," will tangle with the one-man riot squad, tough Johnny Hiederman, who survived two sensational brawls with Ivan Gorky in the local arena. This will be a two out of three falls bout with a 45-minute time limit.

The opening 30-minute bout will pit the popular Greek star, Mike Kilonis, against Wally Dern, a Greenwich Village artist. Dern, an Australian with a classic build, had to turn to wrestling in order to support himself while learning to paint. He was a standout in one previous appearance at the auditorium.

College Cagers Stay in Garden

New York, March 27 (AP)—College basketball will continue to be played in Madison Square Garden.

This was decided yesterday when the presidents of Manhattan, New York University and St. John's University announced "It is our firm conviction that college basketball can be played in the Garden without our student-players succumbing to corruption as disclosed in the recent scandal."

The college heads, in a joint statement, declared that the idea that "Madison Square Garden is totally responsible for the present status of intercollegiate basketball in metropolitan New York, and that the college gymnasium is a panacea for this evil is a myth.

"In spite of the college gymnasium, in spite even of education permeated with ethical, cultural and religious principles, it is still possible to have corruption, if the individual does not exercise courageously the powers of his own personality."

The statement was issued after a meeting of the very Rev. John A. Flynn, C.M. president of St. John's; Brother Bonaventure Thomas, F.S.C., president of Manhattan; and James L. Madden, acting chancellor at New York University, with Brig. Gen. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of the Garden, and Bernard Gimbel, who represented the Garden board of directors.

Harry Wright, president of City College of New York (CCNY) was unable to attend, but assured the group that CCNY would play in the Garden next year "if the board of higher eduction approves."

Long Island University was not represented having dropped the sport last month in the wake of the fixed game disclosures. Fourteen players from CCNY, NYU, Manhattan and Long Island have been involved in the widening betting scandal.

(IN BRIEF)

(By The Associated Press)

Greensboro, N. C. — Arthur Doering of Chicago won the Greensboro Open Golf tournament with a 72-hole total of 279.

Pinehurst, N. C.—Patty Berg of Minneapolis shot a 221 for first prize in the Sandhills Women's Open Golf tournament.

Bridge City Loses Dad Vail Regatta

New York, March 27 (AP)—The Dad Vail Regatta—the small colleges' "Poughkeepsie"—will be rowed at Tampa, Fla. this year, thus leaving the country's former center of crew without a race.

Last year, Poughkeepsie, a small city in the picturesque Hudson valley, lost the Intercollegiate Rowing Association Regatta to Marietta, O., because of increasing difficulties of lodging, transportation and financing.

This year, Poughkeepsie made no attempt to hold the Dad Vail race. In fact, Poughkeepsie officials told the colleges that there was no money on hand to finance the regatta on the Hudson this year—and in so many words suggested it be taken elsewhere.

Now, except for some schoolboy racing there won't be a ripple on the Hudson river, which for more than half a century was the hotbed of rowing in the United States.

The decision to shift the Dad Vail to Tampa was made last night at a meeting of the Board of Stewards here. The date was set as May 19 on the Hillsborough river.

Anthony P. Savarese, chairman of the board, said it was subject to "satisfactory arrangements for the transportation of crews and shells from the New England and middle states member colleges."

No KAA Meeting

The Kingston Athletic Association's March meeting has been cancelled. The next meeting will be at the call of the chair, Robert Umpleby, president, announced today.

In his opening set he collected 144-124-167, while the 530 was made up of 181, 199 and 150. G. Haines shot 465 and E. Haines 433. In the first bracket of matches, Peyer's 435 was the lone "400."

Minor League keglers pounded 31 triples of "500" or better and three in the 600-bracket, with Wee Willie Winslow, the top man at the Bowlodrome planks.

Locals Roll 1125 Set Against Middies

Adirondack Trailways missed their fourth "3200" series of the season by only six sticks in Hudson Valley League competition at the Bowlodrome Sunday, merely because the anchor man, Johnny Ferraro, blew the 6-pin in the final frame.

As it was, the Trailways crashed a hefty 3194 with team games of 1040, 1029 and 1125 to sweep three games from the Middletown Bennetts.

Ferraro suffered the further ignominy of shooting the lowest series—621—as all five Trailways went over the coveted mark. The average kegler, however, is far from chagrined by a 621 count.

Hammerin' Hank Kemmerer, bidding for third slot in the individual averages, led the firing with 212-221-233-666. Johnny Schatzel rolled 221-214-624; Harold Broskie 216-237-636 and veteran Fred Rice had 213-254-647.

The scores:

Adirondack Trailways (3)

R. Schatzel Cracks 637

Rose Schatzel, the undisputed bowling Queen of the Hudson valley district, has another "600" series to her credit.

The dark haired dynamiter knocked off 637, with 211-226-200, to feature last night's rolling in the Women's Major League at the Bowlodrome.

The runnerup, Beverly Port, accounted for 187-160-211-558; Reta Frederick 526; Ada Markle 515; Charlotte Lapine 505.

Also top bracket were Dot Rawding 499; Marge Jansen 487; Grace Wojciehowski 488; Kay Brodhead 484; Sue Heins 473; Elizabeth Bruck 464 and Eleanor Singer 455.

Lake Trout Season Opens on Sunday

Albany, N. Y., March 27 (AP)—Sunday is the opening day of the fishing season for lake trout in most of the state and for rainbow trout in the Finger Lakes and some of their tributaries.

The season for browns, brooks and rainbows will get underway April 14, outside the Finger Lakes region.

All seasons will end in September.

Spawning trout, some weighing more than 20 pounds, have been running into the Seneca Lake tributary since February, the State Conservation Department said today. Warm rains are expected to send thousands more trout into the creek.

Certain parts of the Finger Lakes' tributaries are closed to fishing, the Department pointed out. It advised fishermen to check the Department's fish and game syllabus for detailed information.

The lake trout season will end Sept. 10 in most of the state. However, it will extend only to Sept. 1 in Lake George.

The trout season runs from April 14 until Sept. 1 at Lakes Gilead and Gleneida in Putnam county.

Goes Into Alcatraz

San Francisco, March 27 (AP)—Badman William E. (Billy) Cook moved silently and stoically into Alcatraz prison last night to start serving a 300-year sentence for the kidnap-slaying of a family of five. Warden Edwin B. Swope said the sentence pronounced by an Oklahoma Federal Court for the kidnap-slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mosser of Atwood, Ill., and their three children, was the longest he had ever known meted out. The 23-year-old former Missouri dishwasher had handcuffs and leg irons on him all the time during the trip from Oklahoma.

Bowling Roundup

Joe Singer, a solid, steady bowler in the intermediate brackets, and a stellar city tournament performer, captured the $50 first prize in the Bowlatorium week-end sweepstakes with a 677 gross. He shot actual pinnage of 202-224-203—629 and had a 48-pin handicap. Tom Carlino packed a rousing 257 third set, despite two 10-pin taps, to take down first prize in the scratch division with 629. He had scores of 168, 204 and 257. Mitzie Arlensky rolled 234 for $5 for high single out of the money and Sue Heins' 200 was worth the same amount in the distaff department. A $50 gross prize, $35 scratch and $15 gross for women is on tap for next week-end's competition.

After chasing Vogel's Dairy throughout most of the Independent League season, Callanans finally overhauled the Dairymen last night to lead the pack by a two-game margin. These two teams clash in a climactic match in the schedule finale next week. Beichert's are third and Martin's Market fourth.

In his opening set he collected 144-124-167, while the 530 was made up of 181, 199 and 150. G. Haines shot 465 and E. Haines 433. In the first bracket of matches, Peyer's 435 was the lone "400."

Minor League keglers pounded 31 tripies of "500" or better and three in the 600-bracket, with Wee Willie Winslow, the top man at the Bowlodrome planks.

Winslow, prepping for the forthcoming invasion of the state tournament in Elmira, knocked off 188-225-201-614. Leo Bechtold hit for 247-613 and Dom Clausi rounded out the Big Three with 223-608.

Locals Roll 1125 Set Against Middies

Adirondack Trailways missed their fourth "3200" series of the season by only six sticks in Hudson Valley League competition at the Bowlodrome Sunday, merely because the anchor man, Johnny Ferraro, blew the 6-pin in the final frame.

As it was, the Trailways crashed a hefty 3194 with team games of 1040, 1029 and 1125 to sweep three games from the Middletown Bennetts.

Ferraro suffered the further ignominy of shooting the lowest series—621—as all five Trailways went over the coveted mark. The average kegler, however, is far from chagrined by a 621 count.

Hammerin' Hank Kemmerer, bidding for third slot in the individual averages, led the firing with 212-221-233-666. Johnny Schatzel rolled 221-214-624; Harold Broskie 216-237-636 and veteran Fred Rice had 213-254-647.

Lake Trout Season Opens on Sunday

Albany, N. Y., March 27 (AP)—Sunday is the opening day of the fishing season for lake trout in most of the state and for rainbow trout in the Finger Lakes and some of their tributaries.

The season for browns, brooks and rainbows will get underway April 14, outside the Finger Lakes region.

All seasons will end in September.

Hundreds of fishermen are expected to line the banks of Catherine Creek, near Watkins Glen, for the opening of the special Finger Lakes season.

Spawning trout, some weighing more than 20 pounds, have been running into the Seneca Lake tributary since February, the State Conservation Department said today. Warm rains are expected to send thousands more trout into the creek.

Certain parts of the Finger Lakes' tributaries are closed to fishing, the Department pointed out. It advised fishermen to check the Department's fish and game syllabus for detailed information.

The lake trout season will end Sept. 10 in most of the state. However, it will extend only to Sept. 1 in Lake George.

The trout season runs from April 14 until Sept. 1 at Lakes Gilead and Gleneida in Putnam county.

Goes Into Alcatraz

San Francisco, March 27 (AP)—Badman William E. (Billy) Cook moved silently and stoically into Alcatraz prison last night to start serving a 300-year sentence for the kidnap-slaying of a family of five. Warden Edwin B. Swope said the sentence pronounced by an Oklahoma Federal Court for the kidnap-slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mosser of Atwood, Ill., and their three children, was the longest he had ever known meted out. The 23-year-old former Missouri dishwasher had handcuffs and leg irons on him all the time during the trip from Oklahoma.

Trailways Crack 3194, Kemmerer Blasts 666

Ken Norton Speaks Here Wednesday

Ken Norton, athletic director and head basketball coach at Manhattan University, will be the principal speaker at the first annual Church Basketball League banquet, Wednesday night at the Hotel Stuyvesant.

Andy Murphy, superintendent of the Recreation Department, which sponsored the league, said today that Hank Camelli, Kingston Colonial baseball manager, would also be a speaker. The banquet will start at 6 p. m.

Locals Roll 1125 Set Against Middies

Adirondack Trailways missed their fourth "3200" series of the season by only six sticks in Hudson Valley League competition at the Bowlodrome Sunday, merely because the anchor man, Johnny Ferraro, blew the 6-pin in the final frame.

As it was, the Trailways crashed a hefty 3194 with team games of 1040, 1029 and 1125 to sweep three games from the Middletown Bennetts.

Ferraro suffered the further ignominy of shooting the lowest series—621—as all five Trailways went over the coveted mark. The average kegler, however, is far from chagrined by a 621 count.

Hammerin' Hank Kemmerer, bidding for third slot in the individual averages, led the firing with 212-221-233-666. Johnny Schatzel rolled 221-214-624; Harold Broskie 216-237-636 and veteran Fred Rice had 213-254-647.

Lake Trout Season Opens on Sunday

Albany, N. Y., March 27 (AP)—Sunday is the opening day of the fishing season for lake trout in most of the state and for rainbow trout in the Finger Lakes and some of their tributaries.

The season for browns, brooks and rainbows will get underway April 14, outside the Finger Lakes region.

All seasons will end in September.

Hundreds of fishermen are expected to line the banks of Catherine Creek, near Watkins Glen, for the opening of the special Finger Lakes season.

Spawning trout, some weighing more than 20 pounds, have been running into the Seneca Lake tributary since February, the State Conservation Department said today. Warm rains are expected to send thousands more trout into the creek.

Certain parts of the Finger Lakes' tributaries are closed to fishing, the Department pointed out. It advised fishermen to check the Department's fish and game syllabus for detailed information.

The lake trout season will end Sept. 10 in most of the state. However, it will extend only to Sept. 1 in Lake George.

The trout season runs from April 14 until Sept. 1 at Lakes Gilead and Gleneida in Putnam county.

Goes Into Alcatraz

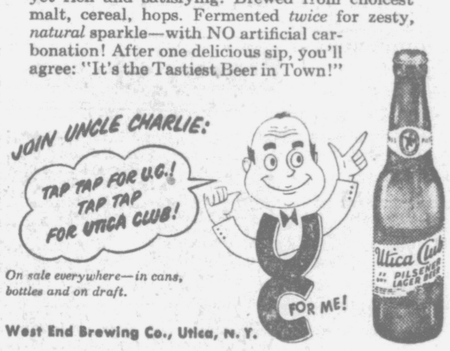

San Francisco, March 27 (AP)—Badman William E. (Billy) Cook moved silently and stoically into Alcatraz prison last night to start serving a 300-year sentence for the kidnap-slaying of a family of five. Warden Edwin B. Swope said the sentence pronounced by an Oklahoma Federal Court for the kidnap-slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mosser of Atwood, Ill., and their three children, was the longest he had ever known meted out. The 23-year-old former Missouri dishwasher had handcuffs and leg irons on him all the time during the trip from Oklahoma.

MEN

We don't care what your past work or earnings have been. We are not worried about your education, your religion or your nationality.

We are interested in how ambitious you are and how willing you are to work and study, to qualify for the kind of weekly and monthly perc. earnings being made by men already connected with this International Co.

You may be employed now but starving for lack of opportunity. You may be out of work and in need of employment. However, if you have been idle for more than a few months, we doubt if you are the kind of a man who could hold down the place we have to offer.

It will cost you nothing to investigate this ad and, until we talk with you, we cannot tell whether you could qualify in our electrical and chemical equipment business, outstanding in industry.

If we come to an agreement in a preliminary interview you will be in production by the end of the week. Apply at desk, Palatine Hotel, Newburgh, N. Y., on Wed., March 28, at 10-11:30 a. m.

Price Experts Aim At Meat Ceilings By Middle of April

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Fixing of dollars and cents ceiling prices on meat by mid-April is the target at which government price experts aimed today.

Frankly acknowledging the meat price and supply situation is their No. 1 problem, Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) experts are working feverishly on a solution.

Both Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston and Price Director Michael V. DiSalle have said the ceilings will be ordered as soon as possible. But they haven't given any indication as to the probable date.

One OPS meat expert said, however, he didn't think he was being too optimistic in making the mid-April forecast.

Vigorously Opposed

The livestock men generally have been vigorously opposed to ceilings on live animals, especially cattle. They have predicted such ceilings would bring shortages and black markets. They have insisted in talks with DiSalle that such ceilings be made high enough to be "workable."

Along this line, Johnston has cautioned the public not to expect all meat prices to be rolled back to pre-Korean levels. If they were, he said, a lot of meat would certainly go into the black market.

Several meetings with various segments of the meat industry already have been held. Others will come this week and next.

Air Safety Is Same As Horse Buggy Travel

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Private flying now is approximately as safe as horse and buggy travel was in 1909, an air safety conference was told today.

The comparison was made in a report prepared by the Aviation Safety Center of Cornell University. The center is supported by the Guggenheim Foundation.

The report said commercial flying is now twice as safe as travel by private auto, but not as safe as in a bus or train.

The first move in the plan would be diversion of the 14,000-foot-high waters of Lake Titicaca, in Bolivia, down the slopes of the Andes mountains to southern Peru and northern Chile. U. S. officials said it is not yet known if the plan is technically feasible.

But Mr. Truman talked it over with Chile's President, Gabriel Ganzalez Videla, when Gonzalez Videla visited Washington a year ago. The Chilean president reportedly suggested that Chile would in return for the water offer Bolivia a seaport. Bolivia and Peru fought a war with Chile from 1879 to 1884, Bolivia losing the port of Antofagasta and Peru the port of Arica.

The positions are: inspector of locomotives, hours of service, railway signaling and train control, and of safety appliances. Information and application forms may be obtained from the commission's local secretary, William P. Barry, main post office, Kingston.

Recruiting Unit Lists Area Men

The U. S. Army and Air Force recruiting station, this city, today announce the enlistment of several young men from the county and city.

They are: For the air force from Kingston, Daniel Brown of 142 Third avenue and John A. Smith, 316 Lucas avenue. From Saugerties, Andrew P. Vosdick, Jr., 171 Ulster avenue; William H. Schneider, of Washington avenue, and Richard L. Wrolsen of 138 Washington avenue. From the county, Edwin L. Mower, RFD Saugerties; Walter H. Schmidt, Maple Hill; Karl F. Schroeder, Ohayo Road, Woodstock, and Walter R. Sutton, Ruby.

For the regular army, Joseph Menendez, 105 Abeel street, Kingston, and Stanley J. Craig, Ruby.

The air force enlistees were transferred to Sampson AFB, Geneva, for training and further assignment. The army volunteers were sent to Fort Devens, Mass., for processing and subsequent assignment to a training division for basic training. Upon completion they will receive advance training at technical schools or on-the-job-training with regular army units.

Firemen Are Called To Elmendorf Street

Materials in the storage drawers of a gas stove caught fire about 9 o'clock this morning when Mrs. George C. Flemings, Jr., attempted to light the oven in her apartment at 65 Elmendorf street, Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy reported.

The fire department was called when Mrs. Flemings was forced from the room by odors and smoke which resulted when she attempted to extinguish the fire by using small can-type extinguishers of carbon tetrachloride, the chief said. Damage was confined to the articles in the storage drawers plus some smoke damage, according to the report. The building is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Flemings and owned by his father, George L. Flemings of 34 Catskill avenue.

Contract Is Signed

New York, March 27 (AP)—Margaret Truman's often-reported contract with the National Broadcasting Company has been signed. The network announced yesterday that the President's daughter had signed for two or more radio or television appearances this season and at least nine in the 1951-52 season. NBC did not disclose how much Miss Truman will be paid. But it previously was reported unofficially that she would get $2,500 for each radio show and $4,000 fo reach TV appearance.

Talk Is Discounted

New York, March 27 (AP)—Talk of plans for a $10,000,000 skyscraper "World Center of Education" has been discounted by Maximilian Moss, president of the city board of education. The idea was advanced Sunday by Charles J. Bensley, chairman of the board's buildings and sites committee. Bensley said a 30-story structure, near the U.N. headquarters, would house various education board offices as well as a high school.

Anastasio Held For Deportation Trial on Charges

New York, March 27 (AP)—Joseph Anastasio, brother of Albert Anastasia, reputed executioner for the old Murder, Inc., mob, was arrested today and held for deportation proceedings.

The 46-year-old longshoreman was seized in his Brooklyn home early today. Later he was booked by police and held for immigration authorities on a charge of violating U. S. immigration laws.

Police said Anastasio entered the U. S. illegally by jumping ship in San Francisco in 1929. The longshoreman spells his name with a terminal "o", in contrast to the spelling used by his four brothers.

Albert Anastasia was summoned to appear before the Senate Crime Investigating Committee here last week. But on the day he was scheduled to testify he entered a New Jersey hospital, reportedly suffering from conjunctivitis, an eye inflammation.

A third Anastasia brother, Anthony, previously had testified before the committee. He admitted under questioning that he and his four brothers entered the U. S. from Italy by jumping ship in several American ports. The witness said that he later legalized his entry by entering from Canada on a visa.

Albert Anastasia was described by former Mayor William O'Dwyer in testimony before the crime probers as the "high executioner" of Murder, Inc., former Brooklyn murder-for-profit gang that operated about a decade ago.

New Trial Is Set

Los Angeles, March 27 (AP)—John Agar, divorced husband of actress Shirley Temple, goes to trial again May 7 on drunk driving charges. His attorney, Llewellyn Moses, fainted in court yesterday and the all-woman jury was sent home. Moses has a virus infection. Agar was arrested on the drunk driving charge Jan. 13.

Tobey Is Placed Under Guard After 2 Threats on Life

Boston, March 27 (AP)—The Boston Globe says today the life of Sen. Charles W. Tobey (R.-N. H.), outspoken member of the Senate Crime Committee, has been threatened twice in the last eight days and he is under 24-hour guard.

The 70-year-old Tobey told the Globe in a telephone conversation from his Alexandria, Va., home he received the second threat yesterday in the form of an anonymous letter.

Charles W. Tobey, Jr., the senator's son, said his father received the first threat a week ago last Sunday. He added his father "without knowing it, has had protection 24 hours a day and protection will continue."

Young Tobey said the latest threat was relayed to his father by "one of the prominent persons associated with the committee."

He disclosed the threats to the Globe after FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover testified yesterday in Washington that threats of violence and intimidation have been hurled at members of Senate Crime Committee.

Earlier, Sen. Lester Hunt (D.-Wyo.), another member of the committee, disclosed he had received a letter postmarked in Boston and written anonymously, warning him of the consequences to "those who stick their noses into other people's business."

Rudolph Halley, chief counsel of the committee, said his office had received an anonymous call from a man who warned he "could plant a bomb and blow up the building."

Wicks Says '51 Legislature . . .

Legislature. It would be impossible to touch on more than a few of the highlights, which included a loyalty test program for state workers, designed to permit the ouster or transfer of employes in "sensitive areas" whose doubtful loyalty makes them poor defense risks; general tightening and toughening of laws concerning possession and sale of narcotics; continuation of rent control regulations, providing voluntary agreements for rent increases; final approval and submission to the people of a proposed Constitutional amendment by which the State would guarantee the Thruway Authority's bonds for construction of the New York-to-Buffalo Thruway;, doubling of the maximum penalty for bribing athletes; and authorization for the State Racing Commission to take over licensing of horse racing in the light of a recent Court of Appeals decision which declared the present system of licensing unconstitutional.

"All in all, I believe the Legislature viewed its responsibility clearly and met it squarely. Its record is one in which every citizen of our state, regardless of party, can take great pride and comfort. The people of New York state can rest assured that the affairs of government are in capable hands under an administration which has consistently adhered to the principle that government is the servant, not the master, of the people."

Price Experts Aim At Meat Ceilings By Middle of April

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Fixing of dollars and cents ceiling prices on meat by mid-April is the target at which government price experts aimed today.

Frankly acknowledging the meat price and supply situation is their No. 1 problem, Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) experts are working feverishly on a solution.

Both Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston and Price Director Michael V. DiSalle have said the ceilings will be ordered as soon as possible. But they haven't given any indication as to the probable date.

One OPS meat expert said, however, he didn't think he was being too optimistic in making the mid-April forecast.

Vigorously Opposed

The livestock men generally have been vigorously opposed to ceilings on live animals, especially cattle. They have predicted such ceilings would bring shortages and black markets. They have insisted in talks with DiSalle that such ceilings be made high enough to be "workable."

Along this line, Johnston has cautioned the public not to expect all meat prices to be rolled back to pre-Korean levels. If they were, he said, a lot of meat would certainly go into the black market.

Several meetings with various segments of the meat industry already have been held. Others will come this week and next.

Air Safety Is Same As Horse Buggy Travel

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Private flying now is approximately as safe as horse and buggy travel was in 1909, an air safety conference was told today.

The comparison was made in a report prepared by the Aviation Safety Center of Cornell University. The center is supported by the Guggenheim Foundation.

The report said commercial flying is now twice as safe as travel by private auto, but not as safe as in a bus or train.

The first move in the plan would be diversion of the 14,000-foot-high waters of Lake Titicaca, in Bolivia, down the slopes of the Andes mountains to southern Peru and northern Chile. U. S. officials said it is not yet known if the plan is technically feasible.

But Mr. Truman talked it over with Chile's President, Gabriel Ganzalez Videla, when Gonzalez Videla visited Washington a year ago. The Chilean president reportedly suggested that Chile would in return for the water offer Bolivia a seaport. Bolivia and Peru fought a war with Chile from 1879 to 1884, Bolivia losing the port of Antofagasta and Peru the port of Arica.

Firemen Are Called To Elmendorf Street

Materials in the storage drawers of a gas stove caught fire about 9 o'clock this morning when Mrs. George C. Flemings, Jr., attempted to light the oven in her apartment at 65 Elmendorf street, Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy reported.

The fire department was called when Mrs. Flemings was forced from the room by odors and smoke which resulted when she attempted to extinguish the fire by using small can-type extinguishers of carbon tetrachloride, the chief said. Damage was confined to the articles in the storage drawers plus some smoke damage, according to the report. The building is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Flemings and owned by his father, George L. Flemings of 34 Catskill avenue.

Contract Is Signed

New York, March 27 (AP)—Margaret Truman's often-reported contract with the National Broadcasting Company has been signed. The network announced yesterday that the President's daughter had signed for two or more radio or television appearances this season and at least nine in the 1951-52 season. NBC did not disclose how much Miss Truman will be paid. But it previously was reported unofficially that she would get $2,500 for each radio show and $4,000 fo reach TV appearance.

Talk Is Discounted

New York, March 27 (AP)—Talk of plans for a $10,000,000 skyscraper "World Center of Education" has been discounted by Maximilian Moss, president of the city board of education. The idea was advanced Sunday by Charles J. Bensley, chairman of the board's buildings and sites committee. Bensley said a 30-story structure, near the U.N. headquarters, would house various education board offices as well as a high school.

Anastasio Held For Deportation Trial on Charges

New York, March 27 (AP)—Joseph Anastasio, brother of Albert Anastasia, reputed executioner for the old Murder, Inc., mob, was arrested today and held for deportation proceedings.

The 46-year-old longshoreman was seized in his Brooklyn home early today. Later he was booked by police and held for immigration authorities on a charge of violating U. S. immigration laws.

Police said Anastasio entered the U. S. illegally by jumping ship in San Francisco in 1929. The longshoreman spells his name with a terminal "o", in contrast to the spelling used by his four brothers.

Albert Anastasia was summoned to appear before the Senate Crime Investigating Committee here last week. But on the day he was scheduled to testify he entered a New Jersey hospital, reportedly suffering from conjunctivitis, an eye inflammation.

A third Anastasia brother, Anthony, previously had testified before the committee. He admitted under questioning that he and his four brothers entered the U. S. from Italy by jumping ship in several American ports. The witness said that he later legalized his entry by entering from Canada on a visa.

Albert Anastasia was described by former Mayor William O'Dwyer in testimony before the crime probers as the "high executioner" of Murder, Inc., former Brooklyn murder-for-profit gang that operated about a decade ago.

New Trial Is Set

Los Angeles, March 27 (AP)—John Agar, divorced husband of actress Shirley Temple, goes to trial again May 7 on drunk driving charges. His attorney, Llewellyn Moses, fainted in court yesterday and the all-woman jury was sent home. Moses has a virus infection. Agar was arrested on the drunk driving charge Jan. 13.

Tobey Is Placed Under Guard After 2 Threats on Life

Boston, March 27 (AP)—The Boston Globe says today the life of Sen. Charles W. Tobey (R.-N. H.), outspoken member of the Senate Crime Committee, has been threatened twice in the last eight days and he is under 24-hour guard.

The 70-year-old Tobey told the Globe in a telephone conversation from his Alexandria, Va., home he received the second threat yesterday in the form of an anonymous letter.

Charles W. Tobey, Jr., the senator's son, said his father received the first threat a week ago last Sunday. He added his father "without knowing it, has had protection 24 hours a day and protection will continue."

Young Tobey said the latest threat was relayed to his father by "one of the prominent persons associated with the committee."

He disclosed the threats to the Globe after FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover testified yesterday in Washington that threats of violence and intimidation have been hurled at members of Senate Crime Committee.

Earlier, Sen. Lester Hunt (D.-Wyo.), another member of the committee, disclosed he had received a letter postmarked in Boston and written anonymously, warning him of the consequences to "those who stick their noses into other people's business."

Rudolph Halley, chief counsel of the committee, said his office had received an anonymous call from a man who warned he "could plant a bomb and blow up the building."

Wicks Says '51 Legislature . . .

Legislature. It would be impossible to touch on more than a few of the highlights, which included a loyalty test program for state workers, designed to permit the ouster or transfer of employes in "sensitive areas" whose doubtful loyalty makes them poor defense risks; general tightening and toughening of laws concerning possession and sale of narcotics; continuation of rent control regulations, providing voluntary agreements for rent increases; final approval and submission to the people of a proposed Constitutional amendment by which the State would guarantee the Thruway Authority's bonds for construction of the New York-to-Buffalo Thruway;, doubling of the maximum penalty for bribing athletes; and authorization for the State Racing Commission to take over licensing of horse racing in the light of a recent Court of Appeals decision which declared the present system of licensing unconstitutional.

"All in all, I believe the Legislature viewed its responsibility clearly and met it squarely. Its record is one in which every citizen of our state, regardless of party, can take great pride and comfort. The people of New York state can rest assured that the affairs of government are in capable hands under an administration which has consistently adhered to the principle that government is the servant, not the master, of the people."

Price Experts Aim At Meat Ceilings By Middle of April

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Fixing of dollars and cents ceiling prices on meat by mid-April is the target at which government price experts aimed today.

Frankly acknowledging the meat price and supply situation is their No. 1 problem, Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) experts are working feverishly on a solution.

Both Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston and Price Director Michael V. DiSalle have said the ceilings will be ordered as soon as possible. But they haven't given any indication as to the probable date.

One OPS meat expert said, however, he didn't think he was being too optimistic in making the mid-April forecast.

Vigorously Opposed

The livestock men generally have been vigorously opposed to ceilings on live animals, especially cattle. They have predicted such ceilings would bring shortages and black markets. They have insisted in talks with DiSalle that such ceilings be made high enough to be "workable."

Along this line, Johnston has cautioned the public not to expect all meat prices to be rolled back to pre-Korean levels. If they were, he said, a lot of meat would certainly go into the black market.

Several meetings with various segments of the meat industry already have been held. Others will come this week and next.

Air Safety Is Same As Horse Buggy Travel

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Private flying now is approximately as safe as horse and buggy travel was in 1909, an air safety conference was told today.

The comparison was made in a report prepared by the Aviation Safety Center of Cornell University. The center is supported by the Guggenheim Foundation.

The report said commercial flying is now twice as safe as travel by private auto, but not as safe as in a bus or train.

Firemen Are Called To Elmendorf Street

Materials in the storage drawers of a gas stove caught fire about 9 o'clock this morning when Mrs. George C. Flemings, Jr., attempted to light the oven in her apartment at 65 Elmendorf street, Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy reported.

The fire department was called when Mrs. Flemings was forced from the room by odors and smoke which resulted when she attempted to extinguish the fire by using small can-type extinguishers of carbon tetrachloride, the chief said. Damage was confined to the articles in the storage drawers plus some smoke damage, according to the report. The building is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Flemings and owned by his father, George L. Flemings of 34 Catskill avenue.

Contract Is Signed

New York, March 27 (AP)—Margaret Truman's often-reported contract with the National Broadcasting Company has been signed. The network announced yesterday that the President's daughter had signed for two or more radio or television appearances this season and at least nine in the 1951-52 season. NBC did not disclose how much Miss Truman will be paid. But it previously was reported unofficially that she would get $2,500 for each radio show and $4,000 fo reach TV appearance.

Talk Is Discounted

New York, March 27 (AP)—Talk of plans for a $10,000,000 skyscraper "World Center of Education" has been discounted by Maximilian Moss, president of the city board of education. The idea was advanced Sunday by Charles J. Bensley, chairman of the board's buildings and sites committee. Bensley said a 30-story structure, near the U.N. headquarters, would house various education board offices as well as a high school.

Acheson Urges . . .

hind the obviously unhappy "no comments."

The first move in the plan would be diversion of the 14,000-foot-high waters of Lake Titicaca, in Bolivia, down the slopes of the Andes mountains to southern Peru and northern Chile. U. S. officials said it is not yet known if the plan is technically feasible.

But Mr. Truman talked it over with Chile's President, Gabriel Ganzalez Videla, when Gonzalez Videla visited Washington a year ago. The Chilean president reportedly suggested that Chile would in return for the water offer Bolivia a seaport. Bolivia and Peru fought a war with Chile from 1879 to 1884, Bolivia losing the port of Antofagasta and Peru the port of Arica.

Anastasio Held For Deportation Trial on Charges

New York, March 27 (AP)—Joseph Anastasio, brother of Albert Anastasia, reputed executioner for the old Murder, Inc., mob, was arrested today and held for deportation proceedings.

The 46-year-old longshoreman was seized in his Brooklyn home early today. Later he was booked by police and held for immigration authorities on a charge of violating U. S. immigration laws.

Police said Anastasio entered the U. S. illegally by jumping ship in San Francisco in 1929. The longshoreman spells his name with a terminal "o", in contrast to the spelling used by his four brothers.

Albert Anastasia was summoned to appear before the Senate Crime Investigating Committee here last week. But on the day he was scheduled to testify he entered a New Jersey hospital, reportedly suffering from conjunctivitis, an eye inflammation.

A third Anastasia brother, Anthony, previously had testified before the committee. He admitted under questioning that he and his four brothers entered the U. S. from Italy by jumping ship in several American ports. The witness said that he later legalized his entry by entering from Canada on a visa.

Albert Anastasia was described by former Mayor William O'Dwyer in testimony before the crime probers as the "high executioner" of Murder, Inc., former Brooklyn murder-for-profit gang that operated about a decade ago.

Tobey Is Placed Under Guard After 2 Threats on Life

Boston, March 27 (AP)—The Boston Globe says today the life of Sen. Charles W. Tobey (R.-N. H.), outspoken member of the Senate Crime Committee, has been threatened twice in the last eight days and he is under 24-hour guard.

The 70-year-old Tobey told the Globe in a telephone conversation from his Alexandria, Va., home he received the second threat yesterday in the form of an anonymous letter.

Charles W. Tobey, Jr., the senator's son, said his father received the first threat a week ago last Sunday. He added his father "without knowing it, has had protection 24 hours a day and protection will continue."

Young Tobey said the latest threat was relayed to his father by "one of the prominent persons associated with the committee."

He disclosed the threats to the Globe after FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover testified yesterday in Washington that threats of violence and intimidation have been hurled at members of Senate Crime Committee.

Earlier, Sen. Lester Hunt (D.-Wyo.), another member of the committee, disclosed he had received a letter postmarked in Boston and written anonymously, warning him of the consequences to "those who stick their noses into other people's business."

Rudolph Halley, chief counsel of the committee, said his office had received an anonymous call from a man who warned he "could plant a bomb and blow up the building."

New Trial Is Set

Los Angeles, March 27 (AP)—John Agar, divorced husband of actress Shirley Temple, goes to trial again May 7 on drunk driving charges. His attorney, Llewellyn Moses, fainted in court yesterday and the all-woman jury was sent home. Moses has a virus infection. Agar was arrested on the drunk driving charge Jan. 13.

Wicks Says '51 Legislature . . .

Legislature. It would be impossible to touch on more than a few of the highlights, which included a loyalty test program for state workers, designed to permit the ouster or transfer of employes in "sensitive areas" whose doubtful loyalty makes them poor defense risks; general tightening and toughening of laws concerning possession and sale of narcotics; continuation of rent control regulations, providing voluntary agreements for rent increases; final approval and submission to the people of a proposed Constitutional amendment by which the State would guarantee the Thruway Authority's bonds for construction of the New York-to-Buffalo Thruway;, doubling of the maximum penalty for bribing athletes; and authorization for the State Racing Commission to take over licensing of horse racing in the light of a recent Court of Appeals decision which declared the present system of licensing unconstitutional.

"All in all, I believe the Legislature viewed its responsibility clearly and met it squarely. Its record is one in which every citizen of our state, regardless of party, can take great pride and comfort. The people of New York state can rest assured that the affairs of government are in capable hands under an administration which has consistently adhered to the principle that government is the servant, not the master, of the people."

It is said that SOS broadcasts for missing relatives of sick persons are successful in 54 per cent of the cases.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, JR.

Plans Discussed For New Roadway

Woodstock, March 27 — The Woodstock Fish and Game Club on Monday night, discussed the advisability of building a permanent driveway from the main road to the club house on the recreation field. Montcene DeWitt and Joseph Forno were appointed as a committee to determine whether the driveway should be of shale or blacktop.

A further discussion was concerned with plans for a trap shoot to be held in the near future at the club house and Joseph Forno was appointed chairman for the event.

Birge Simmons announced that the meeting of the Federation of Sportsmen Clubs will be held in Milton, on April 14.

Simmons reported that there have been several instances in Wittenberg, Willow and Glenford, where dogs have been observed running deer.

Following the business meeting Reese Smith, of Willow, showed colored slides of his recent trip to Arizona.

There will be no meeting of the Fish and Game Club in April, and the next meeting will be held on the second Monday in May.

Several Painters Active in South

Woodstock, March 27—Several Woodstock artists have been spending the winter painting in St. Augustine, Fla., among them, Marguerite Graham, Mercy Anne Hillman, Frances Dowd, Gladys Mitchell and Ethel Adams.

Mrs. Adams has sold five of her small street scenes of St. Augustine through the Art Association there. Some of her work will appear in the May issue of House Beautiful, in the "Window Shopping" column.

Mrs. Adams expects to return to this village about the end of the month.

To Give Dinner

Grass Fires Start

Woodstock, March 27 — The Woodstock Fire Company was called out twice early Monday afternoon. The first call at 1:15 p. m. was to the home of William Ladin where a brush fire was quenched. The second call came about 2.45 p. m. when another brush fire had broken out near the home of Benedetta Gentile on the Ohayo Mt. road. It has been requested by the Fire Company that all residents use extreme caution in burning rubbish.

Circle Theatre Has New Play

Woodstock, March 27—With a new play "Amata" by Eugene Raskin, the Loft Players have opened their second production at the Circle in the Square, Sheridan Square, Greenwich Village.

According to Aileen Cramer the first play, "Dark of the Moon," with which the group opened the arena theatre, was received favorably by such critics as Vernon Rice and Arthur Pollack, who wrote that "they play with gusto and make it an animated evening." Tom Dash of Women's Wear Daily said: "Seldom in numerous jaunts to the experimental off-Broadway theatre has this reviewer witnessed a more rewarding production."

The mode of presentation is the intimate and closely coordinated arena method. Those familiar with this style are aware of its ability to break down the barrier between actor and audience and thus bring about a closer association and understanding between the two participants.

Streams Stocked

Woodstock, March 27—Birge Simmons, president of the Woodstock Fish and Game Club, reports that within the last week approximately 3,500 trout have been placed in the streams around Woodstock. This represents the Conservation Department's quota for the club. Simmons says that he expects that another 1,500 trout of fingerling size will be placed in the streams on April 12.

Exhibit Praised

Woodstock, March 27 (AP) — A review of the show now on view at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in celebration of Art Students League Jubilee, appears in the March 15 issue of the Art Digest. Paul Bird writes that it is "a notable exhibition of paintings and sculptures by American artists who have been associated with the world-unique art school over its 75 years of existence." Along with the review a reproduc- of Yasuo Kuniyoshi's "Mother and Daughter" appears in the magazine, with the comment that it is a "pre shrill-color-period Kuniyoshi."

Painting Bought

Wodstock, March 27—A painting, "Figure in Space" by Sigmund Menkes, was one of the 23 oils which have been purchased from the Pennsylvania Academy's recent 146th annual by the Academy and the Philadelphia Museum, according to a joint announcement by the two institutions. Menkes painting was among the 17 oils purchased by the Academy with its $20,000 in purchase funds.

Drops Out of Sight

New York, March 27 (AP)—Frank Costello, the shy racketeer, has dropped out of sight. The Senate Crime Committee's star witness, whose nervous hands became famous when he refused to have his face televised, faded out when the committee closed its New York hearings Wednesday. Even the police, who want to talk to him about an attempt to enter his apartment early last Saturday morning, can't find him. Gossip around town has it that he is in Florida. Asked about Costello's whereabouts, his attorney, George Wolf, said last night: "I really don't know."

though another machine had sideswiped it and forced it off the road.

Schrader said Walker was arrested as police patrolled the city, searching for a car with damaged right fender. They found Walker's car, which answered this description, in a garage being repaired. It had smears of green paint on the damaged fender, officers said. Cook's car was green.

Walker told investigators his automobile fender was smashed in an accident in Hollywood last week.

Headed for Los Angeles

The slain man's father, Harold Cook, said his son, daughter-in-law and their baby, born last July, left his home at the little town of Nuevo about 10:30 a. m. yesterday. They were headed for Los Angeles, where young Cook does maintenance work at an Aluminum Company of America plant.

The elder Cook said the young couple were devoted and lived a quiet life. Mrs. Cook's mother, Mrs. C. J. Trask of Sunnymead, near Nuevo, emphasized that if her daughter left the baby, "it had to be done by force."

Officers said Cook was slain sometime between 11 a. m. and 11:25, when Jack Tracht of La Sierra discovered the tragedy on a lonely stretch of road near Lake Mathews in Riverside county.

Highway patrolmen said they had ridden over the road at 11 o'clock and noticed nothing wrong.

Theorizing from tire marks and footprints on what happened, Capt. Schrader surmised:

A car forced Cook's off the highway and pulled in behind him. Cook got out and a man got out of the rear machine. They apparently talked and, as Cook turned, he was shot. The rear auto then backed up about 300 feet, turned around and headed for the town of Perris.

There were no women's footprints at the scene. The baby boy, Jeffery, was on a pink blanket on the ground near the Cook car. The infant was unharmed.

Homicide Deputy Mel Vivion said he learned that Walker ate lunch at March Air Force Base and at about 1 p. m. drove his car to the garage in Riverside. The scene of the slaying and the air base are about seven miles apart.

and sponsored by the club through a part of the proceeds of last year's exposition. Roger Baer was delegated the responsibility of training the group, and he secured Anthony Merola as conductor. About 27 youngsters are expected to be in the line of march.

The parade begins at Cornell street and Broadway at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday, proceeds up Broadway to St. James street, to Albany avenue, to Manor avenue and to the Armory, where opening ceremonies will be held. Units in the line of march will be announced.

The exhibit, known as "Kingston Area on Parade," will be open each night, Tuesday through Saturday, from 7 to 11 o'clock.

Construction of booths and decorations is being completed by G. A. Trahan Company, Inc., of Cohoes, the same firm that handled the job for previous expositions.

A food concession will be operated nightly by Robert Teetsel.

Heads Committee

Steering committee for the exposition is headed by Morgan D. Ryan, general chairman. Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk is honorary chairman. Lawrence J. MacAvery is vice chairman; Joseph Fassbender, treasurer, and Lions President C. Robert Cousins, chairman ex-officio.

The annual Lions Club exposition was born four years ago at the municipal auditorium. Response was so great both from the public and from exhibitors that the show was moved to the larger space in the armory the following year, where it has remained since, each year attracting greater comment and more visitors.

Named After Harper

Harper's Ferry, scene of John Brown's famous pre-Civil War raid, is named after Robert Harper who settled there in 1747.

German War Bride Loses Court Fight

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Mrs. Ellen Knauff, German war bride, detained since 1948, has lost a major battle in her fight to win permanent residence in the United States.

A special Immigration Service board of inquiry ordered the 36-year-old woman barred from the U. S. yesterday after listening to testimony that she was a former Czechoslovak spy.

Mrs. Knauff said she would appeal the board's decision. Attorneys on both sides agreed the case may continue many months. Mrs. Knauff is free under parole to her attorneys.

For the first time in the long case, the government lifted the curtain on a part of the evidence it always has claimed it had against the slight, dark-haired woman. She is the wife of Kurt Knauff, veteran working for the U. S. occupation forces in Germany.

Two Czechs—one a former major in his country's mission in Frankfurt, Germany, and the other a former woman employe in the mission—testified Mrs. Knauff made periodic visits to the mission to give information. At the time, she was employed in the civil censorship office of the U. S. military government.

Mrs. Knauff denied that she engaged in spying. She said she visited the mission every three months to get her Czech passport renewed.

Husband Confident

Frankfurt, Germany, March 27 (AP)—Kurt Knauff today expressed confidence that his German wife, Ellen, would win eventual entry to the United States despite testimony that she had spied for Czechoslovakia while working for the American military government in Germany.

He said he was sure of this "because Ellen has a clear conscience."

Knauff, a former G.I. who now is a civilian employe of the U. S. army's signal depot at Hanau, challenged the reliability of two Czechoslovaks who testified against Mrs. Knauff before a special Immigration Service board hearing in Washington. The board ruled yesterday that Mrs. Knauff should be barred, but she plans to appeal.

Knauff said:

"It is a known fact that some informers from Iron Curtain countries seek to buy entry visas to the United States for themselves by bringing statements against other people, whether these statements are true or not. It is known that some have succeeded in gaining entry to the U. S. in this way."

Plans Discussed For New Roadway

Woodstock, March 27 — The Woodstock Fish and Game Club on Monday night, discussed the advisability of building a permanent driveway from the main road to the club house on the recreation field. Montcene DeWitt and Joseph Forno were appointed as a committee to determine whether the driveway should be of shale or blacktop.

A further discussion was concerned with plans for a trap shoot to be held in the near future at the club house and Joseph Forno was appointed chairman for the event.

Birge Simmons announced that the meeting of the Federation of Sportsmen Clubs will be held in Milton, on April 14.

Simmons reported that there have been several instances in Wittenberg, Willow and Glenford, where dogs have been observed running deer.

Following the business meeting Reese Smith, of Willow, showed colored slides of his recent trip to Arizona.

There will be no meeting of the Fish and Game Club in April, and the next meeting will be held on the second Monday in May.

Several Painters Active in South

Woodstock, March 27—Several Woodstock artists have been spending the winter painting in St. Augustine, Fla., among them, Marguerite Graham, Mercy Anne Hillman, Frances Dowd, Gladys Mitchell and Ethel Adams.

Mrs. Adams has sold five of her small street scenes of St. Augustine through the Art Association there. Some of her work will appear in the May issue of House Beautiful, in the "Window Shopping" column.

Mrs. Adams expects to return to this village about the end of the month.

To Give Dinner

Grass Fires Start

Woodstock, March 27 — The Woodstock Fire Company was called out twice early Monday afternoon. The first call at 1:15 p. m. was to the home of William Ladin where a brush fire was quenched. The second call came about 2.45 p. m. when another brush fire had broken out near the home of Benedetta Gentile on the Ohayo Mt. road. It has been requested by the Fire Company that all residents use extreme caution in burning rubbish.

Circle Theatre Has New Play

Woodstock, March 27—With a new play "Amata" by Eugene Raskin, the Loft Players have opened their second production at the Circle in the Square, Sheridan Square, Greenwich Village.

According to Aileen Cramer the first play, "Dark of the Moon," with which the group opened the arena theatre, was received favorably by such critics as Vernon Rice and Arthur Pollack, who wrote that "they play with gusto and make it an animated evening." Tom Dash of Women's Wear Daily said: "Seldom in numerous jaunts to the experimental off-Broadway theatre has this reviewer witnessed a more rewarding production."

The mode of presentation is the intimate and closely coordinated arena method. Those familiar with this style are aware of its ability to break down the barrier between actor and audience and thus bring about a closer association and understanding between the two participants.

Streams Stocked

Woodstock, March 27—Birge Simmons, president of the Woodstock Fish and Game Club, reports that within the last week approximately 3,500 trout have been placed in the streams around Woodstock. This represents the Conservation Department's quota for the club. Simmons says that he expects that another 1,500 trout of fingerling size will be placed in the streams on April 12.

Exhibit Praised

Woodstock, March 27 (AP) — A review of the show now on view at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in celebration of Art Students League Jubilee, appears in the March 15 issue of the Art Digest. Paul Bird writes that it is "a notable exhibition of paintings and sculptures by American artists who have been associated with the world-unique art school over its 75 years of existence." Along with the review a reproduc- of Yasuo Kuniyoshi's "Mother and Daughter" appears in the magazine, with the comment that it is a "pre shrill-color-period Kuniyoshi."

Painting Bought

Wodstock, March 27—A painting, "Figure in Space" by Sigmund Menkes, was one of the 23 oils which have been purchased from the Pennsylvania Academy's recent 146th annual by the Academy and the Philadelphia Museum, according to a joint announcement by the two institutions. Menkes painting was among the 17 oils purchased by the Academy with its $20,000 in purchase funds.

Drops Out of Sight

New York, March 27 (AP)—Frank Costello, the shy racketeer, has dropped out of sight. The Senate Crime Committee's star witness, whose nervous hands became famous when he refused to have his face televised, faded out when the committee closed its New York hearings Wednesday. Even the police, who want to talk to him about an attempt to enter his apartment early last Saturday morning, can't find him. Gossip around town has it that he is in Florida. Asked about Costello's whereabouts, his attorney, George Wolf, said last night: "I really don't know."

German War Bride Loses Court Fight

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Mrs. Ellen Knauff, German war bride, detained since 1948, has lost a major battle in her fight to win permanent residence in the United States.

A special Immigration Service board of inquiry ordered the 36-year-old woman barred from the U. S. yesterday after listening to testimony that she was a former Czechoslovak spy.

Mrs. Knauff said she would appeal the board's decision. Attorneys on both sides agreed the case may continue many months. Mrs. Knauff is free under parole to her attorneys.

For the first time in the long case, the government lifted the curtain on a part of the evidence it always has claimed it had against the slight, dark-haired woman. She is the wife of Kurt Knauff, veteran working for the U. S. occupation forces in Germany.

Two Czechs—one a former major in his country's mission in Frankfurt, Germany, and the other a former woman employe in the mission—testified Mrs. Knauff made periodic visits to the mission to give information. At the time, she was employed in the civil censorship office of the U. S. military government.

Mrs. Knauff denied that she engaged in spying. She said she visited the mission every three months to get her Czech passport renewed.

Husband Confident

Frankfurt, Germany, March 27 (AP)—Kurt Knauff today expressed confidence that his German wife, Ellen, would win eventual entry to the United States despite testimony that she had spied for Czechoslovakia while working for the American military government in Germany.

He said he was sure of this "because Ellen has a clear conscience."

Knauff, a former G.I. who now is a civilian employe of the U. S. army's signal depot at Hanau, challenged the reliability of two Czechoslovaks who testified against Mrs. Knauff before a special Immigration Service board hearing in Washington. The board ruled yesterday that Mrs. Knauff should be barred, but she plans to appeal.

Knauff said:

"It is a known fact that some informers from Iron Curtain countries seek to buy entry visas to the United States for themselves by bringing statements against other people, whether these statements are true or not. It is known that some have succeeded in gaining entry to the U. S. in this way."

Woodstock, March 27—Several Woodstock artists have been spending the winter painting in St. Augustine, Fla., among them, Marguerite Graham, Mercy Anne Hillman, Frances Dowd, Gladys Mitchell and Ethel Adams.

Mrs. Adams has sold five of her small street scenes of St. Augustine through the Art Association there. Some of her work will appear in the May issue of House Beautiful, in the "Window Shopping" column.

Mrs. Adams expects to return to this village about the end of the month.

Grass Fires Start

Woodstock, March 27 — The Woodstock Fire Company was called out twice early Monday afternoon. The first call at 1:15 p. m. was to the home of William Ladin where a brush fire was quenched. The second call came about 2.45 p. m. when another brush fire had broken out near the home of Benedetta Gentile on the Ohayo Mt. road. It has been requested by the Fire Company that all residents use extreme caution in burning rubbish.

Circle Theatre Has New Play

Woodstock, March 27—With a new play "Amata" by Eugene Raskin, the Loft Players have opened their second production at the Circle in the Square, Sheridan Square, Greenwich Village.

According to Aileen Cramer the first play, "Dark of the Moon," with which the group opened the arena theatre, was received favorably by such critics as Vernon Rice and Arthur Pollack, who wrote that "they play with gusto and make it an animated evening." Tom Dash of Women's Wear Daily said: "Seldom in numerous jaunts to the experimental off-Broadway theatre has this reviewer witnessed a more rewarding production."

The mode of presentation is the intimate and closely coordinated arena method. Those familiar with this style are aware of its ability to break down the barrier between actor and audience and thus bring about a closer association and understanding between the two participants.

Streams Stocked

Woodstock, March 27—Birge Simmons, president of the Woodstock Fish and Game Club, reports that within the last week approximately 3,500 trout have been placed in the streams around Woodstock. This represents the Conservation Department's quota for the club. Simmons says that he expects that another 1,500 trout of fingerling size will be placed in the streams on April 12.

Exhibit Praised

Woodstock, March 27 (AP) — A review of the show now on view at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in celebration of Art Students League Jubilee, appears in the March 15 issue of the Art Digest. Paul Bird writes that it is "a notable exhibition of paintings and sculptures by American artists who have been associated with the world-unique art school over its 75 years of existence." Along with the review a reproduc- of Yasuo Kuniyoshi's "Mother and Daughter" appears in the magazine, with the comment that it is a "pre shrill-color-period Kuniyoshi."

Drops Out of Sight

New York, March 27 (AP)—Frank Costello, the shy racketeer, has dropped out of sight. The Senate Crime Committee's star witness, whose nervous hands became famous when he refused to have his face televised, faded out when the committee closed its New York hearings Wednesday. Even the police, who want to talk to him about an attempt to enter his apartment early last Saturday morning, can't find him. Gossip around town has it that he is in Florida. Asked about Costello's whereabouts, his attorney, George Wolf, said last night: "I really don't know."

California Search

though another machine had sideswiped it and forced it off the road.

Schrader said Walker was arrested as police patrolled the city, searching for a car with damaged right fender. They found Walker's car, which answered this description, in a garage being repaired. It had smears of green paint on the damaged fender, officers said. Cook's car was green.

Walker told investigators his automobile fender was smashed in an accident in Hollywood last week.

Headed for Los Angeles

The slain man's father, Harold Cook, said his son, daughter-in-law and their baby, born last July, left his home at the little town of Nuevo about 10:30 a. m. yesterday. They were headed for Los Angeles, where young Cook does maintenance work at an Aluminum Company of America plant.

The elder Cook said the young couple were devoted and lived a quiet life. Mrs. Cook's mother, Mrs. C. J. Trask of Sunnymead, near Nuevo, emphasized that if her daughter left the baby, "it had to be done by force."

Officers said Cook was slain sometime between 11 a. m. and 11:25, when Jack Tracht of La Sierra discovered the tragedy on a lonely stretch of road near Lake Mathews in Riverside county.

Highway patrolmen said they had ridden over the road at 11 o'clock and noticed nothing wrong.

Theorizing from tire marks and footprints on what happened, Capt. Schrader surmised:

A car forced Cook's off the highway and pulled in behind him. Cook got out and a man got out of the rear machine. They apparently talked and, as Cook turned, he was shot. The rear auto then backed up about 300 feet, turned around and headed for the town of Perris.

There were no women's footprints at the scene. The baby boy, Jeffery, was on a pink blanket on the ground near the Cook car. The infant was unharmed.

Homicide Deputy Mel Vivion said he learned that Walker ate lunch at March Air Force Base and at about 1 p. m. drove his car to the garage in Riverside. The scene of the slaying and the air base are about seven miles apart.

Lions Club Gets

and sponsored by the club through a part of the proceeds of last year's exposition. Roger Baer was delegated the responsibility of training the group, and he secured Anthony Merola as conductor. About 27 youngsters are expected to be in the line of march.

The parade begins at Cornell street and Broadway at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday, proceeds up Broadway to St. James street, to Albany avenue, to Manor avenue and to the Armory, where opening ceremonies will be held. Units in the line of march will be announced.

The exhibit, known as "Kingston Area on Parade," will be open each night, Tuesday through Saturday, from 7 to 11 o'clock.

Construction of booths and decorations is being completed by G. A. Trahan Company, Inc., of Cohoes, the same firm that handled the job for previous expositions.

A food concession will be operated nightly by Robert Teetsel.

Heads Committee

Steering committee for the exposition is headed by Morgan D. Ryan, general chairman. Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk is honorary chairman. Lawrence J. MacAvery is vice chairman; Joseph Fassbender, treasurer, and Lions President C. Robert Cousins, chairman ex-officio.

The annual Lions Club exposition was born four years ago at the municipal auditorium. Response was so great both from the public and from exhibitors that the show was moved to the larger space in the armory the following year, where it has remained since, each year attracting greater comment and more visitors.

German War Bride Loses Court Fight

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Mrs. Ellen Knauff, German war bride, detained since 1948, has lost a major battle in her fight to win permanent residence in the United States.

A special Immigration Service board of inquiry ordered the 36-year-old woman barred from the U. S. yesterday after listening to testimony that she was a former Czechoslovak spy.

Mrs. Knauff said she would appeal the board's decision. Attorneys on both sides agreed the case may continue many months. Mrs. Knauff is free under parole to her attorneys.

For the first time in the long case, the government lifted the curtain on a part of the evidence it always has claimed it had against the slight, dark-haired woman. She is the wife of Kurt Knauff, veteran working for the U. S. occupation forces in Germany.

Two Czechs—one a former major in his country's mission in Frankfurt, Germany, and the other a former woman employe in the mission—testified Mrs. Knauff made periodic visits to the mission to give information. At the time, she was employed in the civil censorship office of the U. S. military government.

Mrs. Knauff denied that she engaged in spying. She said she visited the mission every three months to get her Czech passport renewed.

Husband Confident

Frankfurt, Germany, March 27 (AP)—Kurt Knauff today expressed confidence that his German wife, Ellen, would win eventual entry to the United States despite testimony that she had spied for Czechoslovakia while working for the American military government in Germany.

He said he was sure of this "because Ellen has a clear conscience."

Knauff, a former G.I. who now is a civilian employe of the U. S. army's signal depot at Hanau, challenged the reliability of two Czechoslovaks who testified against Mrs. Knauff before a special Immigration Service board hearing in Washington. The board ruled yesterday that Mrs. Knauff should be barred, but she plans to appeal.

Knauff said:

"It is a known fact that some informers from Iron Curtain countries seek to buy entry visas to the United States for themselves by bringing statements against other people, whether these statements are true or not. It is known that some have succeeded in gaining entry to the U. S. in this way."
